BALLOONISTS GO TO WASHINGTON AFTER FLIGHT

Tell of Their Trip to Stratosphere.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The two daring stratosphere explorers, Lieutenant Commander T. G. W. Settle of the navy and Maj. Chester L. Fordney of the marine corps, guarding the instruments which give records of their flight, arrived here tonight by coast guard plane from Bridgeton, N. J., where they had landed yesterday and where they had spent the night in the fabric of their balloon.

Tomorrow the balloonists will be received by the secretary of the navy. It is believed they have established an official world's record, having soared 59,000 feet.

TELL OF THEIR EXPLOIT

Bridgeton, N. J., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Two hungry and unshaven stratosphere explorers, who had slept, snug and unworried, under their balloon fabric while the nation fearfully awaited word of their fate, waded and swam out of a southern New Jersey swamp today after establishing what is believed to be an official world's altitude record.

Lieutenant Commander T. G. W. Settle of the navy and Maj. Chester L. Fordney of the marine corps, after devouring the first food they had tasted since Sunday night, pronounced their cosmic ray investigation flight from Akron, O., yesterday a "complete success" from the mechanical standpoint.

Whether results of a long series of stratosphere tests tend to uphold the cosmic theory of Dr. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago or Dr. Robert A. Millikan of the California Institute of Technology would not be ascertained for several weeks following a thorough check of the instruments, it was announced.

Shows 11.17 Miles Ascent.

The barograph carried in the gleaming black and white gondola of the huge balloon unofficially showed that the craft had reached an altitude of approximately 59,000 feet, or 11.17 miles. This exceeds by some 6,000 feet the height gained by Prof. Auguste Piccard and Max Coysns in 1932, which has stood as the official world record ascent.

The record of 62,304 feet, or 11.8 miles, claimed by three soviet aeronauts last September, is not officially recognized because Russia is not a member of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, with headquarters in Paris.

Despite the fact that residents of the vicinity of Salem reported seeing the balloon's lights about 7 o'clock last night, Commander Settle revealed that he had brought the craft to a "normal landing" at 5:50 on a piece of marsh land twelve miles southwest of this city and a bare half-mile from the upper reaches of Delaware bay.

Boy First to See Balloonist.

With the possible exception of Lieut. George Bowerman, who flew a coast guard plane from Cape May base 9 over the middle marsh section this morning before a veritable armada of army, navy, and private planes followed later, the first person to be greeted by either balloonist was Horace Swift, 13 years old, who lives nearly four miles from the scene.

"As I waded across the marshland seeking a telephone Horace gave me a fishy look, as if imagining he saw somebody who had come down from Mars," Maj. Fordney related. "He told me I could get a telephone at S. L. Johnson's, a mile farther along."

In the midst of his telephone calls the marine officer drank an unestimated amount of coffee and ate a breakfast of fried ham and potatoes

Bring Food to Commander.

Following state troopers as they escorted him back to the balloon came Mrs. Harriett Johnson Overs and Miss Rae Johnson, daughters of Mr. Jonnson, bearing a thermos bottle of coffee and sacks of ham sandwiches, molasses, and loaf cake for Commander Settle. His first request, however, was for an apple, then another.

"Were they hungry?" exclaimed Miss Johnson. "You should have seen them."

Commander Settle explained apologetically that "We had plenty of food with us, but had no time to eat." They jettisoned their food in the de-

ROOSEVELT AID QUITS TO FIGHT HIS MONEY PLAN

Sprague Protests at Depreciation.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Prof. O. M. W. Sprague hurled a verbal bombshell into the administration camp late this afternoon and with it his resignation from the post of financial and executive assistant to the secretary of the treasury.

In a letter of resignation addressed to the President, Prof. Sprague said that the Roosevelt dollar depreciation policy not only will fail to raise prices substantially in the absence of trade recovery but will ruin the credit of the government and precipitate an inflation panic.

Foresees Fiat Money.

"I believe," said the professor to his one time pupil at Harvard, "you are faced with the alternative either of giving up the present policy or of the meeting of government expenditures with additional paper money.

"You will then, no doubt, secure a rise in prices, for you will be faced with distrust of the currency, already manifest in a growing flight from the dollar, but extending into a frantic desire to hold anything other than currency or securities yielding a fixed interest return.

"We are a mercurial people. The history of post-war depreciation of currencies in Europe is still fresh. We have recently experienced distrust of banks spreading like wildfire throughout the country. A similar wave of currency distrust impends."

Having finally lost all hope that the President might be persuaded to change his course before it is too late, Prof. Sprague said he was resigning to take the field against the Roosevelt policy, believing that the last chance of averting a currency inflation debacle lies in arousing public opinion.

Third to Step Out.

Prof. Sprague is the third treasury official to step out since the President definitely committed himself to the dollar depreciation program. Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, who at first opposed as illegal and finally indorsed under duress the President's course, has gone on an indefinite leave of absence because of ill health.

Dean G. Acheson, outspoken opponent of the scheme, involuntarily resigned as undersecretary of the treasury. Other officials not in sympathy with the monetary experiment are slated for replacement. Gov. Eugene Black of the federal reserve board holds himself ready to retire if the President so desires and is going to Warm Springs in a few days to discuss the matter with Mr. Roosevelt.

While Prof. Sprague was penning his resignation the treasury pushed the dollar another notch downward by boosting the price offered for gold another ten cents an ounce upward. Government bonds weakened.

Morgenthau Not Concerned.

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, who by means of a press censorship in the treasury has stopped leaks of information damaging to the monetary policy and who is quietly weeding out opponents of inflation, took Prof. Sprague's resignation coolly.

"I knew this was imminent," he said. "I knew he was out of sympathy with the administration, and I am only surprised that it did not take place sooner." He added that it went without saying that he did not agree with the theories and predictions set forth by Prof. Sprague.

Reminded that Prof. Sprague opposed not only the gold policy but any depreciation or devaluation of the dollar, Secretary Morgenthau merely shrugged his shoulders and said, "It's a free country."

Pressed for a statement to counteract the effects of Prof. Sprague's dire forecast, Secretary Morgenthau said merely, "I think the sun will rise tomorrow, and I think the birds will be singing."

He said he had no idea why Prof. Sprague had not been invited to White House conferences on the gold policy, as he had complained in his statement.

Although unwilling tonight to make any statement which would offset the probable effect of Prof. Sprague's predictions on the government bond market, Secretary Morgenthau, it is believed, is ready to step into the gov-

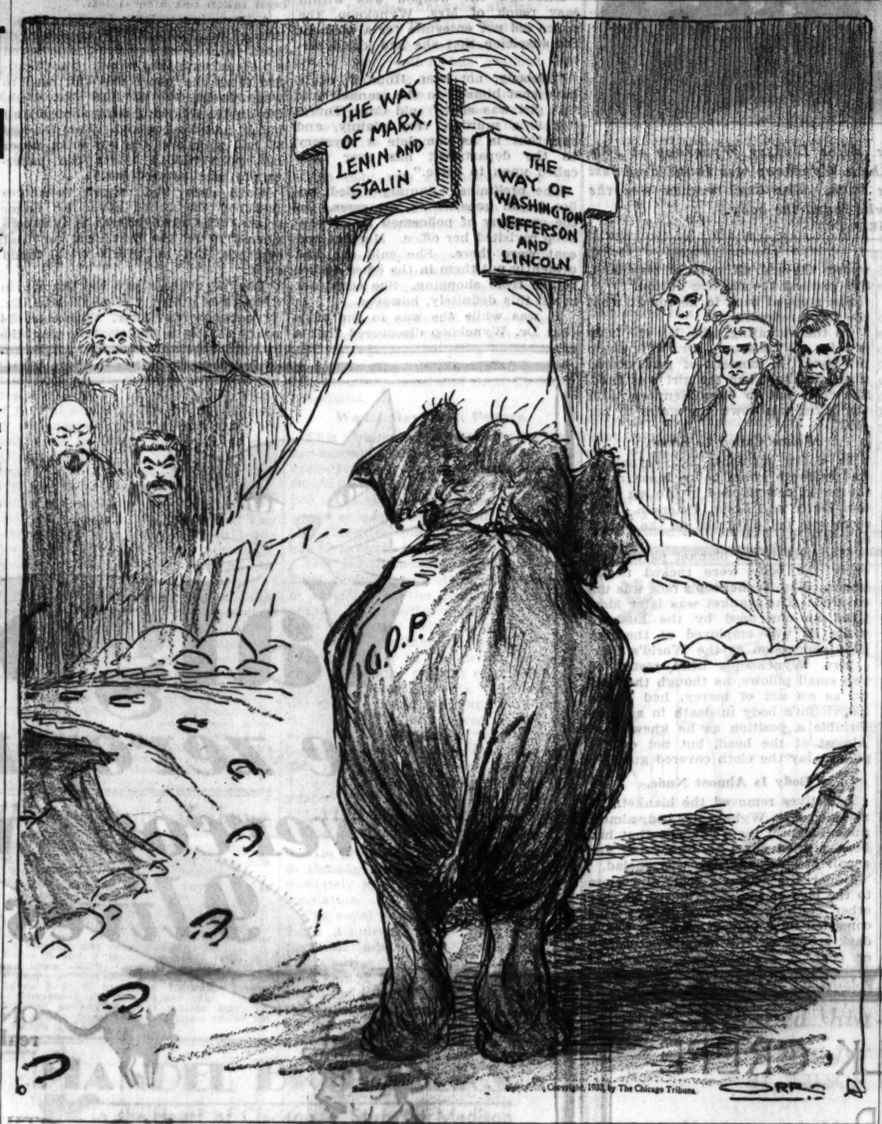
WHICH COURSE WILL BOLIVAR CHOOSE?



Insull's Wife in Paris Hospital; Case a Mystery

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 21.—Rumors that a mystery woman who has been under treatment at the American hospital since Nov. 17 for cuts and bruises is Mrs. Samual Insull, wife of the former Chicago utilities magnate, were confirmed today by THE TRIBUNE reporter. The reporter stepped into the hospital room and found the former Chicago society leader sitting up in bed reading letters.

If the reporter had not positively recognized Mrs. Insull, the mystery woman in room 319—that was where the patient was found—would still remain a mystery, for hospital authorities insist they have no knowledge of Mrs. Insull being at the hospital. The name on the door reads "Miss Marguerite Clark."

Nature of Injuries Mystery.

Just to make it harder, the room where Mrs. Insull has been secreted for the last week is in the maternity wing of the hospital.

The exact nature of Mrs. Insull's injuries could not be learned. The nurses say she was brought in with her head bandaged and severe bruises about her face, but when seen today there was not a flaw in her makeup.

The card on the door to the room says that Dr. Fuller is the physician in charge, but Dr. Fuller tonight said he is not treating Mrs. Insull, Miss Clark or anyone who answered the description given.

Nurses Are Intrigued.

Whatever the injuries or the origin of them, Mrs. Insull is apparently convalescing rapidly. The nurses are intrigued because the patient in 319 sends down every day for a bowl of milk, in which she dips her fingers for 15 minutes in order to keep her nails from cracking.

Her sharpness in speaking to maids who touch her personal effects while cleaning the room has likewise become proverbial.

$3,500 AUTOMOBILE FOR INFIRMARY HEAD STIRS UP A PROTEST

Despite the protests of five county commissioners, the public service committee of the county board yesterday voted to spend $3,475 for the purchase of a new seven passenger Cadillac automobile for Frank Venacek, superintendent of the county infirmary at Oak Forest. Nine of the commissioners voted for the purchase, although the other five styled it an extravagance, and pointed out that a serviceable automobile of another make could be bought for more than a thousand dollars less.

"This automobile won't be used for much besides taking Mr. Venacek to and from county board meetings," said Commissioner Charles Weber, in opposing the motion of Commissioner Frank Kasper to buy the car. Commissioner Amelia Sears, who also protested, said that the car would be used only "for pleasure drives."

Barnett Gives Up; Plea for Pardon Denied

Denied a pardon by Gov. Horner, Maurice Barnett last night ended a fight of 32 months to escape a prison sentence of one to five years by surrendering to Cook county deputy sheriffs in Glen Ellyn. He was sentenced for his part in a fake jewel holdup.

An hour after his surrender Barnett was locked up in the county jail. He will go to Joliet prison tomorrow.

The governor's refusal to interfere with Barnett's sentence was announced yesterday. Barnett was 200 miles from Chicago. Through his lawyer, Harry A. Silverstein, he arranged to surrender at 8 p. m. in the Glen Ellyn station of the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railway to Chief Bailiff James Z. Gabriel of the Criminal court.

Driven to Station by Son.

Seven minutes after the appointed hour, Barnett appeared in a car driven by his son, Joseph. He entered an automobile containing Gabriel and Deputy Sheriffs William Feeney and Patrick Keenan, who brought him to Chicago. Barnett had been at liberty on a $10,000 bond.

Gov. Horner in his denial of executive clemency said:

"I have carefully examined the entire record and do not feel justified in disregarding the recommendation of the pardon board, nor interfering with the verdict of the jury and the sentence of the court based thereon, both of which have been sustained by the Appellate and Supreme courts."

Barnett Indicted in 1929.

Barnett was indicted on Nov. 1, 1929, as the ringleader of a conspiracy in which Mrs. Laura B. Price, then the wife of a wealthy box manufacturer, allowed herself to be the victim of the fake jewel robbery in order to swindle an insurance company.

Max Krakow, a jeweler, and Mrs. Price have served sentences of six months each in the county jail for their parts in the conspiracy. Barnett appealed his case and lost in both the Appellate and Supreme courts. He then sought a writ of coram nobis in the Criminal court, alleging that additional evidence had been discovered and asking that the case be reopened.

The court denied the plea and was upheld by both Appellate and Supreme courts.

Woman Takes Plane for Dive Into Atlantic

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Determined not to come back, Mrs. Louise Turck Stanton, Junior league leader who became despondent over the death of her husband, borrowed an airplane today and pointed it toward the open sea.

There was a four-hour gasoline supply in the plane's tanks, airport attendants said, and she was unreported tonight—hours after the last of the fuel should have been sucked into the motor.

"I'm just going out into space to find out what it's all about, and if there isn't anything—that's O. K., too," she wrote to Bert Maloney, manager of the airport and a friend.

Warns She'll Do Thorough Job.

"I'll be at sea, and you can count on me, the job will be thorough," she warned. "I don't want any wreckage found."

The finding of the notes—more than four hours after Mrs. Stanton had flown her plane into the air—sent three pilots maneuvering their planes over the ocean, but Maloney said this was "really a gesture" and explained her long start had made the chances of finding either the woman or traces of the plane almost negligible if she had flown until gas shortage dropped her into the water.

In her note to Maloney—one of the seven that had been discovered tonight—Mrs. Stanton urged that the airport manager refrain from sending airplanes on any "dangerous searching" for her, and declared she was "sorry to have it that way, but it's better than having an aviation 'accident.'"

Arranges to Replace Plane.

Before she left the field on her flight to an unknown destination Mrs. Stanton, by letter, arranged for the replacement of the plane she borrowed.

Mrs. Stanton's husband was killed in an automobile accident here two weeks ago. Friends said she had grieved deeply.

She held a private pilot's license, and renewed it last week. Maloney said she had been flying frequently since the death of her husband.

The airport manager said he believed Mrs. Stanton had flown eastward over the ocean until the gasoline supply was very low. Then, he said he believed, she opened the throttle wide, sent the plane into a sharp climb, and then pushed the control stick full ahead for a plummet-like dive into the sea.

Held Special Pilot's License.

The final request in her note to Maloney was one that there be "no sensationalism or cheapness." She also expressed a "particular dislike for the word suicide, and hope they can avoid using it."

Besides her intense interest in junior league work, Mrs. Stanton was said to be an artist of above the average ability. She was about 30 years old.

Along with the note to Maloney, Mrs. Stanton wrote briefly to her parents, Col. and Mrs. Raymond C. Turck of Jacksonville; Dr. and Mrs. Stanton of Hastings, Fla., parents of her husband; Donald McGovern, a Jacksonville attorney; J. G. Nall, department of commerce aircraft inspector, and Laurie Yonge, veteran pilot and the man who taught her to fly.

A NATIVE OF CHICAGO.

Mrs. Eleanor Louise Turck Stanton was born in Chicago, where her father, Dr. Raymond C. Turck, was a practicing physician from 1898 to 1904. Her mother, Mrs. Turck, was Bertha Bouton of this city. Dr. Turck was a surgeon on the staff of the Post-Graduate Medical school here and a professor of surgery in the University of Illinois medical school. As a surgeon in the great war he became a colonel. He was wounded in action in the Argonne in October, 1918. Since the war he has been a resident of Ortega, Fla.

Mrs. Stanton was a cousin of Mrs. Frank G. Gardner, 287 Central avenue, Highland Park.

"We had heard from her since the death of her husband, Gordon Stanton," said Mrs. Gardner. "She was in deep grief then, but wrote that she intended to carry on as he would have wished her to."

According to Mrs. Gardner, Mrs. Stanton was a graduate of the National Cathedral school in Washington and the Parsons school in New York and also had been a student in the Sorbonne, Paris.

DR. WYNEKOOP FINDS BODY ON SURGERY TABLE

Shot once in the back—and almost nude—Mrs. Rheta Gardner Wynekoop, 23 years old, member by marriage of the well known Wynekoop family of physicians, was found mysteriously murdered last night in the home of her mother-in-law, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, at 3406 West Monroe street. The slain woman was the wife of Earle Wynekoop, son of Dr. Alice and the late Dr. Frank E. Wynekoop.

The husband is out of the city. One report places him in Peoria. He may be back today.

The victim was a pretty, auburn haired young woman of fair complexion. Her eyes were deep blue. Her figure was trim and slight. She was described as of a sunny disposition, with a love of art and music. She was considered a violinist of talent.

Found on Operating Table.

Everything about the strange case added to the mystery. When found Mrs. Wynekoop's body was shrouded in a heavy blanket, its ends tucked neatly under her. She was lying face down on an operating table in the emergency treatment room close to Dr. Alice Wynekoop's office suite. The operating room and office are in the basement of the home.

On the floor, almost under Mrs. Wynekoop's feet, lay her outer clothing and one or two pieces of lingerie. On the operating table, only inches from her head, lay a .32 caliber revolver. It was covered carefully with a cloth. The police discovered the gun had been stolen from the desk in Dr. Wynekoop's office.

Gun Fired Three Times.

The revolver had been fired three times. Here again the element of mystery appeared, for only one bullet had struck Mrs. Wynekoop. The bullet, penetrating her body from the back just below and to the left of the left shoulder, had evidently pierced her heart, causing instant death. Powder burns around the wound were apparent.

What happened to the two other bullets could not be definitely established. There was no trace of them in the walls, ceiling, or floor. Early this morning detectives found a bullet hole in an upstairs room of the home. This, it was explained, was made six weeks ago when a Cicero friend of the family accidentally discharged the same gun that was used in killing Mrs. Wynekoop.

Case Baffles Detectives.

A dozen detectives, still working on the case at 4 o'clock this morning, admitted they were completely baffled. Every bit of evidence uncovered served merely to deepen the mystery. It was, one of them said, a story book crime.

Mrs. Wynekoop, it appeared, had not been raped, but this question will not be formally settled until a medical examination is made today. For the time being investigators discarded the rapist theory—but not completely—while they pursued other possible motives.

The best one, according to Deputy Chief of Detectives William V. Blaul, appeared to be that the murder was committed by a dope addict. He pointed out that the Wynekoop home had been looted twice since Oct. 20, that drugs were taken both times, and that drugs were evidently taken yesterday by the slayer.

Money Taken from Desk.

That an intruder bent on thievery might have been responsible was further borne out by the fact that some one had entered Dr. Wynekoop's basement office and had taken $6 and the gun from the desk.

Additional evidence of a stranger in the house was the fact that the rear basement door was open. Any one could have entered unseen, the police said. It was possible that the intruder was interrupted by Mrs. Wynekoop and that he forced her into the operating room, compelled her to disrobe, and then shot her, according to this theory.

However, the police investigation followed many angles. Detectives looked into Mrs. Wynekoop's life. They discovered that she had led a somewhat sheltered existence and had artistic inclinations; that she had studied the violin for years.

This was later confirmed by her father, B. H. Gardner, a flour and salt broker of Indianapolis. The family is highly regarded in Indianapolis, it was said.

Mrs. Wynekoop's domestic life—she and Earle Wynekoop were married in 1929—was said to have been happy. The husband, it is probable, will be questioned on that score.

Husband in Peoria.

The latest report this morning was that Earle Wynekoop was in Peoria, although earlier it was said he was at Grand Cañon, Ariz. At 7:45 o'clock last night, however, 45 minutes before his mother discovered his wife murdered, Dr. Wynekoop had received a telegram from him, sent at 3:47 p. m. from Peoria. It said, "Stanley is having domestic trouble," and was signed with the initial "E."

On Nov. 13 Wynekoop left Chicago, presumably for the west, with Stanley Young to make some color photographs of railroad scenes at Grand Cañon, Ariz. He did reach Kansas City, where he wired his mother and sent his wife a letter.

Dr. Wynekoop could not explain the telegram from Peoria or its purpose except that her son had sent it to advise her he was not in Arizona, as she had supposed.

The telegram, in addition to the reference to "Stanley," was said to have stated something to the effect that Earle Wynekoop was leaving for home. Police would not discuss this, admitting only that the sender of the message had indicated he was leaving "for somewhere." Dr. Wynekoop, police said, had not told of the telegram until it was found in the house. On the strength of it Peoria police were asked to find Earle Wynekoop.

Dr. Wynekoop Questioned.

Deputy Detective Chief Blaul and Acting Captain Thomas J. Duffy and Lieut. Samuel Peterson of the Fillmore street station questioned Dr. Wynekoop at great length because it was she who had found her daughter-in-law's body. Dr. Wynekoop is about 62 years old. The police also questioned Miss Enid Hennessy, 65 years old, a teacher at the John Marshall High school, who has been living in the Wynekoop home for 10 years. Walker Wynekoop of Glencoe, a son of Dr. Wynekoop, was also present.

In their investigation the police came across a letter under a pile of other papers in Dr. Wynekoop's bedroom. It was dated "Sunday night," written in pencil and in a feminine hand. It said:

"Precious: I'm choked. You are gone—you have called me up—and after 10 minutes or so I called and called. No answer. Maybe you are sleeping. You need to be, but I want to hear your voice again tonight—I would give anything I have—to spend an hour in real talk with you tonight—and I cannot—good night."

Just what this meant, if anything, police could not say. The missive will be investigated further, it was said.

Dr. Wynekoop's and Mrs. Wynekoop's bedrooms adjoin each other on the third floor of the sixteen room house.

Declines Walk with Neighbor.

As nearly as can be determined young Mrs. Wynekoop was last seen alive just a few minutes before 3 p. m. yesterday. Some minutes before that, while returning home from a neighborhood errand, she met a friend, Mrs. Vera Duncan, who lives next door to the Wynekoop home, at Monroe street and Homan avenue.

Mrs. Duncan suggested that they go for a walk, but Mrs. Wynekoop declined, saying she had to get home before her mother-in-law. Dr. Wynekoop left to do some shopping.

Mrs. Wynekoop arrived home just as Dr. Wynekoop was about to leave, and told her mother-in-law about Mrs. Duncan's invitation to go for a walk. Dr. Wynekoop told her daughter-in-law she should have taken a stroll. Then Dr. Wynekoop left.

She returned home between 5:30 and 6 o'clock, after doing some errands in the business district a few blocks away. Between the time she last saw Mrs. Wynekoop and the time she returned, the young woman had been slain.

On her return, Dr. Wynekoop asked Miss Hennessy, who had arrived home about an hour before, to go to a nearby drug store and buy ten grains of chloral hydrate. Miss Hennessy did this, and on her return she and Dr. Wynekoop sat down to dinner.

Mrs. Wynekoop did not appear at the dinner table and her absence was noted because of her usual punctuality. Neither Dr. Wynekoop nor Miss Hennessy became unduly disturbed, however.

Search of House Begun.

But at 8 o'clock the physician became genuinely alarmed, and when her daughter-in-law had not appeared a half hour later she began a search of the house. She went into all of the upstairs rooms, and finally to the basement.

Dr. Wynekoop looked into her own office and did not observe anything noticeably out of order at the time.

Then she opened the door to the emergency room. This room is at the west side of the basement, about midway between the front and rear of the house. The doctor's offices are in front, south and east. As she opened the door to the emergency room Dr. Wynekoop sensed that something was wrong, she said, although all was dark. She pressed the electric button.

On the operating table lay the body of Mrs. Wynekoop. Dr. Wynekoop ran over. A moment of professional inspection told her the girl was dead. She cried out to Miss Hennessy and the latter ran down the stairs to her aid.

Police Called to Scene.

In a few moments Dr. Wynekoop had Fillmore street police hurrying to the scene, commanded by Acting Captain Duffy and Lieut. Peterson. The room was not disturbed on the orders of the police.

The ends of the blanket partly covering the body were tucked neatly under. Mrs. Wynekoop's face was uncovered. The blanket was later identified as one used by the husband while he was employed at the Sky Ride concession at the World's Fair.

Mrs. Wynekoop's head rested on two small pillows, as though the slayer, as an act of mercy, had placed his victim's body in death in as comfortable a position as he knew how. Almost at the head, but not on the pillows, lay the cloth covered gun.

Body Is Almost Nude.

Detectives removed the blanket. It revealed Mrs. Wynekoop's body almost nude. Except for a silk slip that had been pushed down to the waist, and a pair of stockings, she was unclad.

Under the victim's feet, and close to the legs of the operating table, her other clothing lay in a heap. This consisted of a pair of shoes, a heavy dark brown skirt, a black wool sweater coat, a green smock, and what appeared to be a lace jacket or sweater.

There was nothing else in the room to indicate any struggle or other disorder.

Suicide Theory Excluded.

Although the weapon was within easy reach of Mrs. Wynekoop, the police did not entertain for a moment the suspicion that she had killed herself.

"Nobody, not even Houdini, could have shot himself in the manner that this girl was shot," said Capt. Duffy. "It is a murder, very plainly, and one that is as complete a mystery as the department has ever been called upon to solve."

The preliminary inquiry ended, police began questioning witnesses. In the company of policemen Dr. Wynekoop revisited her office. Her hat and coat were there. She said she had evidently put them in the office on her return from shopping. She could not recall this definitely, however.

It was while she was in the office that Dr. Wynekoop discovered that a large drawer of her desk had been opened. This was after she had identified the gun on the table as her property.

"When I left home this gun and six $1 bills were in the drawer," said Dr. Wynekoop. "Both must have been taken out after I left."

A few minutes later Dr. Wynekoop, lifting an ornamental paperweight from the top of her desk, discovered a piece of wrapping paper. She identified it as the paper she had used to wrap twenty-five $1 bills last week. During the following days, she said, all but $6 had disappeared. Now the last $6 had gone and the wrapping paper had been hidden under the paperweight, she pointed out.

Until late last night detectives searched the entire house for finger prints. The revolver was at first considered to be the best clew for that evidence, but no prints were found on it.

The Wynekoops are well known in Chicago as a family of physicians. Dr. Wynekoop's daughter, Catherine, 24 years old, is a doctor, following the careers of her mother and her late father. She was at the county hospital when the slaying became known, and hurried home to assist the authorities. The late Dr. Frank Wynekoop was a brother of Dr. Charles Wynekoop and Dr. Gilbert Wynekoop. Dr. Gilbert Wynekoop is now held in the county jail on the charge of a nurse that he tried to attack her.

Miss Marie Louise Wynekoop, a daughter of Dr. Wynekoop, died last March. She was 23 years old, the same age as the slain daughter-in-law.

LIQUOR BILL LAID OPEN TO DELAY BEYOND DEC. 5

Speedy Action Prevented by Disagreements.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Prospects for speedy action by the special session of the general assembly which meets tomorrow to determine state regulations of post-prohibition liquor were lessened tonight when the commission delegated to draft the control bill failed to reach an agreement.

Until today observers had thought that, in view of the necessity of concerted action brought home by the requirement for a two-thirds vote in each house for a bill effective at once, quibbling and controversial matters would be avoided. Unexpectedly some of Gov. Horner's appointees on the commission of fifteen, designated to draw up a completed plan for the consideration of the assembly, decided to open wide the question of state control.

Two Bills to Be Offered.

Present indications are that two bills will be introduced tomorrow morning. One will be the very simple bill which, except for the question of state revenue, leaves the question of control entirely in the hands of local communities in the state. This is the majority bill, sponsored by Senator Harold G. Ward [Chicago, Dem.].

The other is a much more lengthy and complicated proposal, fathered by Ralph M. Shaw and Conrad H. Poppenbusen, which, it is said, would open the door to floor debate. It is contended that a complication of this sort might delay action beyond the repeal date, now recognized as Dec. 5.

If these conditions continue, it is said, there will be a swarm of long-bearded, dark spectacled, black hatted gentlemen arriving on the afternoon trains. And that's what some folks are hoping for.

Offer Advisory Report.

In addition to the majority and minority bills, the commission will offer an advisory report, signed by the fifteen members. This will advise the legislature, from the wealth of the commission's research, what to avoid in shaping any bill which may be finally enacted. The report consists of six points, and a conclusion which delineates the dilemma of the commission membership.

The advice to the assembly is that temperance should be promoted, that recurrence of evils formerly associated with the liquor traffic should be prevented, that municipalities should be given a large measure of home rule, and that revenue derived should not be so great as to encourage cheating.

Before the commission gave shape to its efforts, it was learned that Gov. Horner had consented to making known his personal views as to the situation. He talked with members of the commission during the afternoon and told them he intended not to interfere with the legislature's deliberations.

Watch the Bootlegger.

Although the arithmetical question of the state's share in the booze booty was not discussed on a basis of dollars and cents in the commission's meetings, it attracted considerable dissection by the gallery outside the doors which—whatever the motive—insisted that the state charges must be kept so low that the illicit dealer commonly called the bootlegger would not have an attractive margin of profit.

Here, for the first time, was an analysis of the fact that even without the proposed gallonage tax, ranging from 2 cents on beer to 50 cents on whisky and such, the state would receive a large revenue from the new respectability of strong drink. Attachés of the state department of finance estimated unofficially that the state sales tax on all that stuff above 3.2 in strength would amount to something more than $5,000,000 a year, even if there were no increase in the popular thirst.

Gov. Horner, it is said, has recognized this fact, and will be satisfied, as the big shot of state fiscal responsibility, with the rates laid down in the Ward bill. That was one of the points, it is said, agreed upon late today in a conference between a subcommittee of the commission and the governor. It also was agreed, it was said, that no bill has a chance of passing unless it assures the fullest possible measure of home rule.

Nine Former Dry Suburbs Decide to Let Beer Stay

A survey of Chicago's suburbs yesterday indicated that the pre-prohibition wet and dry lines will be generally followed after repeal, except that many of the suburbs which formerly were bone dry will permit the sale of beer.

A few of the suburbs have already taken action to support dry charters or restore the dry status that existed before prohibition, but most of them are awaiting action by the state legislature, which will meet in special session today to consider liquor control legislation.

9 Dry Towns Permit Beer.

The sale of beer, subject to restrictions in some cases, is now and after repeal will be permitted in the following nine suburban communities which were bone dry before prohibition: Oak Park, Maywood, Western Springs, La Grange, Evanston, Kenilworth, Park Ridge, Lake Bluff, and Lake Forest.

These six municipalities will remain bone dry: River Forest, Wilmette, Winnetka, Zion, Highland Park, and Glencoe.

One of the driest of the new laws adopted in the suburbs is that of River Forest, which prohibits the manufacture, sale or storage for sale of any beverage containing more than ½ of 1 per cent of alcohol. Fines of $25 to $100 and jail terms of 30 days to six months are provided for violations.

Evanston also has adopted a new ordinance which prohibits the sale of any drink containing more than 3.2 per cent of alcohol by weight. Beer of this alcoholic content cannot be sold for consumption on the premises.

Liquor Summary of Suburbs.

A brief summary of the status of liquor control or prohibition in other suburbs follows:

Berwyn—Always was wet and likely to continue, but is awaiting state legislation.

Calumet City—No action yet but will continue to be wet.

Cicero—Same as Berwyn.

Flossmoor—No taverns in this town. Not expected to license anything.

Forest Park—Wet before prohibition and will be after repeal, although waiting upon the legislature to act. Considering boost in retailer's license after hard liquor is legalized and a 1 a. m. closing law, including Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Beer Sold in Kenilworth.

Kenilworth—No law on books, but beer is being sold by cases. Not expected to license selling of strong liquor.

La Grange—Will continue to permit sale of beer, but no hard liquor.

Lake Bluff—Dry by charter, which is supported by new ordinance prohibiting anything stronger than 3.2 beer.

Lake Forest—Dry by charter but ordinance permits 3.2 beer.

Maywood—Sale of bottle beer only permitted now. Dry before prohibition but will continue to permit sale of beer after repeal.

Morton Grove—Always wet. Will boost license fee after hard liquor is legalized.

Niles Center—Part of this community is within the Northwestern university four mile limit dry area. Beer now licensed and hard liquor probably will be.

North Chicago—Will permit both beer and liquor.

Oak Park—Dry before prohibition. Beer ordinance now permits package sales. Awaiting action by the legislature for further control regulations, but probably will prohibit hard liquor.

Park Ridge—Bone dry before prohibition but now licenses beer and will continue to do so, prohibiting hard liquor after repeal.

Riverside—Dry before prohibition but now permits sale of beer in restricted sections. Not expected to license selling of hard liquor.

No Taverns in Western Springs.

Western Springs—Bottle beer now permitted, but no taverns tolerated. This situation expected to continue after repeal.

Wilmette—Ordinance prohibits sale of anything stronger than ½ of 1 per cent, but it may be purchased elsewhere and taken into homes.

Winnetka—Dry by charter since incorporation in 1869.

Zion—Dry charter. Will not permit 3.2.

The board of supervisors of Lake county will meet Dec. 12 to consider the question of regulating liquor outside of incorporated villages and towns.

DRIVER IS HELD IN KILLING AFTER TALE OF HOLDUP

John Beiger, 2101 South 47th court, Cicero, a taxicab driver, was held to the grand jury on a manslaughter charge yesterday after he admitted to a coroner's jury that he had told police a false story of leaving the scene of a fatal accident. The victim, struck by the taxicab at 52d avenue and Cermak road in Cicero on Nov. 14, was Albert Berney, 60 years old, 2230 South Harvey avenue, Berwyn.

Three hours after the accident, Beiger appeared at the Cicero police station and gave a statement that two robbers had compelled him to leave the scene by threatening him with revolvers. He was not held at the time.

Yesterday, before entering the inquest room, Beiger said his conscience had been bothering him and that he wished to tell the truth. Excitement made him leave the scene, he said, and he made up the bandit story.

NEWFOUNDLAND BANKRUPT; FACES SELF-RULE LOSS

Britain Proposes to Take Control of Dominion.

BY JOHN M. BROWNE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Nov. 21.—Newfoundland, Great Britain's first overseas colony and youngest dominion, today learned that the mother country proposes to punish it for "getting into a financial jam." Newfoundland is to be deprived of self-government and demoted to the status of a crown colony.

This prospective punishment was announced today in the report of the royal commission of three named early this year to investigate Newfoundland's troubled financial affairs.

Charges Reckless Waste.

The report charges that Newfoundland's debt, which has reached the point where the interest consumes 50 per cent of the state's income, is "largely due to reckless waste and extravagance and to the absence of constructive and efficient administration."

The debt was engendered, the report continued, "by a political system which for a generation has been abused and exploited for personal and party ends."

The commission asserted that in its opinion it is impossible for the island to surmount, unaided, its difficulties. The commission, therefore, recommended the suspension of the existing self-administered form of government and its replacement by a commission of six, three to be appointed by the British government and three by Newfoundland.

Would Have Full Powers.

This commission, according to the commission's proposal, would have full executive and legislative powers. It would be presided over by the governor, who is named by the king, and would supplant the present legislature and executive council until the island has once again become self-supporting.

The Newfoundland legislature will meet Monday to vote on acceptance or rejection of the commission's proposals. Much bitter opposition to the plan is already being voiced.

The royal commission's report revealed an offer by the British government to assume general responsibility for the island's accounts. Holders of the major part of the dominion's public debt would be offered a conversion loan in exchange for existing bonds or stocks at 3 per cent, redeemable in whole or part any time after at least ten years, but less than 30 years. The principal and interest would be guaranteed by Great Britain.

May Become Canadian Province.

It is proposed to advertise the offer in Canada and the United States immediately after passing the necessary legislation.

The royal commission—composed of Lord Amulree, Sir William Stavert, financial adviser to Newfoundland, and Charles A. Magrath of Canada—was named last January. Magrath's inclusion is believed to have been due to the possibility that Newfoundland ultimately may constitute a tenth province of Canada. Although public opinion in Newfoundland opposes such a step, discussions are now proceeding along that line.

First Oversees Colony.

Newfoundland was the first of Great Britain's overseas colonies. Discovered by John Cabot in 1497, it was given exclusive British sovereignty in 1713 by the treaty of Utrecht with France. It was granted responsible government in 1855 and was made a self-governing dominion in 1926.

Newfoundland also includes Labrador under its government. One of the suggested solutions for the island's difficulties has been to sell Labrador to Canada, paying the public debt with the proceeds.

Revision of British protectorates and colonies to direct government from London has occurred frequently. Only last month the Maltese legislature was suspended and direct British government imposed. With dominions, however, where the executive is chiefly responsible to his own legislature instead of to the crown, resumption of rule in the name of King George represents a far greater step.

TO LOSE SELF-RULE

A royal commission of investigation yesterday recommended that Newfoundland be deprived of its dominion status and placed under control of a commission of six. This recommendation was made after investigation revealed the hopeless financial condition of the dominion.

RIOT AT PRISON QUELLED BY 500 IN PHILADELPHIA

Police Reserves Subdue 75 Angry Convicts.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 21.—(AP)—In the most damaging riot in the century long history of Eastern State penitentiary seventy-five prisoners broke into open revolt within the walls today.

Taking advantage of the "yard out" call, marking the exercise period for the 1,300 prisoners confined in the institution, the 75 rioters smashed machinery in the shops, fired the dye house and kitchen, and damaged the chaplain's quarters.

A city-wide police alarm was sounded and 500 police were rushed to the scene to augment the details of state troopers that have been stationed within the walls for several weeks since the first of a series of disorders. The latest of those was on Sunday, when a group of prisoners made a vain attempt to escape over the walls by means of a makeshift ladder.

Today's outbreak follows a controversy between Gov. Pinchot and Henry N. Woolman, president of the board of trustees of the penitentiary. The governor demanded the resignation of Woolman on the ground that he was responsible for the former outbreaks because he did not reduce the crowded condition of the institution by sending 500 prisoners to the new penitentiary at Graterford.

Woolman refused to resign, countercharging that the governor was responsible for the disorder because he did not heed the requests of the board for funds to make the transfer. The governor dismissed Woolman yesterday and today appointed Dr. Louis Newton Robinson, widely known for his interest in penal work, in his place.

ENGINEER BOARD TO PASS ON CWA WORK PROJECTS

Elaborate Machinery Set Up to Prevent Waste.

An elaborate machinery to supervise the approval of civil works projects and the disbursing of federal funds under the CWA administration reemployment program was ordered set up yesterday by Robert J. Dunham, CWA administrator for Illinois.

Illinois will have approximately $20,000,000 to distribute to 187,000 men who are to be employed by the civil works administration for a ninety day period. Hundreds of civil projects must be approved in order that these men may be given work to do.

Create Engineering Board.

To safeguard against the approval of needless and extravagant projects and the wasting of federal money, the CWA administration has taken the following steps:

1. The creation of an organization of civil engineers to pass upon and approve or disapprove the civil projects outlined by the city and county officials of the state.

2. The setting up of an agency to distribute pay roll money under the direction of the Illinois veterans' bureau and bonded state and federal bank officials.

U. of I. Engineers to Help.

"I have consulted A. H. Daniels, acting president of the University of Illinois," Mr. Dunham said, "and asked him for the assistance of the civil engineering department of the university. This has been granted.

"Prof. W. C. Huntingdon of the department of engineering of the university has been here for two days. A committee of prominent engineers to act as an advisory committee on civil projects will be headed by him."

Members of the committee will be Albert Reichmann, assistant chief engineer of the American Bridge company; Alonzo J. Hammond, president of the American Society of Civil Engineers; C. C. Whittier, president of the Chicago Engineers' club; Mangus Gundersen, chief structural engineer for the firm of Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, architects; Daniel J. Bromley, chief engineer of the Chicago Railway Terminals and president of the Western Society of Engineers; C. B. Burdick, consulting municipal and sanitary engineer, and Chester M. McChesney, vice president of the Acme Steel company.

Volunteer Their Services.

This committee has already begun to function. The members have volunteered their services and receive no pay, Mr. Dunham said. Prof. Huntingdon will act as chairman and other civil engineers will be selected to act for the CWA in the examination of preferred civil projects throughout the state.

William W. Weldon, as the Illinois representative of the veterans' bureau, will be chief of the disbursing agents in the state, it was announced. He, together with Emil A. Stake, vice president of the First National bank, will select disbursing agents in each county of the state.

These agents will be selected from federal and state banks and must be approved by the federal reserve agent or the state supervisor of banks. All agents will be bonded by the government without expense to themselves. They will sign the pay checks in the form of federal warrants with which the men will be paid, it was explained.

25,000 at Work in County.

The assignment of men on the relief rolls to jobs in Cook county was proceeding yesterday with more smoothness than on the first day, when misunderstandings and technicalities caused some confusion. About 25,000 men were at work yesterday and it is hoped before Dec. 1 to have about 49,000 in their new jobs. After Dec. 1 unemployed men not on relief rolls will be eligible for employment until the 99,260 jobs allotted the county are filled.

Victor A. Olander, who has been designated by Mr. Dunham to supervise the selection of the unemployed not on relief, yesterday was setting up an organization so that this class of unemployed may apply for jobs. Employment agencies will be set up in each of the state's 102 counties. An announcement as to when applications may be filed will be made later this week.

Discuss Idle Teachers.

Supt. William J. Bogan of the Chicago public schools yesterday conferred with Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the CWA administration, regarding the possible employment of teachers out of work. Supt. Bogan said he had prepared a program whereby 332 teachers could go immediately to work for the CWA. He hopes for the eventual employment of 750 teachers.

The teachers would be employed in the instruction of adult illiterates in English, civics, reading, and writing. Any vacant building could be utilized for schoolrooms. They would receive $1.10 an hour for a thirty hour week, being classed as "skilled labor."

Twelve hundred and fifty teachers, laid off the school pay rolls because of the school board's economy program, have been studying at Normal college in order to obtain regular teaching certificates. Most of these hitherto taught physical education, household arts, and the like.

More than 600 will be given their certificates next Friday and from this number about 300 will be absorbed into the school system to fill vacancies caused by deaths and retirements. The remainder would be available for CWA employment.

Mayor Kelly talked to Gov. Horner over the telephone yesterday regarding the mayor's suggestion that the law be amended to permit the city's portion of the gasoline tax to be used for the purchase of supplies for CWA street projects. He said the governor had the matter under consideration. Release of the money would mean the employment of many thousands of men on the repair of streets who would not otherwise be employed because of the government's objection to the purchase of supplies and materials with CWA funds.

Explain Work Status.

The CWA staff explained that families who have a son working in one of the civil conservation corps camps will not be discriminated against in the employment of other members of the family. The families receive $25 of the $30 paid the worker in camp, but that is no reason why other men in the family should not benefit by the CWA reemployment program, it was stated.

Plans for rehabilitation of 100 public schools at a cost of more than $1,000,000 were placed before the CWA staff for approval. The jobs planned involve the painting, varnishing and decorating of interiors and exteriors of school buildings, some of which have not been painted for six or seven years. Among the schools to benefit, if the projects are approved, are the Crane Technical, Roosevelt, Calumet, Fenger, Foreman Junior, Marshall, and Manley Junior High schools.

100,000 ESTIMATED BACK AT WORK ON U. S. RELIEF PROJECTS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A compilation of estimates by state officials today placed at upward of 100,000 the number of unemployed who have gone back to work at tasks set by the civil works administration.

The estimates by these officials added that plans were under way for putting other hundreds of thousands to work during the next few weeks.

The jobs of the civil works administration are designed to take the unemployed off relief rolls and put them on pay rolls.

Pilot Is Seriously Burned in Leap from Mail Plane

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Jim Ingram, 34, Burbank, Cal., American Airways pilot, was burned seriously when he jumped from his flaming mail plane today. Before jumping, Ingram threw out two mail sacks. His parachute failed to open completely.

JOBS FOR IDLE WOMEN PLANNED WITH U. S. FUNDS

Relief Agencies Ready to Expand Activities.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Efforts of Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt to stimulate the creation of work projects for 400,000 unemployed women of the country, at a meeting at the White House on Monday, were anticipated in Chicago many months ago, inquiry revealed yesterday. Through the activities of the Illinois Emergency Relief, hundreds of women on the relief rolls are at present earning their way and at the same time aiding in the care of other unemployed.

Mrs. Mary Moon, director of the service bureau for women, at 126 North Wells street, which during the two years of its existence has handled approximately 11,000 individual cases, sketched briefly the methods utilized. Mrs. Moon is director of women's relief for Illinois.

Plan to Create Projects.

"When part of the $400,000,000 appropriated for relief this winter is made available to help jobless women in Chicago we will have no difficulty in creating the projects that will set them to work," she explained. "We have many women on the relief rolls who are capable of doing office work. The Chicago relief agencies have absorbed many of them. Others are employed in a laundry at 5059 Vincennes avenue, where the garments from the men's shelters are cleaned.

"Then there is always a great deal of sewing to be done and we have others busy at that. For instance, at 6407 South Park way there is a workshop where clothing is made for the Red Cross and other unemployed women and where quilts and other articles are made up for relief roll clients. We have placed teachers, and cleaning women, and domestic help, and we could quickly expand these and launch other projects if they could be financed."

400 on Work Relief Program.

At present 2,300 women are receiving aid from the service bureau, Mrs. Moon reported. Of that number 400 are on the work relief program. The rest are being assisted with food, room rent, clothing, and in other ways.

At the Municipal Home for Women, opened two years ago tomorrow at 5120 South Park way, Miss Dorothy De La Pole reported that 180 women are lodged in the institution. Occupational therapy provides work for practically all, repairing their own or others' garments, weaving rugs and baskets, making their own scrubbing brushes and numerous articles for use around the home.

180 CWA Workers Make Traffic Survey in Loop

Under the supervision of Leslie J. Sorenson, city traffic engineer, 180 men of the CWA, working in three shifts, counted traffic in Wabash avenue between Lake and Adams streets yesterday between 6 a. m. and midnight. The city now for the first time, according to Sorenson, has an adequate force to make a complete traffic survey in the loop.

BRAIN TRUSTERS OF NRA CALLED "NINCOMPOOPS"

Republican Attacks Recovery Plan.

The New Deal and the brain trust are leading America away from the constitution, the Hamilton club was told last night by former Congressman Dewey Short of Missouri. Moreover, he added, the administration "has betrayed not only the American people but the Democratic party as well."

Mr. Short is a Republican. His address followed by several months the denunciation of the national administration also delivered before the club by former Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, another Republican. The speeches were a part of the club's plans to "revitalize" the party locally.

Calls Them "Nincompoops."

Former Congressman Short described the brain trust, which he held responsible for much of the unconstitutionality of the recovery legislation, as a group of "theoretical, intellectual, professorial nincompoops of Columbia university." The present congress which enacted the legislation was tagged as "the most supine, supercilious, soporific, pusillanimous body of nitwits ever gathered beneath the dome of the capitol in Washington."

To prove his point against congress, Short charged that during the last session, the members "contrary to all law and precedent and in violation of the constitution itself, cowardly surrendered their constitutional prerogatives and duties to the executive branch of government and abrogated the power which the people vested in them.

"Instead of the people voicing their sentiments through their legally chosen representatives," he declared, "a little group of wilful, conceited, autocratic bureaucrats, known as the brain trust, daily legislates for the entire nation. They reject today what they advocated yesterday; and will repudiate tomorrow the stand they took today. No one knows where we are, and we continue to flounder upon an unknown and uncharted sea. Government today is one of whim and fancy, not one of law and order. There is no coherence, coördination, logic nor common sense in it."

Brands NRA as Unsound.

While no one would question the motive or the honesty of purpose of the President in his attempts to bring back prosperity, Mr. Short said, the NRA, upon which is based the hope of recovery "is unwise, unsound, unworkable and unconstitutional."

"The time has arrived," said the former congressman, "when as honest and patriotic citizens and for our future protection we must openly and frankly express our opposition to a scheme so foolish, foreign and contrary to the spirit and genius of the American people.

"If selfishness could be eliminated from human nature, and if we could repeal the natural economic law of supply and demand, the NRA might possibly work, but unfortunately the whole thing is an idle and impotent dream."

In conclusion, Mr. Short said that "what America needs mostly today is a return to the Republicanism of our fathers, which will restore America to constitutional representative government."

CLOTHING STORE CLERK ROBBED.

Central police yesterday were seeking a gunman who took $30 Monday night in a robbery of Omah Stevenson, clerk in the Louis Arons Furnishing store at 30 South Clark street.

COMPANY SEEKS WRIT TO BLOCK NRA LABOR QUIZ

Board Faces Hearing in Woodstock Today.

The first attempt to restrain the regional labor board from pursuing its investigations of strikes will be threshed out today in the court of Circuit Judge Edward Shurtleff at Woodstock. The board was recently set up in Chicago under the NRA to arbitrate labor disputes.

The board was made defendant in injunction proceedings instituted by the National Lock company of Rockford when board representatives began an inquiry into that concern's difficulties with its employés. The labor controversy was referred to the regional board by the national labor board in Washington.

Dr. John A. Lapp, board secretary, and James Mullenbach, national labor board mediator, were served with summons in the suit last Friday when they went to Rockford and opened their investigation into the labor dispute. They continued their hearing, however, though they heard only the side of the workers.

Company to Ask Injunction.

Yesterday the board was served with notice that attorneys for the lock company would appear today before Judge Shurtleff and seek a permanent injunction restraining the board from holding hearings or publishing the findings of their investigations in the company's case.

The injunction is to be asked on the ground that the company is not involved in a labor dispute, that it now has working all the men needed and that an investigation can only do harm to the concern.

Dr. Lapp termed the entire procedure ridiculous, declaring that the company's attorneys had apparently overlooked the point that a state court has no jurisdiction over federal officials. He said that though the board could have ignored the action the matter has been turned over to the office of the United States district attorney in Chicago.

500 Now on Strike, Lapp Says.

Dr. Lapp said there was little doubt that the company has been involved in labor difficulties. About 1,200 men went on strike two months ago, he said, and though approximately half of that number have gone back to work there are at least 500 men still on strike who want the situation cleared up.

The regional board held a hearing in Chicago yesterday at which the presentation of evidence in the Greyhound Bus Lines' case was concluded. Dr. Lapp said the board felt confident it had worked out a basis for the settlement of the strike of 50 mechanics of the bus line which has been in progress for more than two months.

Ickes Donates 100 Millions to Clean Up Big Cities' Slums

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes today turned 100 million dollars of his fast ebbing federal easy money fund over to a new federal housing corporation which will start slum clearance work in cities throughout the country, including Chicago.

Allocation of 100 million dollars to the housing experiment leaves only about 460 million dollars of the 3 billion 300 million dollars easy money fund unallotted. By the end of December the remaining millions are expected to have vanished.

Tentative Allotments Considered.

To prevent certain Chicago public works projects, such as 33 million dollars' worth of construction in the sanitary district and completion of the outer drive bridge, from being left high and dry by exhaustion of the easy money, the public works administration is considering tentative allotments to them, it was learned today.

Such a procedure is especially likely on the sanitary district application. Granting of the 33 millions is contingent upon legislative action, and a tentative allotment may be made with the understanding that it will be withdrawn if the legislature does not grant to the sanitary board powers to charge fees and take certain other steps Ickes believes necessary.

Detroit Slums First.

At the same time that he announced the 100 million dollar allotment for housing, Ickes revealed that the first slum clearance project by his housing corporation will be in Detroit. Between three and four million dollars will be spent on a "model" housing project there.

Tenants will be able to rent suites in the federal government apartment for $6.30 per room.

ATTORNEY ASKS TRIAL AT ONCE IN FRAUD PLOT CASE

Attorney John H. S. Lee, under indictment on a charge of conspiracy to defraud stockholders of the defunct Security Life Insurance company appeared yesterday before Judge Benjamin Epstein and demanded an immediate trial.

Attorney Lee, Machir J. Dorsey, former president of the insurance company, and seven other defendants were indicted last April on charges of conspiracy to defraud the stockholders by means of inflated mortgages.

"I am innocent, a prominent member of the bar, and am entitled to be cleared or convicted," Attorney Lee said. "I want a chance to prove my innocence immediately."

Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley said that the state did not want to go to trial until after the holiday season. Judge Epstein announced that he would rule today on the trial date after hearing further arguments.

PLAN TO INDICT WIFE FOR KILLING SHELDON CLARK

Consider Special Session of Grand Jury.

Paulsboro, N. J., Nov. 21.—[Special]—While Mrs. Sheldon A. Clark insisted from her hospital bed today that she remembered nothing of the actual shooting of her husband yesterday, the Gloucester county authorities ordered a special session of the grand jury to consider her indictment for the slaying.

Police guarding Mrs. Clark, who is suffering from a severe scalp wound, quoted her as saying:

"Nobody will ever know how much I cared for him and how much I had to put up with. I can't tell why I did it. I don't remember anything after he hit me."

The shooting was the climax of an altercation between Clark, the son of Commodore Sheldon Clark of Chicago, and his wife, who appeared on the stage some years ago under the name of Audrey Smith. Clark is alleged to have struck her over the head with a billiard cue.

Father to Stand by Her.

Mrs. Clark remained under technical arrest at the Underwood hospital in Woodbury, where she was permitted to receive her two sons, Sheldon A. Clark III., 6 years old, and Harry, 4. David W. Smith, her father, was also admitted to her room for a few moments. He declared that he intended to "stand by her."

Clark, according to investigators, was "flat broke." He was on a compulsory two months vacation without pay, which was to have ended Jan. 1, when he was to have resumed work for the Sinclair Refining company, of which his father is vice president, detectives said. The police asserted that he had been a heavy drinker.

Chief of Police Winfield Mattson of Paulsboro, a close friend of Clark, said today that Clark had told him a week ago that "my father won't send me any money and I shan't get any till I go back to work."

Inquiries About Weapons.

Detective W. C. Apgar quoted Mrs. Savevia Brown, housekeeper in the Clark home, as saying that Mrs. Clark had asked her a week ago to find out how much a collection of firearms and other weapons owned by Clark would bring at pawn, because Clark had threatened to pawn them and leave with the money.

He added that he had learned that as long as a year ago Clark had threatened his wife with a sabre from this collection, that she had returned to the fray with a baseball bat and that neighbors had separated them.

An autopsy showed that the fatal bullet had entered Clark's chest through the breastbone, had glanced against a rib and had emerged under the left shoulder blade after piercing the left lung. The results of an x-ray examination were being awaited in order to determine whether or not Mrs. Clark had a fractured skull.

Deputy Attorney General Lynwood Lord, in charge of the case, said late today that testimony taken from witnesses "points to premeditation." He declined to name the witnesses or give the details of their testimony.

FATHER LEAVES FOR BURIAL.

Sheldon Clark and his son, Harry, yesterday left Chicago to go to Paulsboro, N. J. They left word that funeral arrangements would be made in the east, and indicated that Sheldon A. Clark's body would not be returned here.

Mrs. Clark, step-mother of the slain man, did not make the trip east because of ill health, according to Emil C. Wetten, an attorney and neighbor of the family. Another son, Carrington, lives in Pittsburgh, and the daughter, Bonnie Jean, is attending school in New York City.

AUTO, RUNNING BACKWARD, IS GOING AHEAD

Or Is It Going Ahead by Backing Up?

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Harry Hartz, automobile racing driver and theorist in aerodynamics, gave 5th avenue the jitters today when he drove from Central Park to 48th street in a sedan the body of which was reversed.

The trip, which was intended to prove that the normal sedan body will travel faster when going backwards, failed to bring home that point because of traffic congestion, but it caused a loss of seven years' growth to pedestrians, traffic policemen, reporters, and orthodox car drivers.

The machine rolled into the parking place at the Central Park Casino, rear end first, and Mr. Hartz emerged from the rear seat, which would have been the front seat under normal conditions. A group of taxi drivers, patrolmen, boys, reporters, and park strollers who had seen the thing go by assembled to hear its driver explain the contraption.

Maker Describes It.

His description included the following salient points:

The body is that of a normal sedan, but reversed on the chassis. The car has three speeds reverse and one forward, or vice versa, depending on how you look at it. The headlights are at the rear and the taillight is at the front. The steering wheel is in the usual position, but the driver sits in front of it instead of behind it.

The steering is done by the rear wheels, or what would be the front wheels on the usual car. The front seats face the back and back seats face the front. Thus a passenger in the back seat really is in front, but faces the back with his back toward the front, which really is the back. The windshield wiper operates on the back window. The drive is in the back, but actually amounts to a front wheel drive. The rear windows are increased in area to give the visibility highly necessary in a car of this type.

Then the Fighting Begins.

By the time Mr. Hartz finished his explanation two taxi drivers were in a fist fight over which was the front of the car, a pair of reporters had thrown away their pencils and were silently chewing up their note paper, a patrolman was shouting traffic directions to an imaginary traffic snarl, and several other spectators were busy chasing a squirrel up a tree.

"Now," said Mr. Hartz, "we'll go for a spin." His winning manner induced three members of the group to enter the machine, which dashed backwards onto the park drive and south into Fifth avenue.

Judging from the facial expressions of traffic policemen in the avenue, the car might as well have been a sea elephant in a pair of green pajamas. Usually the restraining whistle hung undecided in the gloved hand until the car had passed and was a block away.

At 48th street the car turned left to the Barclay hotel. Mr. Hartz explained that he had found that by reversing the body of the ordinary sedan the car encountered about 20 per cent less wind resistance and that it would obtain greater speed with less gasoline. The traffic cops breathed freely again.

Nine Conservation Corps Youths Injured in Tornado

Anniston, Ala., Nov. 21.—(AP)—At least nine youths were reported injured by a tornado that struck a civilian conservation corps camp six miles east of Oxford early tonight. Three of the more seriously injured were brought to a hospital here. They were Cecil Ford and Gilbert Taylor of Birmingham and James Peek of Bradford, Ala. Others injured were taken to Fort McClellan.

GREATEST QUAKE ON RECORD ROCKS NORTH POLE AREA

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The greatest earthquake on record, which jiggled seismographs all over the world yesterday, was traced today to a remote and uninhabited spot in the icy wastes of Baffin bay, between Greenland and Baffin island, where there were no tall buildings to be shaken down and probably no lives to be lost.

Seismologists, piecing together the puzzle of yesterday's "mystery temblor," finally placed it at 2,300 miles away from New York. They attributed the absence of life and property loss entirely to the fact that it was confined to a remote and barren part of the world.

Near North Pole.

The Rev. Joseph Lynch, S. J., in charge of the Fordham Seismographic laboratory, termed the quake especially remarkable for its proximity to the north pole.

"I never heard of one happening so far north," Father Lynch said. "Usually we look for earth tremors in the equatorial belt, where the centrifugal force is strongest."

For a while it was believed that the temblor had centered somewhere in the region of Central America. Father Lynch compared the shock in severity and length to those in 1929, which tore up thirteen trans-Atlantic cables 300 miles from here off Newfoundland.

Two distinct shocks were recorded on all the important seismographs throughout the world. They were timed at 5:28:03 p. m. and 5:33:18 p. m. [central standard time].

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAIN, Germany, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Seismographs at the Earthquake institute reacted violently beginning shortly after midnight and continuing for several hours early today. It was estimated the shocks were about 2,880 miles distant at an undetermined location.

SUMMIT CHIEF SUSPENDED IN POLICE SHAKEUP

Motorcycle Policeman Nicholas Henke yesterday became temporary chief of police of Summit in a shakeup of the police force ordered by the village board because there was "too much fixing," according to Mayor Richard P. Lambert.

Chief Andrew Botz was suspended for one month without pay and Capt. Michael Foran was demoted to desk sergeant for the same period. The board also voted to transfer all police cases from the court of Police Magistrate Sam Herzog to that of Justice of the Peace Ira P. Lambert, a brother of the mayor.

Prof. Sprague Protests Depreciation Policy.

Approximately a billion dollars is believed to be available to the treasury for this purpose. Secretary Morgenthau is seeking to ascertain the exact amount now in balances, such as the postal savings fund and revolving funds. He is watching the bond market closely.

Text of Letter.

Prof. Sprague's letter to the President follows:

"My Dear Mr. President: Six months ago, at your urgent request, I left London and accepted the post of financial and executive assistant to the secretary of the treasury. I accepted this position because I believed at that time that I was sufficiently in agreement with you on monetary matters to be able to render some service in the working out of policies designed to bring about a trade recovery.

"Unhappily I now find that I am in such fundamental disagreement with the monetary policies which have recently been adopted that I have decided to resign my post in the treasury. It is possible that there might still be a meeting of minds had I been afforded any opportunity to discuss policies with you. But no opportunities whatever have been afforded me since my return from London in July, after your rejection of the arrangements to steady the foreign exchanges during the period of the conference.

Opposed for Two Reasons.

"I am opposed to the present policy of depreciating the dollar through gold purchases in foreign markets for two reasons. I am convinced that this policy will prove ineffective in securing a speedy rise in prices. This is not because of any inability to depreciate the dollar.

"When a government announces its determination to depreciate its own currency it can certainly accomplish that result, and without the necessity of acquiring any considerable amounts of gold in other countries, since no sensible person will desire in such circumstances to acquire more of the currency.

"But mere depreciation of the currency in relation to the currencies of other countries will not bring about a general rise in prices in the absence of widespread distrust of the currency, at a time when there is a large excess plant capacity and millions of unemployed wage earners.

"An advance in prices that has any promise of being maintained requires the development of conditions that will permit a sustained demand for more labor and more materials, with resultant increase in the production of goods and services and a higher standard of living.

Rests on Unstable Footing.

"There is nothing in the depreciation of the dollar to induce this increased demand for materials and labor. A few prices will rise particularly those of commodities, such as cotton, that are exported in large amounts. Similarly, prices of such imports as rubber and coffee will rise.

"A few other commodities that are not exported but are subject to speculative transactions in organized markets may advance in price somewhat, but the advance will rest on an unstable foundation, since there is nothing in the depreciation of the dollar to increase domestic consumption.

"Doubtless, given time, a depreciated dollar or a devalued dollar, will yield a higher price level. But this will only come when the desired trade recovery has been realized. Our immediate concern is to extricate ourselves from the depression, rather than with the course of prices after that happy event.

"Finally, and of overshadowing importance, the present policy threatens a complete breakdown of the credit of the government. The recovery program involves expenditures far in excess of current revenues. Certainly as much as 2 billion dollars must be borrowed during the remainder of the fiscal year.

"Bonds, including government bonds, are an unsatisfactory investment at a time when a government is determined to depreciate its currency. Already many issues of government securities have dropped below par including the issue that was brought out in October.

"I believe you are faced with the alternative either of giving up the present policy or of meeting of government expenditures with additional paper money. You will then no doubt secure a rise in prices, for you will be faced with distrust of the currency, already manifest in a growing flight from the dollar, but extending into a frantic desire to hold anything other than currency or securities yielding a fixed interest return.

Another Wave of Distrust.

"We are a mercurial people. The memory of post-war depreciation of currencies in Europe is still fresh. We have recently experienced distrust of banks spreading like wildfire throughout the country. A similar wave of currency distrust threatens.

"I have retained my present position for many weeks, hoping against hope that wiser counsels might prevail. I have now reached the conclusion that there is no defense from a drift into unrestrained inflation other than an aroused and organized public opinion. It is for the purpose of contributing as I may to such a movement that, with feelings of profound disappointment I sever my connection with your administration.

"Very truly yours,

Roosevelt Satisfied.

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Satisfaction, rather than dismay, marked the receipt here by President Roosevelt of the news that O. M. W. Sprague, special treasury adviser, had handed in his resignation and had accompanied the resignation with a denunciation of the present monetary policy as one of threatening uncontrolled inflation.

If observers correctly interpreted the President's reaction to the news, it was that he believed that the treasury had lost an adviser who looked upon the monetary question with British, rather than American, eyes.

Mr. Sprague's three years service as adviser to the Bank of England was the first thing recalled here when word of his action was received. And it became most probable, despite the official silence, that Mr. Roosevelt was recalling the same thing.

The Sprague appointment is to be regarded as a bit of diplomatic strategy that did not work, and his retirement as a piece of house cleaning which had not been done before because of Secretary of the Treasury Woodin's absence, through illness, from active management of departmental affairs.

It is common knowledge that, instead of doing so, Mr. Sprague sought to commit the American government to stabilization of the dollar at a high figure, a course contrary to that desired by the President and one which Mr. Roosevelt considered to be playing directly into Britain's hands.

The result was that the President, early in July when he was on his way home from a cruise up the Maine coast, was led to issue his now famous statement pronouncing the unwillingness of the United States to enter into any governmental stabilization agreement at that time. Since that time Mr. Sprague has been occupying a distinctly back seat among the ranks of advisers.

His attitude, as expressed in his letter of resignation, is regarded here as quite in keeping with his former point of view—that is, that it is colored by thought of the European, particularly the British, monetary problem, instead of that of the United States.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—From the "little White House" here President Roosevelt today issued 1933's Thanksgiving proclamation. His summons to Americans to set aside Nov. 30, as a day of gratitude to their Maker constituted a "new deal" in the record of proclamations dating back to President Washington.

No array of "whereases" studded the document. Instead of concluding, the executive summons headed the proclamation, which read as follows:

"I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do set aside and appoint Thursday, the thirtieth day of November, 1933, to be a day of thanksgiving for all our people.

"May we on that day in our churches and in our homes give humble thanks for the blessings bestowed upon us during the year past by Almighty God.

"May we recall the courage of those who settled a wilderness, the vision of those who founded the nation, the steadfastness of those who in every succeeding generation have fought to keep pure the ideal of equality of opportunity and hold clear the goal of mutual help in time of prosperity as in time of adversity.

"May we ask guidance in more surely learning the ancient truth that greed and selfishness and striving for undue riches can never bring lasting happiness or good to the individual or to his neighbors.

* * *

"May we be grateful for the passing of dark days; for the new spirit of dependence one on another; for the closer unity of all parts of our wide land; for the greater friendship between employers and those who toil; for a clearer knowledge by all nations that we seek no conquests and ask only honorable engagements by all peoples to respect the lands and rights of their neighbors; for the brighter day to which we can win through by seeking the help of God in a more unselfish striving for the common bettering of mankind.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

ROOSEVELT KEEPS UP SWIMMING EXERCISES AT GEORGIA SPRINGS

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt is devoting a portion of his vacation here to a resumption of the exercises and treatments which enabled him to win back all but the full use of his legs following his affliction with infantile paralysis a dozen years ago.

He swam and exercised today in the pool of warm mineral water whose benefit brought him to Warm Springs. Commander Ross T. McIntyre, U. S. N., White House physician, is to come to the Springs to study the methods followed here. The White House is equipped with a pool which is kept at the same temperature as that of the pool here.

The President was joined this evening by his son, Franklin D. Jr., and Keith Vaughan Morgan, a classmate at Harvard.

The President drove his own car for a couple of hours this afternoon. He had with him Joseph M. Schenck, movie president, who came to talk about the code for the movies which he has opposed.

NEW TREASURY ORDER CAUSES PRESS PROTEST

Reporters Fear Plan for Censorship.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today had laid before him the question of stopping a censorship of news by Henry Morgenthau Jr., his recently appointed acting secretary of the treasury.

In a formal protest which they telegraphed to the President at Warm Springs, Ga., correspondents covering the treasury told the President that the censorship imposed by Secretary Morgenthau was breaking down good will which the treasury had spent 15 years building up.

Protest Follows Order.

The protest followed the disclosure this morning by Secretary Morgenthau that the first order he had issued was one directing not only that information must come from a central office, but that speeches by officials must be presented for review by him before being given.

Throughout the day questions which the newspapermen previously had had answered by subordinate officials met with the uniform answer of "See Mr. Gaston," referring to Herbert E. Gaston, newly appointed assistant to the secretary who has been put in charge of information.

Inquiries for the public debt charges in 1876, for public health figures on the infant mortality from croup in 1925, and for the liquor stocks in Pennsylvania were all referred to Mr. Gaston, who has spent only four days in the treasury's complex organization.

Bank News Is Delayed.

Officials concerned with the reopening of closed banks who previously have announced developments today refused to reveal the status of a bank reopening, although all papers relating to the transactions were lying before them on their desks.

Censorship Denied.

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—A telegram of protest from correspondents covering the treasury department was transmitted to the President. The task of making a statement concerning it was delegated to Stephen T. Early, one of the President's secretaries.

"The President feels sure that Mr. Morgenthau intends no gag upon the press," Mr. Early said.

"I am confident that newspaper correspondents will be entirely satisfied in the end. The treasury is the only department that has never had a central office of information. As one of the results, treasury news has sometimes lacked in accuracy. The order, therefore, will prove, I believe, to be in the interest of accurate news and does not signify any censorship."

FEDERAL TAX BURDEN SETTING RECORD IN PEACE

Incomes Lag; Other Levies Grow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—America is carrying the heaviest burden of federal miscellaneous internal revenue taxation in its history, treasury department records revealed today.

Miscellaneous internal revenue, coming mainly from taxes on cigarets, gasoline, beer, checks, and the processing of agricultural commodities, is rolling into the treasury at a rate never before equaled.

Collections of these so-called miscellaneous taxes through Oct. 31, announced today by the treasury, amounted to almost 607 million dollars. Continuing at this rate, they will yield the treasury more than 1 billion 920 million dollars before the fiscal year closes on next June 30.

If they achieve this total they will break all records by 460 millions.

While the miscellaneous taxes, which are based largely on the consumer of commodities, such as gasoline and wheat, are mounting, the income tax, formerly the source of 60 per cent of the government's income, continues to dwindle to new low levels. The decline has not been checked by the raising of rates a year ago.

Through Oct. 31 the income tax had brought in less than 171 million dollars, a decline of 17 millions under the total for the same date a year ago. Processing taxes on wheat, cotton, and tobacco are forming an important part in the increasing tax burden. Out of a gain of 346 million dollars in miscellaneous collections this year over last, the processing taxes represent more than 68¼ millions.

Earmarked for the payment of benefits to farmers who participate in the administration's acreage reduction program, the processing taxes thus far have been far outdistanced by the doles paid out to farmers. On Oct. 31, when the processing taxes had produced 68 millions, the benefits paid out were more than 116 millions.

Other important miscellaneous taxes are those on cigarets, gasoline, beer, checks, electric energy, tires, automobiles, estates, tobacco, dividends, and excess profits. Repeal of the 18th amendment will cause the automatic ending of the dividends and excess profits taxes and of a half cent of 1½ cent federal gasoline tax.

Assails Show of Wealth "as People Starve."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Before King George, Queen Mary, the prince of Wales, diplomats, and the assembled lords and members of the house of commons, gathered in the house of lords for the state opening of parliament, John McGovern, fiery Independent Laborite, today was the author of an incident unprecedented in the centuries of British representative government.

McGovern bellowed forth with a denunciation of the show of wealth "while people are starving outside," just as the king had concluded his speech. His irate tirade was flung forth to a rigid and apparently unhearing audience. Not a member of the royal family batted an eye and only one member of parliament, the American born Lady Astor, tried to restrain the hoarse, choking Scotsman as he barked out.

King Ignores Incident.

There was a flutter in the gallery, where women, sparkling with diamond tiaras, sat watching the proceedings below, but the king and queen moved serenely from the house without a sign that they had noticed the interruption.

It was a gorgeously attired assembly which had come to hear the "gracious speech from the throne," written by the cabinet, with which each new parliament is opened. The king received the speech from the kneeling lord chancellor, Stanley Baldwin, and began to read. He reached the end and had concluded with the traditional, "And I pray the blessings of Almighty God may rest upon your deliberations," when McGovern broke loose.

"What about the abolition of the means test [in determining dole recipients] and unemployment relief cuts," he demanded.

"Gang of Lazy Parasites."

One or two ambassadors sitting near the throne and peeresses in the galleries turned their heads, but the king appeared unperturbed. He arose and slowly extended his hand. The queen accepted it while McGovern stood muttering among his excited colleagues. As their majesties approached the robing room he burst out again.

"You're a gang of lazy and idle parasites living on wealth created by other people," he shouted. "You ought to be ashamed of yourselves while people are starving outside." Lady Astor was among those standing near him.

"I noticed that McGovern looked rather disturbed and tried to restrain him when he shouted out, but in vain," she said.

McGovern Has No Regrets.

Tonight McGovern said he had no regrets.

"I am not sorry I raised one voice for reality," he asserted. "Why should I apologize? The outburst was not premeditated. While we were waiting I had a little argument with some members of parliament around me about the pomp and show.

"I thought there was a horrible contrast between the riches in there and the hunger and cold of the unemployed.

"After the king's speech I had a few more remarks with my neighbors, and then I said openly what I thought. I don't think anything will be done about it. I don't mind what action is taken."

McGovern is a Labor party rebel belonging to the independent group headed by J. Maxton. He has been arrested twice and imprisoned for activities during his campaigns for free speech on Glasgow Green.

The King's Speech.

The king's speech asserted that disarmament is still the paramount foreign question and that it would be pursued through the league of nations. Significantly, however, the British monarch asserted that international coöperation would be promoted "by all means possible."

The speech also dealt with the forthcoming Indian self-rule bill, with Newfoundland, where a royal commission has recently made a financial study, and measures to speed the revival of trade.

"By careful attention to sound principles, both in the control of expenditures and in measures calculated to encourage enterprise, my ministers will endeavor to promote the return of the nation step by step to conditions which will permit the easing of its present burdens," the king announced.

Whether the first part of the remark was a veiled reference to President Roosevelt's currency experimentation was conjectured tonight. The second part of the remark was interpreted as a vague promise at some future time of tax reductions.

After the house of commons had reassembled this afternoon an onslaught was made on the king's speech, led by George Lansbury, Labor leader. Lansbury criticized the government's disarmament record and derided its failure to reach a trade agreement with Russia after many months of dickering, although President Roosevelt, he said, had cleared away most of the obstacles in about ten days.

TAXI COMPANY SHOWS RESULT OF LOWER RATE

Comparisons Made in Mileage and Pay.

Benjamin Samuels, vice president of the Yellow Cab company, submitted data to the city public vehicle license commission yesterday showing the effect on the company's business of the rate reduction put in effect on July 15. The company's present rate is 10 cents for each two-thirds of a mile. Before July 15 its rate was 25 cents for the first quarter mile and 10 cents for each succeeding half mile.

Since the closing of A Century of Progress, the lower rate has kept the paid mileage above that of a representative week during the World's Fair when the higher rate was in effect. Drivers' compensation, however, was lower under the new rate.

Following is a tabulation of the company's data for a week under the old rate, the first week of the new rate, a week shortly before the Fair closed, and a week after the Fair ended. The number of trips, the paid mileage and the drivers' pay per day are shown for each week:

Week ended—	Trips.	Paid Mileage.	Drivers' pay per day.
June 24	196,235	395,462	$2.91
July 22	292,568	602,605	3.02
Oct. 21	385,268	752,612	3.34
Nov. 18	240,831	451,848	2.44

The vehicle license commission is hearing applications of individuals and new companies for licenses to operate cabs. In arguments against increasing the number of cabs on the streets, Samuels said that on only three rainy days during the Fair was there a shortage of cabs. His company has licenses for 2,350 cabs, he said, but is operating an average of 1,790 now.

BALLOONISTS GO TO CAPITAL AFTER RECORD FLIGHT

scent as so much ballast. They were so tired last night after their strenuous air voyage that they passed by all thought of nourishment.

The balloonists' first thought after the arrival of a small company headed by State Troopers Ray Osborn, Martin Murden, Le Roy Ditzel, and Francis Caisse, from the Salem barracks, was to drag the airtight gondola through Middle Marsh creek to the main body of marshland. This was accomplished by means of ropes.

Falls Into Creek

Then, starting across the creek in a frail duck hunting boat, to fetch some of the instruments to safety, Commander Settle fell out and was nearly submerged. Volunteers who had waded or swam to the balloon were pulling the balloonist across by means of rope cables. It was his second ducking of the day. He took it good naturedly, but his teeth chattered as he talked later of the stratosphere trip.

"We had an interesting but uneventful trip," he said. "Leaving Akron about 9:30 we ascended gradually until we reached our maximum at some point near McConnelisburg, Pa. That was the highest point we could possibly rise in a balloon the size of ours. The height one may reach is in direct proportion with the capacity of the bag.

"Our 600,000 cubic foot gas bag had been filled with 110,000 feet of hydrogen at the start and we landed with about 50,000 feet.

"Our course zigzagged across Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, and then up into Pennsylvania again and across South New Jersey. Since I had been attached to Lakehurst for five years, from 1924 until 1929, I was thoroughly familiar with this region and knew just where I was landing. I came down at this spot because I wanted to land this side of Delaware bay.

Drop Batteries Overboard.

"We had dropped all of our 4,000 pounds of ballast and 300 pounds of batteries overboard by means of parachutes during the course of the trip and our landing was a normal one. I gradually released the gas and when the landing was made I pulled the rip panel out, the normal way of landing, which deflates the balloon."

"There was nothing to do but put up here for the night," said Maj. Fordney. "So we wrapped ourselves up in the balloon fabric and slept on the ground."

"And it was the best sleep we had had in months," Commander Settle added.

Their sleep was so sound that it was considerably after 8 o'clock this morning before Maj. Fordney slipped off some of his clothes, plunged into the cold water of the creek and half swam and half waded 150 feet to slightly less marshy ground. From there he walked, sometimes in water to his waist, three miles through fields of salt water hay in a typical South Jersey marsh and found a telephone.

Phones Location to Chicago.

About 9:30 he was phoning his location to Chicago. Half an hour later the flash went out to state police stations. The main body of searchers, driving at breakneck speed over the back roads from Alloway, the focal point of the hunt, pulled up at the edge of the swamp by 11 o'clock. Hardly more than three hours later the valuable instruments, dismantled from the gondola, had been carried from the marshland by volunteers and the balloonists were on their way to Washington.

Maj. Fordney expressed himself as "enthusiastic" about the Navy Commander Settle's piloting, exclaiming: "I'd go anywhere with him.

"The experience in the stratosphere was very interesting," Fordney said. "It is a region with very little change in temperature. The lowest inside our gondola was about 46 degrees above zero."

"As for weather, there isn't any," said the major. "It's static all the time, with no clouds and no rain. The sky is beautiful, and there is perpetual sunshine. The clouds below looked to us just as they do from the earth.

"We had occasional glimpses of the earth, but only through a haze, and we could only make out the outline of the main topographic features.

No Curvature of Earth Seen.

"We were not high enough to notice the curvature of the earth. The gas expanded as we went up with the gradual diminishment of air pressure. When we reached equilibrium at about 59,000 feet, the gas bag was completely expanded, and the bottom of the bag was wide open.

"We didn't have time while up there to stop a moment and try to gauge a personal reaction. There was no time to indulge in emotions. We didn't get as much data as we would have liked to have gotten at any point, and there was very little time spent in looking out the portholes at the sky."

Maj. Fordney said that he had wanted to know the "real color of the sky." It had been described by aviators and others as purple, black, or some other color.

"The sky is blue," he insisted to interviewers. "It is a very deep blue, not purple or anything else, but definitely blue, blue, blue."

"As we were coming down and got close to earth, Settle said, 'We are rapidly running out of land and altitude.' He saw a good soft spot and made it. I said to him that was a darn good landing."

A steadily rising tide which caught many venturesome persons unawares and left them with ruined clothes prevented the removal of the gondola and the bag from the swamp. The apparatus will be taken by truck to Lakehurst tomorrow to be kept at least temporarily.

The sealed barograph was turned over to Ray Cooper, general manager of the National Aeronautic association, and William R. Enyart, secretary of the contest committee, who took it to Washington to be calibrated.

Cosmic ray apparatus designed by Dr. Compton and Dr. Millikan, several barometers, a spectograph for spectrum analysis and several other articles were placed in the custody of Dr. R. J. Stephenson, research assistant in physics at the Univeristy of Chicago.

The findings, it is believed, may represent evidence to back up the belief of Dr. Millikan that the cosmic rays are photons, or bullets of light, and the theory that creation is a continuous process still going on. Or they may help support the contention of Dr. Compton that the cosmic rays are electrons and the theory that the universe originated in an explosion thousands of millions of years ago.

Piccard and Wife Tell Plans.

After Commander Settle had waded out of the marshland to board Lieut. Bowerman's plane for Washington he was congratulated warmly by Dr. Jean Piccard of Wilmington, Del., brother of August Piccard of Belgium, the stratosphere investigator.

"I think it was a very good flight," said Dr. Piccard. He had announced earlier in the day in Wilmington that he and his wife planned to make a flight into the stratosphere next summer, using the same balloon and gondola occupied by Settle and Fordney. Mrs. Piccard said they would not attempt an altitude flight, but that they intended to "go up to make further studies of the cosmic rays."

LINDBERGHS HOP TO AZORES

LINDBERGHS LAND IN AZORES ON HOP FROM PORTUGAL

HORTA, Azores, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh received a greeting of flowers and cheers this afternoon as they completed a 900 mile flight from Lisbon, Portugal. The entire populace of Fayal island welcomed the Americans and brought them armfuls of flowers.

They hopped from Lisbon at 7:25 a. m. Greenwich time [1 a. m. C. S. T.] and at 4:20 p. m. Greenwich time [10.20 a. m. C. S. T.] made a smooth landing against a strong wind on Horta bay.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh smiled in reply to the cheers and apparently were not tired from the flight. They went to the Fayal hotel after refusing several offers of private hospitality.

They declined to discuss their plans, but it was understood they intend to continue their trans-Atlantic flight by way of Bermuda after conducting several survey flights over the islands of Terceira and San Miguel with Horta as the base.

PRICE WAR ADDS CONFUSION TO MILK SITUATION

Four Independent Dairies Make Cut in Cream.

The confusion in the Chicago milk situation caused by the marketing agreement under the AAA was increased yesterday by the cream price war which opened this week.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace amended the milk marketing agreement to allow dealers operating under it, including the "Big Four," or so-called milk trust, to sell cream for 35 cents a quart. This was done on the assurance that it was the distributors' best method of fighting the cut rate dealers who had been charging the 35 cent price for some time at cash and carry stands.

One thing escaped notice until yesterday, however. This was that the 35 cent cream which Secretary Wallace approved has a butterfat content of only 18 per cent. That is the lowest percentage of butterfat, under the state law, which may be sold and still called cream.

Higher Content in 15c Cream.

The marketing agreement sets a 22 per cent butterfat requirement for coffee cream, still sold at 15 cents a half pint, and one of 30 per cent for whipping cream. The large dairy companies hew right to the line on the butterfat contents of their creams, and on the 3.5 per cent minimum allowed in milk. Some smaller dealers throw in a little extra as "lagniappe," however.

The confusion over cream was occasioned by the fact that most of the smaller dealers received no notice of the price change from Secretary Wallace or any of his Chicago pro-consuls. All they had to go on was newspaper stories that the new price would go into effect Monday. As a result, many of these dealers were selling the 22 per cent cream at 35 cents a quart, instead of the former price of 55 cents.

Last night four independent dairies announced they would meet the challenge of the Big Four dairies by cutting the price of 18 per cent cream to 22 cents a quart, effective today. They are the Edgewater, Lakeview, Wagner and Crescent dairies. They supply milk and cream to some 250 small stores and also distribute to retail trade through independent drivers.

Three Are Cited by U. S.

Three of the companies, the Edgewater, Lakeview and Wagner dairies, have been cited by the AAA for violation of the Chicago milk pact. A recommendation that their licenses be revoked is now awaiting the attention of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

The fourth company, the Crescent Dairy, although in federal receivership and under the jurisdiction of the federal courts, has been one of the active foes of the federal milk price agreement.

The Bowman and Borden companies, two of the "Big Four," had drivers and field men out yesterday soliciting customers for the 35 cent cream in the areas where cash and carry stores have cut into their trade. But in districts where there is little cash and carry competition several drivers for "Big Four" companies admitted yesterday that they had been given instructions to make no mention of the cut price to customers and to sell it to them only if they demanded it.

Confer with Bundesen.

Ald. Thomas J. Terrell [29th], chairman of the city council committee on health, and Ald. David L. Sutton [8th], chairman of the subcommittee on milk, held a conference yesterday with Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, in which they discussed the milk situation.

The aldermen charged that the Pure Milk association is trying to sign up as members all of the dairy farmers within the 100 mile radius of Chicago in which the board of health makes sanitary inspections, a condition to sell within the city, and that through the farmers' association the "milk trust" is trying to contract to buy the whole supply of inspected milk.

This, the aldermen charge, would give the big companies a monopoly of Chicago milk supply and automatically freeze out the independent dealers, who would have no place to buy milk qualified for sale in the city. The aldermen suggested that to prevent any monopoly the city extend the radius of its milk inspection 150 or 200 miles from Chicago.

Dr. Bundesen pointed out that this would increase the operating expense of the health department, but said that he would recommend it if evidence of monopolistic practices is brought to his attention.

Wife Carried to Court; Wins Divorce

Tells of Cruelty

Mrs. Regina Votava, 5506 Winthrop avenue, was carried on a stretcher yesterday to the courtroom of Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort for a divorce hearing.

Her husband, Anthony Votava, 1212 Winnemac avenue, a postoffice employe, filed the original bill and his wife filed a crossbill, both charging cruelty. Yesterday Attorney Norman Becker withdrew Mrs. Votava's crossbill, stating that she did not want a divorce after Attorney Harry X. Cole, representing Votava, had offered to let the wife get the decree.

Following a conference with Judge Desort, Mrs. Votava decided to go ahead with her suit. She testified to the acts of cruelty and was granted a decree. She will receive $15 a week alimony for six mont' $12 week thereafter for four and a half years. Votava was also ordered to pay $45 for the ambulance and stretcher which conveyed his wife to court. She is bedridden with arthritis.

CROWD CHEERS SENATORS' ROW AT HUEY INQUIRY

New Orleans, La., Nov. 21.—(AP)—An uproar was created late today before the senate committee investigating the election of Senator John H. Overton. Chairman Connally [D., Tex.], clashed with Senator Overton over procedure. There were stamping of feet, cheers, and howls by the hundreds of spectators.

During the clash Connally said:

"This committee is trying to find out only one thing, and I speak for Senators Logan and Thomas, and that is the truth from witnesses from both sides. We've got no other purpose except to find out the truth."

Then Senator Overton arose and said:

"I haven't gone before the press of the country to argue my case. I have intended to make my fight before this committee, and, if necessary, before the United States senate.

"I had hoped to come into this case on its merits but from the very beginning of this inquisition I haven't got a fair deal."

Suspect Sleeping Sickness as Cause of Boy's Death

The death on Monday of Gladstone Wilder, 14 years old, 4805 Wolfram road, may have been due to sleeping sickness, it was said yesterday by Dr. R. I. Klein, head of the contagious diseases unit of the county hospital. A definite announcement will not be made until the completion of a microscopic examination in about four days. Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the city board of health, said that even if the case was sleeping sickness, there was no cause for public alarm.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—For the first time since Chancellor Hitler came into power the Nazi authorities announced today a sizeable increase in unemployment in Germany. The Reich Institute for Labor Placement and Unemployment Insurance announced that during the first half of November the number of jobless had risen from 3,745,000 to 3,776,000, an increase of 31,000. Considering the usual seasonal contraction in the labor market, which last year boosted the unemployment figure by 156,000 during the same period, this increase is so slight that it is hailed as another Nazi victory in "the battle of labor."

FARMERS BUYING COAL AT MINES TO REDUCE COST

Save Half by Eliminating Freight Charge.

A tendency among city dwellers to buy milk and vegetables direct from farmers at roadside stands, thereby eliminating the profit of the middleman, has lately been taken up by the farmers themselves, particularly in procuring fuel, it was learned yesterday.

Whereas the farmers, before the depression, were accustomed to buying their coal for threshing and house heating from the town or village dealer, most of them today in counties covering the northern Illinois coal fields are driving direct to the mines and getting their coal for about half as much as the city dweller has to pay.

Leith Sawyer, assistant sales manager of the Northern Illinois Coal corporation, operating a huge strip mine at Wilmington, Ill., said that although his company's primary business was the fueling of locomotives for the Santa Fe and the Alton railroads, the farmers and inhabitants of Wilmington were now providing a lively retail trade.

Many Mines Selling Direct.

From ten to fifteen retail orders are filled daily at the Wilmington mine alone, Mr. Sawyer said, the total of this business running as high as 100,000 tons a year. About two score other mines in northern Illinois are doing likewise, he added, many of them subsisting wholly on mine to consumer trade.

Prices quoted to farmers and villagers at the Wilmington mine, Mr. Sawyer said, are about $3.50 a ton for lump or egg coal. These grades are sold at retail in Chicago at $7.25 a ton in one ton lots, or $6.50 a ton in 10 ton lots.

The difference in price, it was explained, may be attributed largely to the seemingly disproportionate freight rate on northern Illinois coal, the rate being fixed by the interstate commerce commission at $1.10 a ton from Wilmington to Chicago, a distance of 50 miles.

Charge Rate Discrimination.

Northern Illinois operators have repeatedly complained to the I. C. C. against what they construe as a rate discrimination in favor of southern Illinois, southern Indiana, and Kentucky fields. The rate from Franklin county mines, for example, which are six times farther from Chicago than is Wilmington, runs only 35 cents a ton higher than the Wilmington rate.

Among towns where mine to consumer sales are now in vogue, Mr. Sawyer said, are Ottawa, La Salle, Streator and Peru in La Salle county; Morris and Coal City in Grundy county, and Wilmington and South Wilmington in Will county.

PRIORITY IS WON BY ESTATES IN BANK PAYMENTS

Appellate Court Upholds Trust Fund Theory.

The Illinois Appellate court, in three important test cases, held yesterday that deposits in closed state banks of wards of the Probate court, of estates being settled in that court, and of receivers appointed by state courts are preferred claims entitling the depositors to full payment before any payments are made to the depositors in general.

The Appellate court opinions overturn previous decisions of some state courts which have held that these three classes of depositors must take their chances with other depositors. If the Appellate court is upheld by the state Supreme court, additional millions in preferred claims will be placed ahead of the claims of general depositors in the numerous closed state banks in Chicago.

Case Instituted by Horner.

Gov. Horner, before he left the Probate bench, ordered Oscar S. Caplan, who is still an assistant to the judge in that court, to institute action to have deposits made under the order of the court declared trust funds, entitled to preferred payment.

Mr. Caplan took one case before Judge Robert E. Gentzel in the Superior court. Judge Gentzel ruled that deposits made by guardians of minors and conservators of the estates of insane persons are trust funds. This case was a suit against E. H. Zuehls, receiver of the Citizens' Trust and Savings bank.

Attorney Clement J. Wall Jr., who with Attorney Edward J. Hess represented the receiver in the case, said yesterday that an important point in Judge Gentzel's ruling was that while the bank was not qualified as a trust company, the word "Trust" in its title might lead the public to believe so.

Estimates $11,000,000 Affected.

Mr. Caplan estimated that Judge Gentzel's decision would affect a total of $1,000,000 deposited in closed banks in similar cases. He estimated that the funds tied up in the form of deposits by executors of estates being settled in the Probate court would total $10,000,000.

Judge Hugo M. Friend ruled that such deposits should be considered preferred claims, as trust funds, and his decision, like that of Judge Gentzel, was upheld yesterday by the Appellate court.

Officials of the Probate court, Mr. Caplan said, will now institute proceedings in the federal courts against receivers of closed national banks. He estimated the amount of such trust deposits in these banks, roughly, at twice the amount tied up in closed state banks.

Ruling on Receivers' Deposits.

Judge Friend also handed down the original decision holding deposits of receivers appointed by state courts to be trust funds, in a suit brought against C. W. Davenport, receiver for the Division State bank by Phillip Plonsky, a receiver appointed by a Superior court judge in a foreclosure case.

Attorneys for Receiver Davenport said yesterday, however, that the Plonsky suit was decided on technicalities and that the Appellate court ruling upholding Judge Friend might not stand as a test case for all receivers' deposits.

Lee Tracy Flying to U. S.; Mexico Orders His Rearrest

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Lee Tracy, American movie actor who had been in custody and questioned on a complaint that he had "offended public morals," left by airplane for Juarez and El Paso today, racing against a new order for his arrest which Heraclio Rodriguez, acting prosecutor of the federal district, said he was obtaining.

Tracy, after receiving the permission of police to leave, boarded a plane this morning in what authorities called an apparent violation of Rodriguez's order which freed him on his own recognizance on the condition that he remain in the city pending a further examination of the complaint.

The actor left in a private plane piloted by Fritz Bieler. He was accompanied by Jack Price and Gustavo Ducleux. Members of Tracy's company here making "Viva Villa" denied knowledge of his whereabouts. Police had announced he had gone by train.

Rodriguez said he ordered the police in all border towns to arrest the actor.

The American was arrested for the second time yesterday on the complaint of Alfonso Esparza, a lawyer, who said he and his daughter, 12 years old, saw Tracy standing, unclothed, on the balcony of a hotel.

Tracy spent two hours in jail Monday morning and five hours there last night. The actor admitted to police that he shouted at cadets from a balcony of his hotel room Sunday morning but denied the accusation that he had been undressed at the time.

"I had no intention of insulting Mexico, and if I did I am sorry," he said, "but when I heard the music of a parade Sunday morning I went out on the balcony. It is true that I shouted at the cadets, but it is not true that I was nude."

New misfortunes struck the motion picture company tonight when private telegrams reported a plane carrying three sections of completed film from El Paso to Los Angeles had crashed in the United States. Wallace Beery, Irving Pichell, Joseph Schildkraut, and a number of technicians who had planned to leave on tonight's train were forced to cancel their trip so the scenes could be made over again.

Most of the scenes were those in which Tracy appeared, company officials were informed.

REDUCE HARRIS BOND IN HALL EXTORTION CASE

Bond for Edmund R. Harris Jr., was reduced yesterday from $5,000 to $1,000 by Federal Judge J. H. Wilkerson, in a hearing on an extortion indictment returned against the young architect as the result of letters received by Mrs. Mary Cave Hall. Judge Wilkerson continued until Monday, a motion by Harris' attorney, John Elliott Byrne, former assistant state's attorney, to quash the indictment on the ground that the evidence brought before the grand jury was insufficient.

Mrs. Hall, who is defendant in the million dollar suit for alienation of affections filed in Cook county Superior court last February by Mrs. Howard Willett, was not in court. Mrs. Willett's attorney, Henry L. Balaban, was present as a spectator. The arrest of Harris in California was one of the developments of the alienation suit, which is expected to come to trial soon after the first of next year. It is expected that on Monday Byrne will continue his efforts to force revelation of the identities of witnesses who testified before the grand jury, and who instigated the arrest.

LIFT BAN ON LEFT TURNS IN THREE N. SIDE STREETS

Left turns are to be allowed starting today into or out of Sheridan road at Lawrence, Wilson, and Montrose avenues, it was announced yesterday by Capt. James U. Sammis of the Lincoln park police. Capt. Sammis also announced that unlimited parking would be allowed starting today in Sheridan road south of Foster avenue. The parking order is made possible, Capt. Sammis said through the fact that 90 per cent of the traffic load is now handled by the outer drive.

SOCIALISTS FIGHT REDS IN MADRID; 15 ARE INJURED

Rioters Use Guns; Guards Disperse Mob.

MADRID, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Bitter political tension attending parliamentary elections burst into an open battle in midtown Madrid tonight when at least 15 persons were seriously injured in an attack by communists and syndicalists on Socialist headquarters.

A sharp exchange of gunfire occurred before assault guards could disperse the rioters. Socialist headquarters were put under heavy police guard.

Rightist Total Grows.

Official tabulations of Sunday's voting continued to trickle in and appeared to confirm earlier predictions of a rightist landslide. Of the 473 seats in the Spanish parliament, 162 had been won by the rights and 136 by the lefts. The vote on the remaining 175 seats was still missing.

One woman has been returned, Maria Martinez Sierra, wife of a Hollywood author, Gregoria Martinez Sierra, who gained a Socialist seat from the Asturias.

It was indicated that communists polled nearly seven times more votes than in previous elections. Second elections were considered possible in at least 20 provinces Dec. 3 since candidates failed to get the required number of votes.

Women Receive Tribute.

Under the new electoral law made effective for the first time in Spain, second elections are required in any province in which any single party or party candidate polled less than 40 per cent of the total votes.

The women of Spain, who exercised their voting franchise for the first time, received warm tribute from Alexander Lerroux, former radical Republican premier.

"The right to vote given the women for the first time," he said, "was like a loaded pistol. The leftists anti-religious persecution forced them to fire."

The government continued to exercise extreme precaution against possible post-election disorders. Although the death toll of ten and the injured list of 300 did not increase today, further disturbances still were feared.

Form Beauty Operators' Union Under NRA Terms

A new union embracing the thousands of beauty culture workers in Chicago and suburbs has been formed in accordance with provisions of the NRA, it was announced yesterday by R. W. Lawrence, organizing director of the union. The new organization will have headquarters in the La Salle-Wacker building. Its announced aims are to better the working conditions among operators in beauty shops, standardize salaries, and give cooperation in the establishment of a minimum price scale.

JUDGE LENIENT TO AUTO THIEVES, POLICE ASSERT

Cite Changing of Charges by Gutknecht.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.
Automobiles stolen, 57; recovered, 54; stripped, 3 [from police records for 24 hours ending at midnight Monday.]

Automobile thefts continue in Chicago at the rate of about seventy-five a day, but youthful car thieves are still, according to the police, treated with great leniency in the Boys' court of Judge John Gutknecht.

The police recalled that one offender was sentenced to spend Saturdays and Sundays for five weeks in the Bridewell.

Yesterday the judge, considering the case of four young men caught with a stolen automobile, ordered that the formal charges against them be changed from grand larceny to petit larceny. At the same time he expressed himself as believing they might be members of a regular ring of thieves.

Sentenced on Lighter Charge.

Two were then sentenced on the lighter charge to one year in the Bridewell and fined $1 each. They are James D. Hoyt, 22 years old, 1901 West Van Buren street, and William Jeneris, 22 years old, 328 Stanley terrace. James Bowman, 19 years old, 328 South Winchester avenue, was freed. Edwin Dean, 17 years old, 1906 West Jackson boulevard, the fourth defendant, was granted a separate trial and his case was continued to Nov. 28.

Judge Gutknecht then entered an order to entertain, on Feb. 23, a motion of the convicted youths to vacate the sentences, advising them meanwhile to tell the police what they knew of the alleged theft ring.

Pair Granted Clemency.

An inquiry yesterday into the disposition of the case of Ralph McCauley, 18 years old, 324 South Throop street, and Walter Nicpon, 20 years old, 949 West Madison street, disclosed that they, too, had been granted clemency.

The pair were arrested in July and signed statements admitting that they had stolen the car of H. L. Wiggs, Elberton, Ga., a World's Fair visitor, who remained in the city to prosecute. The police asserted the men had been arrested while stripping the stolen car.

On July 25 Judge Gutknecht sentenced each to a year in the Bridewell. On Nov. 8, however, they were taken before the Boys' court judge again. There was a hearing then on a motion to vacate the sentence. McCauley and Nicpon were freed and the motion to vacate was continued to Aug. 15 next year.

The records in this case were not found in possession of the court clerk, but in the hands of social workers. It is a frequent complaint of the police that when they ask in the Boys' court for the previous records of youths arrested for auto thefts they are referred to the social workers, who sometimes refuse to produce them.

Theft Charges Changed.

Under the state law the only power of Judge Gutknecht, when a youth is accused of theft of a motor vehicle, is to dismiss the case or hold the accused to the grand jury. The police asserted that he changes such charges to tampering with an automobile or driving a car away without the owner's consent and then applies his own theories of punishment.

The records show that in the McCauley-Nicpon case the charge had been changed to tampering with an automobile. Policemen of the automobile section, who admitted they would not care to be quoted directly, said that the system of freeing the defendants after a short time and continuing the motion to vacate the sentence for many months was employed regularly by Judge Gutknecht.

Another point of difference in the viewpoint of the police and the judge relates to the definition of a first offender. The police hold that a first offender is a youth who is stealing his first car, and they add that Judge Gutknecht holds that a first offender is one who is caught the first time in his thefts.

Lieut. John Kelly, in charge of the automobile detail, has criticized such leniency and Judge Gutknecht has objected to his statements. Lieut. Kelly was not available for comment yesterday.

Japan Accepts Rockefeller Foundation Health Gift

TOKIO, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The cabinet announced acceptance today of an offer of the Rockefeller foundation to donate 4,000,000 yen [about $1,240,000] for the establishment of an institute of public health in Tokio. The institute will be for the training of hygiene workers.

GRANTED DIVORCE

Superior Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday granted Mrs. Margaret Liggett Willits, $90 Roslyn circle, Highland Park, a divorce from John McGregor Willits, insurance broker. She charged him with cruelty.

Willits withdrew a crossbill, filed recently, in which he charged his wife with desertion and asked for custody of their two children, June, 6 years old, and Ann, 2. Under the terms of the decree Mrs. Willis is to have the children nine months of each year and they are to stay with their father the remainder of the time. She was granted alimony of $20 a week.

Mrs. Willits charged that her husband beat her during a party at the Exmoor Country club, and that he treated her roughly on other occasions. She is the daughter of John W. Liggett, New York wholesale druggist. Willits is the son of Ward W. Willits, head of a railway supply company.

FREES MOTHER SENTENCED FOR RELIEF FRAUD

Charges Against Three Others Dismissed.

Judge Joseph B. David of the Criminal court yesterday released a woman on a writ of habeas corpus who had been sentenced to thirty days in the House of Correction for obtaining relief through fraud. The judge held that the information was not properly drawn.

Mrs. Edith Lewellyn, 5527 Lowe avenue, the mother of seven children, was the woman Judge David set free. She had been sentenced by Municipal Judge Alfred O. Erickson on Nov. 10. Her release was obtained yesterday by two attorneys representing the Chicago Bar association committee for the defense of poor persons. They became interested in relief fraud prosecutions last week and are offering their services to defend those charged with relief frauds who cannot afford counsel.

Three Others Released.

After obtaining the writ from Judge David the two voluntary public defenders appeared before Judge Erickson and asked for the dismissal of charges against three other persons charged with relief frauds. The informations were quashed, but Assistant State's Attorney Samuel Rappanek was given leave to file amended complaints next week.

The release of Mrs. Lewellyn and the quashing of charges against the other three follow action last week by the advisory board of the Cook county bureau of public welfare to curb the prosecution of relief frauds. The advisory board is composed of county commissioners and executives of private charities.

Reports Husband Unemployed.

When Mrs. Lewellyn was sentenced by Judge Erickson, attorneys for the Illinois Emergency Relief commission showed that she had reported her husband unemployed while he was working for the Link Belt company.

Mrs. Lewellyn admitted under questioning that her eldest son, Duane, 24 years old, had courted a young woman, and married her, and then applied for relief for the support of himself and his wife. Judge Erickson had instructed the son to care for the other children while his mother served her sentence.

ENDS LIFE BY HANGING.

FREED IN KILLING, HE IS CONVICTED AS HOLDUP MAN

Jerry Kane, 23 years old, was found not guilty last March of the murder of Policeman James Cunningham in a robbery of the soft drink parlor of Jerry Hynek at 2025 Laflin street on July 4, 1933. Yesterday he was convicted of the robbery in which the policeman was killed and was sentenced by Judge Charles P. Molthrop to one year to life in the penitentiary.

In the murder trial, Kane's attorney, James M. Burke, convinced the jury that Kane was in the saloon on a bootleg deal and had nothing to do with the robbery. The state charged that Kane and two others entered the soft drink parlors, and drew pistols when Policeman Cunningham interrupted the robbery.

Policeman Cunningham was killed in an exchange of shots. Kane was seized, but the other two men escaped. Using the same evidence in the robbery case yesterday the state was successful in obtaining a conviction.

Holdup Killer Sentenced.

James Brown, 32 years old, a Negro, was denied a new trial yesterday by Judge Francis B. Allegretti and sentenced to 199 years in prison for the murder of Harry Bacon, 505 West 65th place, a cab driver, in a robbery on Sept. 19.

Two other Negroes were found guilty with Brown of participation in the robbery, by a jury in Judge Allegretti's court on Monday night. They were sentenced to life imprisonment. They are James Williams, 20 years old, and Teddy Haney, 25 years old. The jurors recommended the more severe sentence for Brown after hearing testimony that he fired the shot that killed Bacon.

"I see no reason for wasting time on this new trial motion," Judge Allegretti told Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach, who defended the three Negroes. "If it had not been for your eloquent plea I believe that at least one of these men would have been sent to the electric chair."

Albert Marshall, 30 years old, was sentenced to two years, and John Klein, 23 years old, and Sam Abraham, 21 years old, were sentenced to five years each for rape yesterday by Judge Michael Feinberg. The state presented evidence that the three defendants took two women to Klein's apartment at 11 West Pearson street and attacked them after threatening them with pistols.

Pick Death Penalty Jury.

A jury qualified to inflict the death penalty was completed yesterday in Judge Harry B. Miller's court to try Arthur Barty for the torture murder of Theodore Zutaut, 55 years old, 12017 Lowe avenue. Barty and Michael Lepas, a fugitive, are alleged to have beaten and shot Zutaut after searching his home for a cigar box in which Zutaut was supposed to have hidden $4,000.

Barty was granted a separate trial to testify against Edward Weiss, who drove the two killers to Zutaut's home. At the trial of Weiss last week Barty refused to testify and Weiss was freed shortly after he had urged his attorney to enter a plea of guilty in return for a sentence of 14 years.

Two Others Sentenced.

Two other defendants were sentenced yesterday in the Criminal court. They are:

JOSEPH MARUSARZ, 21 years old, sentenced to serve one to 20 years by Judge Michael Feinberg for the theft of an automobile belonging to Carl E. Olson, 1562 East 66th place.

FRED ZIMMERMAN, 18 years old, sentenced by Judge Joseph B. David to serve one to 20 years for the theft of the automobile of Arthur Beiswenger, 5058 Fletcher street.

PUBLICLY OWNED ELECTRIC PLANT AGAIN AN ISSUE

Knoxville, Tenn., Votes on Idea Saturday.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Popularity of the Tennessee Valley Authority, in the region which will benefit the most from that experiment, again will be tested on Saturday. Voters of Knoxville will go to the polls to decide upon the ratification or rejection of a $3,225,000 bond issue for "purchasing or constructing a municipally owned electric power and light distribution system."

If the voters approve, Knoxville's city council will have authority to issue the bonds and start immediately into the municipal ownership of a power plant.

Rejected in Birmingham.

Birmingham, Ala., several weeks ago, by a three to one vote, rejected a proposal for municipal ownership. It was said to be a crushing defeat for the T.V.A. Tremendous pressure has been brought to bear in Knoxville since that time to force the voters for "sentimental and patriotic reasons" to approve the proposed bond outlay.

The incumbent city council group, which proposed the referendum, succeeded in reëlecting a majority of its members Saturday, Nov. 11, in opposition to a "people's ticket" which opposed the bond issue but favored municipal ownership and the procuring of the money from the federal public works administration.

The lead in the fight for bonds and municipal ownership has been assumed by the Knoxville News-Sentinel, a unit in the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain, and by Councilman W. A. Cockrum, who on Monday night, Nov. 20, organized the city-owned power and light association.

Opposition to the bond issue is taken by the anti-bond association, composed of prominent attorneys, large property owners, and other taxpayers. The Knoxville Journal-Republican is also waging a vigorous campaign in opposition to municipal ownership.

The city of Knoxville's indebtedness is more than $26,500,000, and the total value of assessed property in the city is a little less than $120,000,000.

City Heavily in Debt.

Knoxville does not have authority to issue self-liquidating bonds and any bonds voted must necessarily be general mortgage bonds of the city.

The city has been unable to pay its employés in cash for more than a year and approximately $800,000 city "warrants" are now outstanding. Within the past year Knoxville succeeded in putting over a refunding plan covering about $7,000,000 bonds maturing between now and 1939.

David E. Lilienthal of the Tennessee Valley Authority, publicly has declared that it will take no part in local politics. He says it is up to each municipality to decide for itself whether it shall engage in municipal ownership.

Dr. E. A. Morgan, chairman of the T. V. A., has been busy during the last week, however, denying a remark attributed to him that "power is relatively an unimportant part of the program as a whole."

TWO NEW WINTER GRADES *[10-W-20-W]

ISO-VIS "D" Anti-Sludge Motor Oil

*Of course these new winter grades meet the latest recommendations of motor car manufacturers for easy starting winter oil. But that's not all—

10-W flows at 20° below zero, 20-W at 5° below. These oils circulate at the first stroke of the oil pump even in sub-zero weather. . . Provide easier starting. They have low viscosity at low temperatures. Cold does not make them sticky. They allow your motor to turn over easily. They are the easiest starting motor oils ever offered by Standard. . . . Do not thin out dangerously under heat. Their viscosity (body) is so little affected by heat that except for slightly higher consumption they would be entirely safe to use in midsummer. They protect your motor after it warms up. . . Will not sludge! Sludge forms faster in winter, and is more dangerous. It clogs filter screens, causes sticky valves, makes motors sluggish. This winter use Iso-Vis "D" and don't give sludge a chance.

FRANCE MAY PUT HERRIOT BACK IN PREMIER'S CHAIR

Talk of Coalition Cabinet to Balance Budget.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Former Premier Herriot, portly political jack-of-all-trades, returned to the jousts on an unbalanced budget in the chamber of deputies today and was hailed as the probable chief of a "bury-the-hatchet" coalition government.

Herriot, three times premier, who was overthrown last Dec. 14 when the chamber repudiated the war debt to the United States, was welcomed back after a two months' serious illness by Premier Sarraut, whose cabinet, even his friends predict, may not survive the current battle for fiscal reforms.

Deputies Cheer Herriot.

The veteran, 50 pounds lighter because of the illness, entered the chamber smilingly amid the traditional desk-thumpings and hand clappings of welcome and, as he took his accustomed seat, there were whisperings of a comeback.

Premier Sarraut sought to regain his vanishing majority as he heard predictions from the floor of the chamber—as 15 orators began debate on plans to save the French franc by balancing the budget—that his cabinet would be overthrown in a week.

Budget Minister Abel Gardey declared that even the security of France was imperiled by an unbalanced budget and appealed to the patriotism of the deputies.

Socialist Spurns Plea.

"Without a balanced budget," Gardey insisted, "all dangers are possible."

Socialist Deputy Frossard replied: "Financial readjustment will have cost, next Thursday, the life of four cabinets."

Premier Sarraut was coolly received when he formed his ministry last month. Even members of his own party showed no enthusiasm in votes of confidence. Herriot has been pointed to as the man able to jerk the chamber from its inertia.

Meanwhile, figures show, public finance goes from bad to worse and the budget deficit increases.

Successive attempts by former premiers, Herriot, Joseph Paul-Boncour, and Edouard Daladier to cut expenditures and levy new taxes failed.

See Danger to Franc.

Finance Minister Georges Bonnet has warned that unless the budget is balanced the franc itself may be threatened.

Talk in the chamber lobbies has swung toward the formation of a new majority relieving the Radical-Socialist party of dependence on uncertain Socialist votes. Such a national union government, it has been predicted, would contain all groups from the Radical-Socialists on the left to the Republican federation, stubborn Nationalists, on the right.

KILLED IN CRASH

Sergt. Reginald Major, victim of auto crash.

Reginald Major, 28 years old, a sergeant in company B of the 202d coast artillery, Illinois National Guard, died yesterday in the Lake View hospital of injuries suffered earlier in the day when the car he was driving crashed into a concrete abutment at the Lawrence avenue and Outer drive grade separation. Major had quarters in the regimental armory at Broadway and Thorndale avenue.

Major died without regaining consciousness. The wrecked automobile is the property of Col. Charles C. Dawes, 1430 Lake Shore drive, commander of the artillery regiment. He is a son of Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress. Col. Dawes said that he had often lent the car to Major, but did not know that the sergeant was using it yesterday.

Casimir Olszowski, 15 years old, 2850 West 40th place, was killed yesterday when the truck on which he had hitched a ride skidded and crushed him against a street car at 47th street and Racine avenue. The truck driver, William Thomas, a farmer of Illinois City, was released after he had made a statement to the police.

Edward Leader, 45 years old, a florist of Danville, was killed last evening when a small truck in which he was riding was struck by a Michigan Central freight train at Cicero avenue, west of Chicago Heights.

The day's three deaths increased the Cook county motor toll to 977 since Jan. 1.

HITLER RIDICULES CHARGE HE IS LOOKING FOR WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 21.—In an interview published in Le Matin tomorrow morning Chancellor Hitler of Germany again holds out his hand to France. He declares definitely that he has no designs on Alsace and Lorraine and is willing, and even anxious, to arrive at an agreement to end the tension.

"People insult me by continuing to repeat that I want to make war," the article quotes him as saying. "Am I crazy? War would not settle anything. It only makes the state of the world worse. It would mark the end of our races which are elite, and also in the following ages we would see Asia installed in our continent and bolshevism triumphant."

Asked about disquieting demonstrations in Germany which are regarded as more warlike than his words Hitler says:

"I alone decide the policy of Germany and when I give my word I have a habit of keeping it."

GERMAN BISHOP UNDER FIRE OF OPPOSING FORCES

Nazi Foes Risk Seizure of Presbyteries.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller, on the eve of penance day, which will be observed throughout Prussia as a legal holiday, was the target today of attacks by two opposing forces in the Protestant church.

On the one hand, the Nazi German Christians demanded that the bishop convoke a national synod, which they control absolutely, at the earliest possible moment.

At this gathering they proposed to re-introduce the so-called "Aryan" paragraph pertaining to the participation particularly of Jews in church activities, and also define Christianity in such general terms that even the more militant Nazis would accept them.

3,000 Pastors Protest.

On the other hand the factions of former Reichsbishop Friedrich von Bodelschwingh and the Rev. Martin Niemaeller announced they would send a sharp note to Bishop Mueller advising him that next Sunday 3,000 pastors will launch an attack on the present church regime, even at the risk of having brown-shirted storm troopers take possession of the church presbyteries.

The demand for the synod convocation was initiated by the more militant group of Nazis headed by the Rev. Joaquin, Hossenfelder, bishop of Brandenburg, and was interpreted as something of a challenge to Bishop Mueller's leadership, which was advocated by the Hossenfelder group itself some time ago.

Now apparently this faction seeks to have Mueller bow to the dictates of the parliamentary assembly of the Evangelical church. The Nazi group controls 75 per cent of the legislative vote and therefore the move for the synod was not interpreted as a conversion to democracy.

Militan Nazis Irked.

This turn of events came in the past week, after the reichsbishop, under the pressure from the Von Bodelschwingh conservative group, rescinded all church laws recently adopted including the Aryan statute.

Also playing a part was the disappointment of the militant Hitlerites at Bishop Mueller's condemnation of remarks made by Dr. Reinhold Krause, chief of the Berlin section of the German Nazi Christians, favoring the elimination of the Old Testament, the "editing" of the New Testament, a change in attitude toward the crucifix as a religious symbol, and a new conception of Christ as "heroic" instead of "mild."

Orders Seizure of Parsonage.

STETTIN, Germany, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Frankfurter Zeitung said today that Bishop Karl Thom of Pomerania ordered Nazi storm troops to take over the parsonage of the Rev. Mr. Gerhard Wilde when the minister refused to hold a service Sunday.

Instead, according to the newspaper, he held a meeting where he severely criticized Reichbishop Ludwig Mueller and Joachim Hossenfelder, president of the Nazi German Christian movement.

According to the newspaper, the Rev. Mr. Wilde accused Hossenfelder and the entire Nazi Christian movement of "permitting heresies and force in the church."

Warns Against Boycotts.

MUNICH, Bavaria, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Hans Frank, commissioner of justice, issued a warning today against unofficial agitation for boycotts against Jewish lawyers and Jewish business houses. Frank said all such questions would be decided from the central office.

Couldn't Rob Car Without Taking Door, So They Did

Harry Crooks, 5012 North Central Park avenue, a salesman, chained two large suitcases of samples together in his automobile so that thieves could not take them without removing the door of the car. They did just that while the car was parked in front of 3317 West Roosevelt road, he reported yesterday to Fillmore street police. His loss, 300 pairs of gloves and 30 corsets, was valued at $450.

INVALID NURSE AND FIVE OTHERS STRICKEN BY GAS

Seven persons, all members of the household of Mrs. Belle Wilbur at 4152 Lake Park avenue, were overcome last evening by fumes generated by a water heater in the basement. Mrs. Wilbur was under the care of a nurse, having suffered a cerebral hemorrhage in the morning. The other victims were revived by members of squad 3 of the fire department led by Capt. Thomas L. Noonan, but Mrs. Wilbur's condition was such that the firemen were unable to use an inhalator for her resuscitation.

Those overcome included Miss Anna Robbins, the nurse; Walter Jones, son-in-law of Mrs. Wilbur; his wife, Mrs. Marion Jones; Louis Taylor, Jane Hoseley, and Gertrude Bartz. Hazel Bartz, a sister of Gertrude, returned to the house in the evening and found the seven unconscious. She threw up the windows and summoned help.

Fears were expressed last night that the illness of Mrs. Wilbur would be aggravated by the gas and cause her death.

Worries you never have in a Gas Heated home

Taxes Take Large Slice From Dollar
Whether you realize it or not, you are a tax-payer.
When you pay your gas bill, 11.7 cents of every dollar goes for taxes, which the company collects and passes on to the city, state and federal governments.
The company gets no use of this money. It merely acts as the collector.
And the tax burden—your tax burden—is mounting yearly. Taxes of The Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company have increased 49.22 per cent since 1922. In 1928, out of every dollar the customer paid in a gas bill, 6.52 cents went for taxes. Now 11.7 cents in taxes are taken from every dollar.
The company is only the collector. You, as the customer, are the tax-payer.

GAS HEAT is simply grand. You never have to think about it. Just set the thermostat on the dining room wall for the heat you want. You don't even know when it's on or off. Only that the temperature of every room in the house is even, comfortable—every hour, every minute—day and night.

Every home can afford gas heat

Thousands of families in the Chicago Area who have recently installed gas heat know this from actual experience. Every day they get more pleasure and joy from automatic gas heat.

All homes—even the most modest, can now afford to heat with gas. Rates are one-half of what they were during the 1930-31 heating season. You can try gas heat without spending one cent for installing the equipment. We take all the risk. Just tell us you want to have gas heat. We install it at our expense in your furnace or boiler. You pay only $3 a month rental on the equipment in the average home. If at any time during the first year you decide you don't want gas heat, we'll take it out and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order.

But if you decide—as we think you will—to keep gas heat, the rental you paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment. You'll be surprised at the low cost of equipment.

End furnace tending forever

Decide today to end furnace tending forever. That means shoveling coal, hauling ashes, chopping kindling, setting dampers, banking the fire, waiting for heat to come up. With gas heat, you never go near the furnace. It's so clean. Walls and drapes stay clean for months at a time. Dusting only once or twice a week instead of every day.

Let us install gas heat in your home now. Mail the coupon for full information.

A Simple and Quick Way to Relieve Acid Stomach

Easy to Tell if You Have It

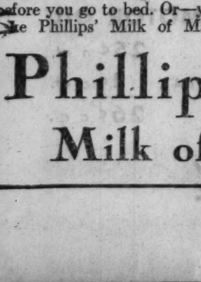
Nervousness	Neuralgia	Indigestion
	Auto-intoxication	Nausea
	Frequent Headaches	Sleeplessness
	Feeling of Weakness	Mouth Acidity
	Loss of Appetite	Sour Stomach



WHAT TO DO FOR IT

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

Some 80% of the people of today have Acid Stomach, according to many authorities! This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

Headaches, stomach pains after eating, "gas," "upsets," "biliousness," are the usual indications. So you can easily tell if you have Acid Stomach.

You Can Quickly And Easily Correct It

But if you do have it, don't worry about it. Today it can be corrected in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed. Or—you can take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets; one tablet for each teaspoonful of the liquid.

What This Does

That's all you do. But do it regularly. EVERY DAY.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy you feel.

Everywhere people are doing this—doctors advocating it. Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips'" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM

CHANGE OF VENUE DENIED NEGROES IN FAMOUS CASE

Scottsboro Trial Will Be Held at Decatur.

Decatur, Ala., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The seven Negroes in the Scottsboro, Ala., attack case lost their fight for retrial in another city today as Judge W. W. Callahan overruled a motion for a change of venue.

The defense had asked transfer of the trials to Birmingham, charging that "mob sentiment" existed here and made a fair trial in Decatur impossible.

"There is no evidence before me to indicate that the defendants cannot get a fair trial here," said Judge Callahan at the conclusion of testimony on the motion for a change of venue in Morgan county Circuit court.

The ruling left only two motions for disposition prior to the scheduled trial of one of the seven defendants, Heywood Patterson, next Monday. One was a motion to quash the venire, and the other to quash the indictments. The venire motion was taken up after the venue change had been denied.

Jury Discrimination Alleged.

The motion regarding venire alleged the defendants were deprived of their constitutional rights because Negro citizens were "excluded from the jury rolls, simply because of their race."

The Scottsboro case began in March, 1931, when a group of Negroes was arrested charged with attacking Mrs. Victoria Price and Ruby Bates, white women, on a freight train near Scottsboro. It attracted world wide interest in its journey through the Alabama courts, and to the Supreme Court of the United States, where new trials were ordered for defendants who had appealed death sentences.

Roosevelt Keeps Hands Off.

Yesterday the defense counsel, headed by Samuel Leibowitz of New York, presented a number of affidavits quoting various persons in this vicinity as saying they believed a fair trial could not be held. Today the state presented affidavits from a number of persons quoted in yesterday's statements, denying they had said sentiment was too strong here for a fair trial to be held here.

Leibowitz first asked Gov. B. Miller of Alabama for troops, then appealed to President Franklin D. Roosevelt to ask Gov. Miller for troops, but from Warm Springs, Ga., where the President is vacationing, announcement was made that the request of Leibowitz had been sent to the governor of Alabama.

Only a few persons were in the courtroom today as the hearing on the venue motion was resumed. Leibowitz was not in court today, having announced yesterday that he was going to Louisiana in connection with the case.

Legislator Won't Run; Too Few Democrats Get Jobs

Canton, Ill., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—State Representative Frank W. McClure today announced that he would not be a candidate for reelection because the administration, he declared, had failed to appoint Democrats to places after recommendation by the organization. McClure denounced the appointment to state offices of "hybrids and 90 day Democrats and even Republicans."

No Propaganda! Pledge of Russian Ambassador to U. S.

MOSCOW, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Alexander Antonovitch Troyanovsky, new Russian ambassador to the United States, said today that no communist propaganda will emanate from the soviet embassy in Washington.

His statement was made in response to a question asked in an American press conference. He exhibited a bit of amusement at the query and replied:

"Communism is not a thing that can be exported to one country by another. It is not a question of foreign relationship but a domestic problem. In any event, I can assure you gentlemen there will be no communistic activity on the part of any of our officials in America."

Plays Bridge and Chess.

The new ambassador is a man of engaging personality, whose general manner of quiet dignity often is broken by an infectious, cordial laugh.

Troyanovsky confessed a weakness for contract bridge, chess and tennis, but he has never tried to play golf. He does not like poker. He never smokes.

He said he expects to leave for Washington in a few weeks but that he will see Maxim Litvinov, commissar for foreign affairs, who is now in Washington, before he goes.

"My job," said Troyanovsky, "will be to continue the work Mr. Litvinov started, trying to promote mutual understanding and friendship and to develop economical and cultural relations between the union of Socialist soviet republics and the United States of America.

"Naturally, the question of trade is one of the most important before us and I hope our economic contact with America now will be much larger than ever before."

Wife May Stay in Russia.

Answering all interrogations in English, Troyanovsky whimsically said that he did not know if his wife would accompany him to Washington.

"You see," he explained, smiling, "she is torn between her husband and her son. My boy is 14 years old, but he still has got to learn Russian and the possibilities are that I may have to leave him here in school for a while.

"He speaks and knows English better than Russian because that is what was taught him in Tokio schools. Now we feel we had better give him a chance to learn his own language properly."

Hutchins Denies Public Revenue Is Periled.

The proposal to merge Northwestern university and the University of Chicago under Northwestern's liberal charter raised a new question yesterday. Public officials pointed out that public revenues would suffer a substantial loss if University of Chicago properties were exempted from taxes as provided in Northwestern's charter.

This charter, granted in 1848, exempted all of the university's properties from taxation whether used for educational purposes or not. The Illinois constitution of 1870 forbids any further grants of such sweeping tax exemptions. The University of Chicago, incorporated since 1870, is exempt from taxes only on property actually used for educational purposes. The university's nonexempt realty paid taxes of about $800,000 in 1931.

Deny Taxation Is Factor.

President Robert Maynard Hutchins and other officials of the midway institution said emphatically yesterday that relief from taxes was not a factor in discussions of a possible merger and that the university would continue to pay taxes, merger or no merger. Public officials replied, however, that administrations and conditions change, and the claim for exemption might be made at some future time if the south side institution were put under the liberal Evanston charter.

"Chicago university has always paid taxes upon its property which was not being used for educational purposes, and it will continue to do so," was the statement of President Hutchins last evening as reported by the university public department. "This policy will be continued in the future regardless of the arrangement made with any other university or similar institution."

Holdings Are Increased.

George O. Fairweather, business manager of the university, said yesterday that the tax bill of the university would be substantially increased in the 1932 levy, now being assessed, because the university has purchased the equities of a number of holdings on which it held mortgages.

A statement issued by Mr. Fairweather disclosed that the university paid 1931 tax bills of $237,000 upon holdings for which it is assessed directly. He said that $575,000 was also levied against properties which the university has leased for long terms. These taxes are paid by the lessees.

Alfred Cowles, president of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, in commenting on the tax exemption phase of the proposed merger, said last night:

"There are altogether too many tax free properties in Cook county now. The loss of the university's taxes would be a great misfortune if such a loss should occur."

Hadj Mohamed, the 93 year old snake charmer who performed with cobras at the Oriental Village at the World's Fair and who planned to return here next June, died of snake bite in Tunis, North Africa, nearly a month ago. Word of his death was received yesterday in a letter by Joseph Guez, a friend and a native of the same city.

Mohamed, it was said, did not give the cobras time to recover their calm after the ocean voyage as was his practice. Immediately upon reaching his home he opened a bag containing the hooded reptiles and one of them sprang and struck him in the neck.

"For once Mohamed did not have with him the special medicine he himself prepared as an antidote," Guez said. "It was in some baggage which had not been brought to the house. He died within a few hours."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

QUEBEC, Nov. 21.—A warning against communism was issued by the Roman Catholic clergy of Canada today following a recent convention of bishops and archbishops.

The warning declared that communism was still under the ban in this country, and that it was regretfully noted that this formerly peaceful land was now dotted with discontent and disturbance, which was fomented and fostered by communist propaganda.

Too many intellectuals had allowed themselves to be deceived by mirages of a new civilization, it was said. The warning declared socialism was not an efficacious remedy for Canada's troubles.

Forced labor and tyrannical rationing of laborers was commented upon in the warning. It was stated that this was the way soviet Russia competed with legitimate commerce.

DISMISSES SUITS AGAINST SMALL AND STERLING

Circuit Judge Hugo M. Friend yesterday dismissed, for want of jurisdiction, the suits started by Attorney General Kerner against Len Small, former governor, and Fred E. Sterling, former lieutenant governor, to recover for the state interest they are alleged to have withheld on state funds when they held the office of state treasurer.

An appeal will be taken to the Supreme court, according to Charles W. Hadley, special assistant attorney general. Judge Friend approved a bill of exceptions presented by Special Assistant Attorney General George H. Kriete, Mr. Hadley's associate.

Small and Sterling were sued under a previous state administration, and made compromise payments in the Circuit court of Sangamon county under an agreement by which Oscar E. Carlstrom, then attorney general, dismissed the suits against them.

In his suit Attorney General Kerner charged that the action of his predecessor, Carlstrom, constituted a fraud on the state. Judge Friend held that he had no jurisdiction to review a case decided in the Circuit court of another county.

LAWYER OFFERS ALIBI FOR TOUHY AT KIDNAP TRIAL

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Testimony intended to show Roger Touhy was in Des Plaines, Ill., at about the time he is accused of having conducted ransom negotiations in the William Hamm Jr. kidnaping case, was presented today at the trial of Touhy and three others for the abduction of the St. Paul brewer.

Vincent Connor, a Des Plaines, Ill., attorney testified for the man recognized by the federal government as leader of the band it charges abducted the millionaire brewer last June 15 and declared he talked with Touhy the night of June 16.

"I met Mr. Touhy three times," Connor testified, "and fortunately for him it was on this night that I saw him the second time."

Care for your car as you do your refrigerator or cook stove by keeping it in mechanical order and clean. Service station men will help you. Motor oil is to lubricate surfaces that rub together—an oil that penetrates the metal is best—only one motor oil does that, Conoco Germ Processed. More than half of all wear occurs when you start your motor in the morning—and, because of what they call the 'Hidden Quart,' Conoco is there to protect against wear. It is repair bills that you can save on most and not cheap oil. Even oil at the same price isn't as good if it hasn't these penetrative qualities."

Full motor protection, especially in cold motor starting, can be found only in Conoco Germ Processed (Paraffin Base) Motor Oil because the penetrative oiliness, called "The Hidden Quart" stays up in your motor and never drains away. Conoco Germ Processed Oil is the highest grade motor oil obtainable . . . the paraffin base crude oil sources, the scientific skill and the most modern of refineries combine to make it so. Then it is Germ Processed with an exclusive Conoco formula.

Instant Starting and Lightning Pick-up can best be obtained with Conoco Bronze Gasoline, and without sacrifice of Long Mileage, Greater Power and Anti-Knock advantages. A LAW TO ENCOURAGE BAD BANKING.

The guaranty of bank deposits of $2,500 and less becomes effective on Jan. 1. Six months later the guaranty becomes effective in full on accounts of $10,000 or less. Deposits of between $10,000 and $30,000 will then be guaranteed against 75 per cent of the loss and deposits of over $50,000 against loss of more than 50 per cent of the account.

In the first period the assessments which can be levied against the solvent banks to help the depositors in insolvent banks are limited in amount. After July 1 the assessments become unlimited. Whatever the losses prove to be, the solvent banks must provide the money to meet them.

All of this is provided in the banking act passed at the special session of congress held in the shadow of the banking crisis of last March. No doubt a great many depositors and a great many congressmen regard the legislation as admirable. They think that at last a cure has been found for the individual suffering and the economic disorganization which have been caused in this country in recent years by the failure of more than 5,000 banks.

How far this conclusion is from reality is demonstrated with great force in a memorandum just published by a committee of the Association of Reserve City Bankers. Far from preventing the failure of banks, the law will encourage failures. Far from limiting the losses of bank failures, the law will spread the losses from the unsound banks to the sound ones with consequences which may well prove devastating.

Perhaps the most telling section of the discussion is that which deals with previous experiments along the same line in this country. Deposit guaranty has been tried in eight states since 1908. There has been nothing resembling success in any of these experiments. The experience differs only in the amounts of the final deficits. In each instance precisely the consequences which were predicted by the opponents of the plan were realized. A premium was placed upon reckless banking and a penalty was imposed upon sound banking. Assessments impaired bank capital and at the same time discouraged investment of capital in well run institutions. The end product was not greater security of deposits, but no security.

A reading of the report can leave little doubt that if the banking act of 1933 had been in effect five years ago there would be few if any banks still in existence today. The guaranty would have destroyed them all, strong and weak alike.

As there is little reason to think that the depression which began in 1929 is to be the last one, the menace of the deposit guaranty act for the future is obvious. One of the first acts of the congress which meets in January should be to repeal it. When that has been done, congress should direct its attention to the enactment of a banking law which will not encourage but prevent bank failures. This end is by no means impossible of attainment. The United States is the only civilized country in the world in which the failure of banks is a common occurrence.

MR. WALLACE AS HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER.

The Capital City Milk Producers' association, composed of a thousand Pennsylvania dairy farmers, sought an injunction to restrain the secretary of agriculture from enforcing the price fixing provisions of the Philadelphia milk marketing act. The farmers did not want any one to dictate to them what milk must be sold for.

In a remarkable opinion, Justice O'Donoghue of the District of Columbia Supreme court denied the injunction. The agricultural marketing act, the court said, is constitutional, for "the act is based upon the fundamental law of nature that every man is his brother's keeper."

The judge, in reaching this conclusion, was construing not the constitution but his own mental confusion.

If the judge had looked more closely at the marketing act he could hardly have failed to observe that whether man is his brother's keeper or not has very little to do with the issue. The root question is whether Mr. Wallace has the exclusive right to be everybody's keeper with respect to food and clothing. That, in turn, raises the question whether Mr. Wallace or any other man is wise enough or good enough to handle the job. It also raises the question whether the granting of such powers to Mr. Wallace does not at once abrogate the moral precept. Certainly it is true that soon after prohibition was written into American law a great many people who hitherto had refrained from drinking because they did not care to contribute to the debauching of their brothers promptly laid in stocks of liquor.

The judge might even have taken judicial notice of the fact that Mr. Wallace can make no reasonable claim to being the protector of all the American people. He is the protector of the farmers only. For his purposes they are his only brothers. The best that the rest of the American people can expect is to be regarded as distant cousins. The worst they can expect is that Mr. Wallace will regard himself as their keeper in the sense that the warden of the county jail is the keeper of those inside.

In a memorable dissenting opinion, Mr. Justice Holmes observed that "the 14th amendment does not enact Mr. Herbert Spencer's 'Social Statics.'" It might be observed with equal force that article 1, section 8 of the constitution, in which the powers of congress are enumerated, does not include among them the right to jail a man for not being his brother's keeper.

AMERICAN TORIES.

President Roosevelt in his talk to the Georgians at Savannah used the word "Tories" to describe the critics of the recovery program. He also called them "doubting Thomases," and that may be closer to the target. The critics in the opposition do not meet the requirements of Toryism. The President referred to the revolutionary American Tories, of whom there were some in Georgia, who opposed the progress the revolutionaries were determined to make. But these Tories were supporting government and the extensions of government which had brought on the war.

The British king and ministers had proposed acts which they thought were good for the colonial subjects. The American Tories also thought the proposals were good and they thought the people of the colonies ought to submit to the ministerial acts without trying to evade them, without opposing the administration or trying to upset the government. The revolutionaries were determined to be free men of independent action. Mr. Roosevelt may have some difficulty in maintaining his parallel. Historically the Tory party has been the king's party, particularly when the king favored the country gentlemen as against the metropolitan industrialists, when he ruled absolutely or tried to, and when the city populations had very restricted franchise and an unbalanced political advantage was thrown into the country. One derivation of the word "Tory" carries it back to the Gaelic phrase "Ta o rel," meaning "Come, O king." This may be poor Gaelic, but it is historically pat.

The American Tories were decidedly not the men who were proposing and advancing the progressive and liberating measures to which the President referred. They were the men who were sustaining the existing government in its control of American trade, in its revocation of American charters of freedom, in its suppression of American judicial and political rights, and in its restrictions of American liberties. The Tory party was a sound administration party. The men who went ahead exploring not only the great domain of the future United States but the domain of freedom and independence of individual responsibility and initiative were anti-administration and were not Tories. The creed of many of the critics of government in these days is precisely and wholly the creed of the men who made the nation.

WEST POINT IN FOOTBALL.

West Point's position in the college football schedule is coming in for some more scrutiny, with a growing opinion that the cadets should be left out of college competition if the Army's eligibility rules remain what they are. This controversy was at the bottom of the break with the Navy, and now colleges which find West Point consistently a bit too much for them question the propriety of admitting the cadets to their games.

There may be a feeling that the colleges should take their licking and like it, but there's something to be said on the other side. Three years of college football—that is, in intercollegiate competition—is all a boy may play. A West Pointer, meeting one of the college teams, may have played three years in college and be playing his third season for the cadets. It is as if Red Grange, having played three years for Illinois, were eligible for three years more by going into a post-graduate school, medicine, law, veterinary surgeon, or piano playing. If eligibility rules allowed this, college football would produce a lot of post-graduate work.

American amateur rules by and large are not to serve or establish class distinctions, as they frequently are in England, but to give the amateur a competition in which he will not be so outclassed by his opponent that the game isn't good sport. The reasonable theory is that a professional who works at the sport and gets his livelihood out of it will be too much for the man to whom it is a pastime and an exercise. Often the golf amateur in open play is better than the professional, but the rule generally holds good, whatever the exceptions be, that the all time man will beat the part time man.

A boy who wants to continue playing football after his college days has three or four opportunities offered him. If he doesn't need the game for his livelihood he can join one of the numerous amateur or semi-pro teams which are growing in number and increasing their following. He can, if he's very good, retain his association with the game by getting a coaching job, or he can play professional football, if he's a great star, or he can go to West Point if he can qualify. At West Point he will be cared for by the government and he will continue on a great football team. The Army will be very glad to have him there and second louies all over the country will be pleased to read of what he does. As in the case of Cagle, he may do his football stuff and then resign. The good the Army got out of him was mostly on the football field. Probably the best solution of the West Point problem, if the Army is to retain its present eligibility rules, would be to remove the cadet team from the college to the pro schedule, giving West Point as its natural competitors the Chicago Bears, the New York Giants, the Green Bay Packers, and the Boston Red Skins.

WHY VERMONT IS SOLVENT.

[Burlington, Vt., Free Press.]

The Bennington Banner calls attention in a front page news story to the law passed by the 1933 legislature that a citizen who has not paid his poll and flood taxes for 1933 cannot get a license to drive a motor vehicle in 1934. This does not apply to those whose taxes are abated or who are tax exempt.

This law would seem to be a reasonable one, and probably will receive the support of public opinion. A man or woman of legal age who is competent to hold an operator's license should be held responsible for paying flood and poll taxes.

The only exception to this rule which might arise, so far as we can see, would be in the case of a man who might have been unemployed in 1933, so that he has been unable to raise the money to pay his taxes, and then had an opportunity to take a job as chauffeur in 1934. Perhaps in such a case the applicant might borrow enough to pay his taxes on the strength of his prospective job.

Anyhow, this new law should eliminate the possibility of people driving cars who are at the same time receiving aid from charity. That is undoubtedly the purpose of it.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THIS SUSPENSE IS TERRIBLE! Come! Come! Which is it? Do you have to install a bar in the dining room and teach the mamma how to shake the bones and buy a "Sweet Adeline" record for the graphophone and have Junior and little Laura hanging around every time we want a shot of Scotch or do we go over to Joe's or Eddie's or Bill's and walk right up to a public bar and drink like a man?

IT'S THAT INFERNAL celluloid sandwich I dread more than anything else. If they make us buy food with our drinks, then the celluloid sandwich is going to come back. Likewise the gutta percha piece of roast beef and the cardboard fish and the paper lettuce. I'm so absent-minded I have often taken a bite out of those things and aroused the anger of the publican who ran the place. "Say," he would demand in grievous anger, "howdy yuh expect me to be law-abiding and keep all th' rules an' everything if youse guys come in here and eat all the phony grub what I have to put on the table whenever you get a drink? Lay off that grub er I'll sprinkle arsenic on it an' then I guess you'll quit eatin' it."

AND THE GRAMOPHONE playing "Sweet Adeline" in the back dining room when the home bar is in operation doesn't sound one-half as good as the extemporized quartet leaning up against a real bar and lifting up their sweet voices in that beautiful old hymn. And, besides, the "Sweet Adeline" on the talking machine doesn't do the beautiful barber shop chords that the barroom quartet always renders. And the machine doesn't say "Hold it, fellows, hold it," after the words "You're the darling of my heart . . ." Ah, that's the way "Sweet Adeline" must be sung. And then the full pathos of the song comes out. Why, I've seen hardened old bartenders break down and cry like children when the quartet in which I was the tenor sang that song. Maybe it was because I was the tenor. Still it's a mighty touching song.

The sky enshrouds a world unshriven. Weep
No more, O Night! Your tears and sorrow keep
All leashed in aery cave. Your eyes are blind
From mourning. May your pulsing heart be kind
To souls like mine adrift upon the deep
Who've sown to zephyrs and must whirlwinds reap.
For me the fetters of the future bind
The wings of hope. Unless, somewhere afar
Above the murk there shines a star . . . my star.

Have I not food, and warmth, and shelter yet?
Have I not love and dear ones by my side?
I will believe these blessings will abide.
And should the unkind Fates steal them away,
That will be time enough to weep. Today
I will be glad—and all the days that give Me happiness. I will learn how to live
One hour at a time. I will not borrow Anguish, nor fear, nor heartache from tomorrow.

"'ERA OF PEACE BEGINS,' Russia Assures America."—Headline. Tsk, tsk, tsk! Too bad, too bad! Whenever that cussed phrase "Era of Peace Begins" is flaunted in the headlines it usually means war's all over the place.

WHY NOT TREAT that dead ball in a more appropriate manner? It's cut down the scores to the lowest possible denominator and frequently ends in 0-0 anyhow, so it's too late to do anything about that, this season anyhow. But if the ball is dead, then why isn't it treated with proper reverence and courtesy? If it's dead it ought to be buried with proper honors right on the spot where it passed away. So when the referee declares a fumbled ball is dead, let the game stop for the time being. Have two or three young men who have been appointed gravediggers rush in and dig a nice, neat grave right where the ball died. Let one of the coaches or professors say a few well chosen words on what a fine football it was and how nobly it did its duty in the world. Then let it be laid to rest, the grave filled in, the university bands play a requiem, and the game go on. Requiescat in pace.

UNREPENTING MAGDALENE.

I wonder how it is to sleep, to die . . .
The earth for roof and walls, the earth for bed,
No open roads that lead to East or West,
Only the dank of slow decaying flesh,
The passiveness of void . . . and rest . . . rest
. . . rest!

If there be Life in Death, why must I die,
When angels close the blue gates on my face
To bar me from the green fields of the sky?
If my damned soul still echoes one heartbeat,
With creaking knees I'll stagger down to Hell

BLIND STAGGERS.

BLIND STAGGERS is again spreading over the country. The name by which the scientists know it is equine encephalitis, but the stock raisers, farmers, and men using horses will recognize an old enemy. Any farmer who sees Dr. Karl Meyer's moving pictures will exclaim "Blind staggers!" as soon as he sees the sick animals staggering around.

Under one name or another this disorder has been known to owners of horses and mules for almost one hundred years. It comes in epidemics, spaced about ten years apart, with longer intervals between the very bad attacks.

The especial interest, from the standpoint of human health, is that there may be some kind of a relationship between this encephalomyelitis in horses and the form of epidemic encephalitis which has prevailed in St. Louis and nearby cities for several months. Both are infections of the brain substance. Both are liable to infect different parts of the brain with symptoms that differ according to which part is affected. In each of them, when recovery follows, it is apt to be complete. Both occur in the summertime and tend to stop when frost comes. It is reported that one or two men handling horses sick with this disease have contracted the infection.

The proof that the two diseases are the same is worth very little. Certainly it is far from being enough to convince. But what we learn about the disease in animals may teach us something about human encephalitis, and vice versa.

Dr. Meyer, who knows more about the horse disease than anybody else, has worked out some specific methods of prevention and cure. He thinks they proved of service in the latter part of the California outbreak, but not in the outbreak in Utah. The specific methods referred to were based upon a principle. There is the possibility that making use of that principle may be of service in finding specific preventives and cures for the human disease.

The best ordinary treatment of the disease, Dr. Meyer thinks, is good nursing, making the sick horses as comfortable as possible, and not disturbing them much for medication. That is a good point for physicians to know about when they treat their patients with encephalitis.

Dr. Kelser thinks the equine disease is spread by mosquitoes. That relationship will be given careful consideration by those who study the human disease. Some resemblance between the horse disease and infantile paralysis in human beings has been noted by Dr. Meyer. However, he thinks these two are not the same disease.

HICCUPS.

Mrs. G. S. D. writes: I have a little girl 3 years old who is subject to hiccups. She gets them when she laughs. The only way I can stop them is by making her cry. Sugar or water won't help. Have you any suggestions?

REPLY.

Hiccupping is caused by spasmodic contraction of the diaphragm. Your daughter appears to have a hair trigger diaphragm. Behind a tendency to repeated attacks there generally lies some disorder of the stomach. Careful regulation of the diet cures some cases. Since you have found that emotional and mental diversion will stop your child's hiccupping try other methods than making her cry. Have you tried walking a line, touching the fingers of the two hands while the arms are held straight ahead, standing on the head, other physical feats, thrilling stories, and allied attention arresters?

PUTTING ON WEIGHT.

M. D. writes: I am 23 years of age, almost 6 feet in height and weigh about 145 pounds. I would like to gain about fifteen pounds before next January. Do you think it is possible?

REPLY.

It is possible that an average man in good health should be able to put on fifteen pounds in three months. A life of physical inaction, mental relaxation, and full feeding should bring that about. Just now farmers are penning their hogs, tempting them to sleep long hours, and then to eat abundantly. They expect to have each pig put on more than five pounds a month. A man should accomplish five pounds a month, although he could not equal the pig record. But why do it? The person who uses an artificial method to bring about an artificial result is reasonably certain to slip back into his old ways and to lose the gains.

GARNISHMENT.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I at one time was employed by a local railroad. 1. My pay was garnisheed for furniture which I purchased since that time, which is over two years ago. I lost my job with the company. I went to the furniture company and asked them to release the garnishment, which they refused to do, saying if they did the money would come to them. 2. Can they do this after I have paid a portion of this bill and they have the furniture? 3. Are they compelled to give me what furniture I paid for? 4. If suit were brought against the company would I have any chance of getting this money?

R. S.

1. If you mean that your creditor secured judgment against you and followed it up with garnishment proceedings, resulting in a judgment against the railroad company as garnishee, then the railroad company should have turned the money over to the creditor. If all that was done was to serve a demand notice on the railroad company, then they ought to pay the money to you now. If they refuse, you can collect your wages plus attorney's fees, by bringing suit against the railroad company.
2. The mere fact that you have paid part is not conclusive.
3. Probably not. Your rights would depend on the wording of the contract.

Cicero, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. By what procedure can children determine the contents of a will made by their father? The mother assumes to be the entire beneficiary. 2. Are children entitled to any portion of a father's will while the mother is still living? If so, how much? 3. If we can prove that the deceased was not of sound mind at the time he made the last will, what recourse have we? 4. Three wills were made by the mother within a period of two months. [a] If an attorney drew up these wills, would a copy of each be kept on file? [b] Could it be demanded of him to divulge the contents of all the wills? 5. If the mother is not capable of handling the estate, can the children have a conservator appointed to care for same?

H. A. M.

1. Notify her that unless she files the will in the office of the clerk of the Probate court, as required by statute, you will hold her liable for statutory penalties.
2. Depends on the wording of the will.
3. You can file a bill to contest the will on this ground.
4. [a] Possibly yes, and possibly no. [b] No.
5. If the mother is named as executrix in the will and you can prove that she does not have sufficient mental capacity, the handling of the estate would be put in the hands of an "administratrix with the will annexed." We advise the employment of an attorney.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AUCKLAND, N. Z. — Dissatisfied with the results of its policy of state relief of the unemployed, New Zealand is attempting to impose a policy of piecework on the jobless. The latter hotly resent the effort.

Announcing the intention of the unemployment board to adjust pay checks to keep step with work actually done by the jobless on the "relief works," Deputy Chairman Jessep of the board said the policy had been forced on them.

The board was trustee of the money raised by taxation for relief, Jessep said, and a great many jobless would welcome the chance to give of their best. Great injustice was now done by bringing the men down to the same level, Jessep said, and if the demands were not made for the men to extend themselves they would deteriorate in character and ability.

The public which found the funds was looking critically at the situation and watching to see how the money was used, Jessep said.

The board makes it clear that there is no desire to reduce the amount of money earned by each man who is now paid at day rates, but that pay checks will be graduated according to the amount of effort he is willing to put into his task.

"The old New Zealand worker was second to none in the world and if, through our system of relief, we demoralize the men we should not be good trustees for the public," said the board's manifesto on the subject, issued in an appeal to local bodies to fall in line with the new policy. "We have decided to make a change for the better."

The board's justification is that relief works are not and never can be a permanent source of income for any man. The claim is made that they are in existence to aid citizens whose own efforts to obtain work have failed, but to grant that aid only until a new job is found. The length of the depression has resulted in some classes of jobless regarding the tasks given them as permanent.

"This results in a relaxation of the individual effort to obtain an independent livelihood," the board says. "In the national interest this damaging tendency must not be allowed to become established as a characteristic."

There is no doubt that under the existing system the jobless have more than a tendency to take their tasks casually. The men have been employed on trivial tasks of the "make work" type, rounding off small corners of roads, driving roads through country which was of small value, picking up stones, grubbing gorse from hillsides and cutting grass which was harmlessly growing beside country roads.

These tasks have revealed themselves as things which might very well not be done at all and the men have not been slow to realize this.

The national organization of the jobless, through Secretary S. R. Vella, proclaims its intention to fight the scheme. Speeding up is no remedy for the problem, declares Vella, who points to the fact that if greater pace is needed mechanical equipment can provide it much better than the men. Vella asserts that a "fair wage" is the best spur to effort which the unemployed could receive.

THE NEW DEAL EXPLAINED.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—In your editorial of yesterday entitled "A Reply to Secretary Wallace" you state that if Secretary Wallace had allowed nature to take its course the farmers of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, and Wisconsin, and the other Mississippi states would now be "working their way through to prosperity" because farmers that have not the same natural advantages would have been "forced out of production."

The method of curing a depression by sacrificing the man with less advantages to the man with greater advantages is not the New Deal method and the policy of building prosperity for one section of the country on the bankruptcy of another section is against the doctrine of national unity which must be the basis of any statesmanship worth the name in a country which has reached the limit of its frontiers. Your proposal would seem, therefore, to justify still further Secretary Wallace's protest against the unstatesmanlike character of some of the "molding" which Chicago newspapers are endeavoring to apply to the opinions of Chicago citizens.

That the New Deal in agriculture plans to take poor farm land out of cultivation voluntarily and in an orderly manner, with benefit and not ruin to the families farming it, has been explained by the President, Secretary Wallace, and others, who have also explained that in consequence of this policy the reclamation schemes will create neither greater farm acreage nor greater food supply, the aim being rather to provide farm lands on which the needed food supply can be grown with a minimum of effort and expense, which should ultimately result in cheaper food for the cities as well as in greater profits for the farmers. These reclamation schemes do not aim, as you state, "to bring in still more land to compete with the Mississippi valley," since as they are brought in poor lands are to be taken out to maintain the balance found desirable, from the point of view of agriculture and the consumer.

FLORENCE ANNAN CARPENTER.

DISHONESTY IN RELIEF.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—While our Illinois emergency relief and our Judge Alfred O. Erickson are priding themselves so vastly on the jail terms they give our hungry and unfortunate because they earned a little money elsewhere to cover their rent while accepting charity food, let them answer this:

Since the judge admitted the other day that the victims deserved charity, but were sentenced only because they did not tell the whole truth even though not under oath, how long a sentence should the Illinois emergency relief get for all the nonpaying charity tenants they have knowingly placed under false pretenses in the homes of our Chicago landlords? Question a few landlords for their stories. I was one till I lost my home. One of my tenants, a charity person, asked them for his check for the first month's rent in a new place after he owed me for five months—and they told him to go back and stay in my flat till I get a court order. By so doing they forced me to keep him till I could spend $17.50 for such proceedings.

When they place such a tenant, knowing that with the help they give him the landlord will hold the bag on the rent, if that isn't an act with intent to deceive, what is it? They then placed this same party, through the aid of a real estate place, right into another such vacated flat. How are the landlords then to pay taxes to pay teachers' salaries, etc.?

A. F.

QUESTIONS FOR MR. WALLACE.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Just what did Secretary Wallace have in mind when he spoke about Chicago becoming an ash heap? Who would cause this conflagration? Does he think city folks should not object to being taxed for the benefit of farmers?

Why should the millions of unemployed city dwellers, who are now spending the last of their life's savings, be taxed 30 cents a bushel on wheat and the money given to farmers?

No matter how small a price per bushel farmers get for their grain, they nevertheless can buy more with what they do receive than an urbanite can with the rent he receives from an empty flat or store. If farming is so unprofitable I imagine they will have to do what the individual retail merchants have already done.

If the government pays farmers for their idle land, why should it not pay rent to owners of vacant stores and flats and idle factories? If it buys the surplus pigs and cotton, why not the surplus automobiles and radios?

Should the government boost the price of bread and milk to benefit the farmers while there are so many millions out of work? Would not prices take care of themselves if we all had jobs again?

MORT.

THEY WERE HEADLINED.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Day by day the attacks upon the President's recovery program are becoming more vociferous. Supposedly responsible persons make general statements that it has failed or is failing. It seems that some professors and the local press are rather presumptuous in drawing such conclusions at this date. Many of the blank statements do not square with facts. The writer, for instance, noted the following facts on the financial page of one date [Nov. 14]: "Rail Freight Gain Over 1932 Best In Six Weeks." The gain over 1932 was estimated at 30,000 cars. "Repayments to RFC Exceeding New Loans." This statement had reference to a period of three months ending Sept. 30. Another estimate placed class one railroad earnings for the year 1933 as sufficient to cover their fixed charges as against a loss of $150,000,000 in 1932. The earnings of industrial corporations show an analogous improvement. So how about a little less ranting on "failures" and a little more headlining of such encouraging things? The writer has a suspicion that much of the recent criticism can be accounted for by the fact that the recovery program has succeeded to such an extent that industrial and financial leaders now feel that they could carry it through if placed in the saddle again.

M. P. RAPACZ.

CRITICISM.

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 17.—Much has been said in recent months to make it appear unpatriotic to resist or even criticize the policies of the present federal administration. Now the fact is that it is and always has been highly patriotic to offer criticism of government action, particularly when administration policies seem to be leading the country in the wrong direction. Every man is entitled to express his views on the Res Publica—that is the meaning of the republican form of government; it is the meaning of democracy.

Has any candidate for the presidency ever refrained from pointing out the errors of the administration he sought to supplant? Did the present incumbent assail his predecessor or did he not? And was he considered unpatriotic because he did? The election returns contain the answer. And yet he was then doing the very thing that is now so vociferously condemned on the ground of patriotism.

EXTEND PENALTY DATE ON 438,000 HOMES AND FLATS

County Treasurer McDonough made an announcement yesterday "extending" the penalty date on the second installment of 1931 taxes on 438,000 homes and small flat buildings in the county, which he had previously set for yesterday, to Dec. 1.

The extension was announced because of County Judge Jarecki's postponement of his hearing on the petition of the Chicago Real Estate board to grant a 15 per cent cut on building assessments to the owners of the 438,000 properties, in a blanket order. That hearing will be resumed today.

Legally, the penalty date of Sept. 1, fixed by the legislature still stands, and the legislature will have to ratify the treasurer's extension. Whether the extension can be granted to small property owners without extending the same penalty date for owners of other real estate is a question which has not been ruled upon by the courts, but which may be presented to them later.

Collections on Upturn.

The summary of tax collections for the last four years, released yesterday by Treasurer McDonough, gave hope that with the 15 per cent case disposed of and small property owners assured of the exact amount which they still owe on their 1931 tax bills, that the curve of real estate tax payments, which has been declining steadily for four years, may soon turn upward again.

Up to Monday, the treasurer reported, 90.26 per cent of taxes levied against real estate for 1928 had been paid. This percentage of real estate payments drops to 78.49 per cent in 1929, to 68.77 per cent for 1930, and to 60.79 per cent for 1931, the last levy placed in collection.

A detailed analysis by the treasurer of the 1931 payments, however, shows that 72.21 per cent of the first installment of real estate taxes has been paid. This is a higher average than the total real estate collections for 1930, and within striking distance of the percentage paid on the 1929 levy, in collection two years longer and subject to the provisions of the Kerner-Skarda tax receiver act, which does not apply to 1931 taxes.

Uncertainty Hurts Collection.

The total of 1931 real estate payments is lowered by the fact that only 49.38 per cent has been paid on second installment bills. This low average, however, is largely due to uncertainty of the hundreds of thousands of small property owners as to the amount they legally owe, due to the long and complicated court contest over the 15 per cent cut.

Treasurer McDonough's figures show that while the percentage of payments of personal property taxes has declined steadily from 69.45 for 1928 to 47.48 for 1931, the $33,610,847 which has been taken in on the 1931 personal property levy is the largest sum in the history of the county.

In 1928 collections of 69.45 per cent amounted to $27,805,268 of the total personal property taxes extended. In 1929 and 1930, while the percentage of collections declined, the amount collected in both years exceeded the 1928 total.

The percentage of 1931 personal property collections is now less than 6 per cent below the 1930 level, despite the action of Assessor Jacobs in making the hitherto unprecedented number of 800,000 personal property assessments for 1931. By way of contrast, the percentage of 1930 collections is 14 per cent below those for 1929.

2 LINK BENTLEY TO GIRL'S DEATH; QUARREL TOLD

Prisoner's Wife Hears Charges Made.

Pontiac, Ill., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Two persons said they saw an auto veer sharply from its course to run over the body of Aldine Younger, prostrate on state route 116, as they faced the jury today that is trying Earle Bentley for the girl's murder March 1.

Bentley is married and a member of a wealthy Pontiac family. His wife has attended the trial since its beginning.

John Smith, a farmer, said he was returning eastward from a party early on the morning of March 1 and he met a large machine traveling at a tremendous speed. A few feet further, he said, he saw and passed the body of Miss Younger.

Smith said he proceeded to the home of Edward Roberts, some distance further, picked Roberts up, and returned westward toward the body.

As he neared the place, he said, a large machine carrying two men crazily left its course and its wheels passed over the body. To avoid a crash with the car, Smith said, he had to drive his own car off the road.

Earlier Wesley B. Shrigley, a farm hand, told the court that he was awakened early the night of the tragedy by voices engaged in a dispute on the highway in front of the home of John Hutson, where he was staying.

A woman's voice, he said, denounced Earle Bentley by name and shouted an intention to walk home before she would ride in the car.

A male voice, he said, profanely threatening, told the woman she couldn't "get away with that."

Having heard the dispute Shrigley retired again, he said, only to be aroused shortly afterwards by screams. Looking he saw an object lying in the highway, he said, and a person was bending over it. In a moment the persons stepped over the object, ran 15 or 20 feet away, stopped and looked back, then disappeared into the shadows of a tree, he said.

He then heard the motor of an auto start, he said, and saw the car coming down the pavement in second gear. He said the car was so steered off its course that the wheels passed over the object in the road. It drove away to the east, he said.

The body of Miss Younger was found in the spot where Shrigley testified he had seen the obect.

TELLS WHY CLUB HAS FAILED TO PAY BACK TAXES

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $806,518, making a total of $89,887,715 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the last four years follow:

Nov. 21	$ 19,975	$ 49,829
Uncollected	16,346,146	43,480,529
	1930.	1931.
Nov. 21	$ 66,058	$ 670,656

Reports from 30 receivers on properties they control were filed yesterday with Chief Justice Dennis J. Normoyle of the Circuit court. The reports showed that the properties owe $175,000 in taxes for 1928, 1929, and 1930. Mark Shanks, receiver for the Midwest Athletic club, disclosed in his report that the club owes $43,439 in back taxes, but pleaded that high operating cost made it impossible for the club to apply large portions of its income on the bill. He was ordered to file a more detailed report.

County Judge Jarecki during the day appointed County Treasurer McDonough receiver for 38 income bearing properties under the Kerner-Skarda act to allow him to collect overdue taxes totaling $77,000.

WM. WRIGLEY CO. RESPONDS 100 PCT. TO THE RED CROSS

The first corporation to complete a 100 per cent roll call among its employes in the current membership drive of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, was the William Wrigley Jr. company, the chapter headquarters announced yesterday. The Red Cross drive, which started Armistice day, will continue until Thanksgiving.

"We may not always have been the first to turn in a perfect Red Cross membership roster," Philip K. Wrigley said yesterday, "but as far back as I can remember we have always tried to be. We consider the Red Cross a 100 per cent worthwhile cause, deserving of the unanimous support of everyone in our organization."

Mrs. Frederick W. Upham, a member of the board of incorporators of the American National Red Cross, and honorary chairman of the volunteer service committee of the Chicago chapter, in a radio address yesterday told of the work of the Red Cross.

"Public funds have been made available for the relief of unemployment, but not for the disasters to which the Red Cross is called," she said. "Thirty-five thousand Red Cross nurses are ready for the call of need. More than 20,000 volunteers are registered with the Chicago chapter alone. They assisted in the past year more than 11,000 relief workers to clothe nearly 200,000 families."

ROBBERS KNIFE CONDUCTOR.

U. of C. Explains Dodd's Request for a Leave

The request of William E. Dodd, American ambassador to Germany, for a leave of absence early next spring, is for the purpose of permitting him to perform administrative duties as head of the history department at the University of Chicago, it was said yesterday by university officials. Recently President Robert Hutchins sent Ambassador Dodd a letter urging him to return for a time in accordance with plans made when he left the school to take the diplomatic post.

HOW TO IDENTIFY CHRISTMAS FUND AGENTS IS TOLD

Mayor Kelly issued a warning yesterday against the purchase from unauthorized agents of tickets for Chicago's Own Christmas benefit or of advertising space in the benefit program. The authorized agents, he said, carry letters signed by Col. A. A. Sprague, treasurer of the charity, and Barnet Hodes, secretary. The benefit is to be held on Dec. 20 in the Chicago Stadium.

"The entire fund will be turned over to Col. Sprague, and none of the money will be spent without his approval," said the mayor. "This benefit is for Chicago's poor children, and although it was planned originally to distribute baskets of food, it is now thought more practical to spend the money on actual presents for the children.

"Each child will receive shoes, stockings, a cap and a sweater. All the purchasing will be done by a committee composed of D. F. Kelly, John T. Pirie and Joseph M. Cudahy."

Davenport Will Get Natural Gas by Jan. 1

Davenport, Ia., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Davenport will have natural gas about Jan. 1, it was announced today by the Peoples Light company. Construction work will begin immediately on arrival of steel and cast iron pipe and other materials which have already been ordered. COOKING SCHOOL ARTIST TAKES HER CUE FROM NATURE

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

A culinary masterpiece, it's motif, the seasons of the year, represented in bright colored vegetables upon a mound of snowy bread, grew under the nimble fingers of Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood yesterday, while 5,000 housewives of the north side looked on. Mrs. Chitwood, who is widely known as a home economics expert, created this and other enticing dishes at the opening session of THE TRIBUNE'S north side cooking school in the Aragon ballroom, 1100 Lawrence avenue.

Crowds swarmed about the entrance of the ballroom long before the doors opened at 10 a. m. By 12:30, the hour for the opening of the program, the ushers were hunting for more chairs to accommodate the crowd. A considerable number waited outside.

The cooking school, which Mrs. Chitwood conducts in coöperation with Miss Mary Meade, TRIBUNE cooking editor, will be held daily through Friday.

Setting for Culinary Art.

The setting for the preparation of Mrs. Chitwood's outstanding dish of the day was a kitchen in red, cream and yellow. She called the dish "garden sandwich loaf."

Mrs. Chitwood sliced the long loaf of bread lengthwise, made a filling of boiled eggs, salmon, green olives, and shredded lettuce, chopping it and moistening it with salad dressing. When the filling had been placed on the slices, she covered the outside with cream cheese.

"Now comes the artistic part," Mrs. Chitwood continued. "Stand asparagus tips around the outside of the loaf and bank shredded lettuce around their base. Crumple the white of hard boiled egg over this—this is the snow. In the middle of the mound I will place a sprig of parsley with cranberries hanging from the limbs. Get the idea of an apple tree? Scatter some of the apples on the ground below the tree and crumple some of the egg yolk—these are yellow blossoms. You might add some more snow in the form of crumpled egg white over the green tree.

Other Delicacies Prepared.

Other dishes followed. Mrs. Chitwood made egg foo yong of eggs, shredded onion, bean sprouts, and tuna fish. Then she concocted a salad of bananas, dates, lettuce and salad dressing, garnishing it with red cherries.

Then came lemon sweet potatoes which she described as "delicious and nutritious." This dish may be served cold or hot. In addition to the sweet potatoes Mrs. Chitwood used brown sugar, melted butter, grated lemon rind, the juice of prunes, and whipped cream. Next was ham à la Canada, made of ham, bread crumbs, melted butter and ginger ale.

Another supper dish was macaroni with broiled ham, a recipe that included also grated cheese, milk, and butter. Mrs. Chitwood ended the first half of her lecture with her favorite recipe for making chocolate pie. At the opening of the program, when she was being introduced to her old friends of the north side, she was presented with a huge bouquet of chrysanthemums and roses by Mrs. Ann Cameron, 4117 North Spaulding avenue, in behalf of the north side women.

Opening of the Program.

At 12:30 Phil Maxwell, master of ceremonies, welcomed the women of the north side. Then followed an hour of entertainment, preceding Mrs. Chitwood's demonstration. Among the entertainers was Richard De Young, who, with Elsie Barge at the piano, led the women in singing "School Days" and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

Following the intermission Erik Dahlberg, maitre d'hotel at the Drake hotel, demonstrated one of the favorite foods at the Drake. Frances Peck, home economics expert for the H. J. Heinz company, spoke, and Julian Stripe, best man singer of the 1933 Chicagoland music festival, sang Mana-Zucci's "I Love Life," and Austin's "The Little White Cottage," with Mrs. Berenice Reutlinger at the piano. Lorraine Nevens and Lois Grider distributed the prizes of the day.

Today, Frank Bennett with Cathryn Bennett at the piano, will lead community singing. The Lawson Y. W. C. A. glee club will sing, and Tony D'Orazi, cartoonist of the air on W-G-N; Lawrence Gray of the cast of "Sailor Beware" at the Selwyn theater; Phil Harris, screen and radio star; and Leah Ray, will make personal appearances. Students of the Murray Browne school will dance. Ernest Amiet, executive chef of the Palmer house will give a demonstration.

With turkeys at the lowest price in years, Chicago merchants estimated yesterday that a family turkey dinner and all the trimmings would cost no more than $3.84. Turkey prices quoted yesterday ranged from 19 to 22 cents a pound.

Dealers reported a plentiful supply of turkeys at that price from Montana, Minnesota, and the northwest in general. Prices on other fowls were reported proportionately low; ducks were quoted at 16 to 19 cents a pound, geese about the same; chickens, 14 to 16 cents for good grades.

Items in the menu of the estimated $3.84 dinner are as follows: ten pound turkey, $2; pumpkin pie, 20 cents; three pounds of cranberries, 29 cents; five pounds sweet potatoes, 25 cents; three bunches of celery, 14 cents; turnips, 25 cents; one pound butter, 25 cents; four eggs [for pie, etc.], 11 cents; bread, 10 cents; cream, nuts, sweets, etc., 40 cents.

Marry or Resign! German City Orders Payrollers

FRANKFURT-AM-MAIN, Germany, Nov. 21.—All bachelors employed in the city's administration, from high officials to common laborers, have been ordered by the chief mayor to show cause why they should not marry, or resign. Sixteen hundred are admonished that their conduct is out of joint with the population-multiplying policy of the new régime and that their holding on to their jobs without having families prejudices the position of fellow citizens who are fathers.

NEW MEXICO'S LEGION GROUP IS DISCIPLINED

Charter Is Suspended for Political Activity.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The national executive committee of the American Legion today approved a subcommittee's recommendation that the charter of the New Mexico department be suspended. This is said to be the first action of this kind taken by the Legion.

The suspension was recommended after an investigation of charges that the New Mexico department has become involved in political factionalism. Edward A. Hayes, new national commander, will appoint a committee to assume temporary control of that department.

The subcommittee report set forth it was conceded in New Mexico: "That the leaders of each faction are individually capable of men and Legionnaires.

"That the two factions have differences so fundamental that coöperation and mutual effort is impossible."

Osborne C. Wood, son of the late Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, is the commander of the New Mexico department. He was elected last August.

TWO SENTENCED FOR THEFT.

Ed Coulin, 23 years old, 1077 North Marshfield avenue, and Walter Bostenkak, 22 years old, 927 North Lincoln street, were sentenced yesterday by Judge Jay A. Schiller to serve six months each in the House of Correction on charges of petit larceny.

BANKERS NAME COPELAND AS ONE OF THIEVES

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Harry Copeland, captured in Chicago Sunday, a member of the John Dillinger gang, again underwent severe questioning today by Indiana and Ohio authorities in the city prison here.

They asked Copeland about bank robberies and the murder of Sheriff Jess Sarber at Lima, O. Copeland insisted he was not present at Lima when Dillinger was freed and Sarber killed.

A. C. Crays, president of the Rockville State bank, and his son, R. P. Crays, pointed out Copeland among a group of men as one of those who robbed that bank some time ago.

Extra precautions are being taken to prevent Copeland's release by gangster pals. Sixteen heavily armed men also are guarding several suspects charged with the murder of Police Sergeant Lester Jones. Two already have been convicted. Anonymous false alarms for police reserves received tonight led officials to the belief that an effort would be made to raid the jail.

INDIANA GANG IS ACCUSED OF RACINE HOLDUP

Racine, Wis., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—John Dillinger, Indiana desperado and prison breaker, wanted in many cities for bank robbery, and Charles Makley and Harry Pierpont, two members of his gang, today were named in warrants charging them with participating in the holdup of the American Bank and Trust company here yesterday.

A policeman and an assistant bank cashier were shot; the bank president, a woman employé, and a policeman were kidnaped and later released 35 miles from the scene, and $27,700 in cash and an undetermined amount in bonds were carried away by the bandits.

The warrants were issued after a dozen witnesses of yesterday's holdup were shown police pictures of men involved, it is alleged, in a jail delivery from the Michigan City, Ind., prison and in the slaying of Sheriff Jess Sarber at Lima, O., when desperados released Dillinger from the county jail there on Oct. 12.

Each of the three is charged in the warrants with bank robbery while armed. In Wisconsin this charge carries a sentence of from 3 to 33 years.

Witnesses also were shown pictures of Russell Lee Clark, 33, and Joseph Burns, 40, who were among the convicts who fled the Indiana penitentiary in September. Chief of Police Lutter said there was no identification of these men and that they are only suspects.

Concrete evidence was found today that the Indiana gang of bandits has been in this district for nearly two weeks. Three Indiana troopers came to Milwaukee to seek them after $1,500 in liberty bonds, stolen in one of the bank robberies in that state, were paid over to a Milwaukee automobile dealer on Nov. 10.

WOUNDED SUSPECT ARRESTED.

Archie Jarrett, 24 years old, 3936 Prairie avenue, colored, was arrested yesterday in a pool room at 439 East 37th street when he refused to explain how he received a bullet wound in his right arm.

Do jangled nerves make you rude?

Are you fault-finding, "picky"—about nothing that really matters? Not because the other person is wrong, not because you are naturally mean, but because your nerves are a-jangle...out of tune?

Watch your nerves. Get your full amount of sleep every night. Eat regularly and sensibly. Find time for recreation. And smoke Camels—for Camel's costlier tobaccos never get on your nerves.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

Many Parties Planned for Debut Crowd

Small Affairs Scheduled for Near Future.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE calendars of the debutantes who haven't gone east for the football games are filled with all sorts of notations, for even though there aren't any very large parties scheduled for the next few weeks there are innumerable small ones. And as much as they love the big balls and teas, the young people enjoy the smaller affairs almost more. This coming Sunday night the Edward C. Crossetts are giving a buffet supper for Miss Jean Hyman and Miss Anne Palmer, two buds of the season. Between forty and fifty of the debutante crowd have been invited and after supper the guests will dance or play keno and bridge.

Those two popular Lake Forest debs, Patsy Keith and Nancy Morse, are to be given a dinner-dance at the Casino by the Lester Armours on Dec. 8, and on Saturday, the 16th, the Philip Armours will give a similar party for the two young ladies at their Lake Forest residence. Sunday, Dec. 10, will find thirty or more of the buds and their beaux motoring out to Barrington for a luncheon that Mrs. Ernest L. Hughes and her debutante daughter, Kean, are giving for another bud of the season, Miss Virginia Ashcraft. Sammy will be there to play the piano, so that if it is too warm for ice skating or sledding the guests can enjoy dancing.

Miss Barbara Bastien is to have two parties given for her by uncles and aunts. The first, a dinner on Dec. 9, is to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lloyd Kelly in the Lake Shore drive apartment of Mrs. Kelly's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Wetten; and the second, a buffet supper on Dec. 17, will be given by the Carl Duncan Kellys in their attractive home on the Indian Hill club grounds.

Sale Tomorrow Will Aid Eli Bates House.

Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen is opening her home at 1430 Astor street tomorrow for a sale under the auspices of the board of directors of the Eli Bates house. Mrs. Bowen's daughter, Mrs. William McCormick Blair, chairman of the board, will be in charge and will entertain some of the assistants at luncheon at her residence at 1416 Astor street. Mrs. Bowen's other daughter, Mrs. De Koven Phelps, will entertain at luncheon for some of the assistants, too, and so will the junior Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson.

Those who will assist are Mrs. Byron S. Harvey, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Mrs. Bruce Borland, Mrs. James C. Hutchins, Mrs. George R. Nichols, Mrs. Russell Forgan, Mrs. Charles F. Glore, Mrs. Donald B. Douglas, Mrs. Albert B. Dick Jr., Mrs. Lester Armour, Mrs. Philip D. Armour, Mrs. A. Watson Armour, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. Laurence B. Robbins, Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy Jr.

Mrs. McCormick Blair is one of those who are planning dinner parties to precede the Assembly ball on Dec. 15. Mrs. Huntington B. Henry, Mrs. Francis Johnson, Mrs. Paul McBride, Mrs. Byron Harvey, and Mrs. William Mitchell also will be dinner hostesses before the ball.

Annual Meeting of Needlework Guild.

Such lovely as well as useful Christmas presents as some of the husbands and other dear ones of the members of the Needlework and Textile guild of the Art institute are going to receive this year!

And you may be sure only persons dearly loved ever receive gifts made by these patient and clever women, for there are too many stitches in each article to be wasted on some one who isn't very near and dear. Yesterday afternoon at the annual meeting at Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift's handsome home at Astor street and North avenue the members selected the things they plan to make for Christmas from among the samples on display, and without telling any secrets we can say that we know there will be some stunning petit point scarfs and pocketbooks to match, spectacle cases, cigaret cases, luggage racks, bedroom slippers and various other similar things in the Christmas stockings of many fathers, sons and daughters of the fashionable women who make up the membership of the guild.

Some of the samples were partly completed articles that the members are making, but we dare not tell you about them lest we spoil long planned surprises. But we can tell you about Mrs. Oakleigh L. Thorne's stunning mules, for she is making them for herself. Inspired perhaps by the fact that she has been living until recently on a glorified farm at Millbrook, N. Y., she has chosen the cockiest of roosters to ornament the toes of her new petit point mules. Her mother, Mrs. Potter Palmer, is making a picture for herself that gives promise of being charming. The design was taken from a very old sampler given to the guild by Mrs. Richard Stearns and obtained by Mrs. Stearns' grandmother in Mexico. It is one of six samplers taken to Mexico by Maximilian.

After the business meeting tea was served with Mrs. Palmer, smart in dark red, and Mrs. Robert A. Gardner, lovely in Kelly green, pouring. Miss Geraldine Swift, chic in a dark cloth skirt and a delicate green and silver blouse, assisted her mother as hostess.

Mrs. Thorne and Mrs. C. Morse Ely are the new directors elected and those reelected are Mrs. Swift, Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. Gardner, Mrs. Chauncey

REMEMBER the "Where's Elmer?" gag that was born at the time of the American Legion convention when a Legionnaire was missing at the time the parade was forming? It had a temporary revival Monday when, among the false reports of the landing of Commander T. G. W. Settle, there was one report that he had landed in a town called Elmer. Everybody was asking "Where's Elmer?" which is a village of 600 population in New Jersey.

ALSO, we hear through our scouts that there was a little apprehension on the part of radio station officials who kept in touch with Commander Settle and Maj. Chester L. Fordney by radio. This was because, Maj. Fordney being a marine, they thought he might indulge in language ill suited to the ears of short wave set owners and the air regulations. As a matter of fact Maj. Fordney did say "hell" once. He commented that Settle was as busy as hell. But a little later, during one of the conversations, he said discreetly "Heavens, no!"

THE headquarters of the department of music at the University of Chicago is being moved from Ingleside hall to the Graduate club on University avenue, and Carl Bricken, creator and head of the department, asked his secretary to see to the sending of the piano to the new quarters.

"Just one big piano?" she asked.

"Yes," Mr. Bricken instructed her.

"No little piano?" she persisted.

ROSITA FORBES is in town and a friend from Washington, who wrote us that she was coming, told a diverting story we will pass along to you. Miss Forbes was at a dancing party in her native England and had left her hand on her partner's shoulder as they danced. A Capt. Arthur McGrath, standing in the stag line, saw the hand. He did not see the face, but thought the hand so exquisite that he insisted upon being presented to the owner of it. Shortly thereafter they were married. . . . The friend says Miss Forbes, whose experience covers wild animals and sheiks, wants to meet some gangsters in Chicago, has mentioned Mr. Spike O'Donnell specifically, and can I fix it up?

Doris Duke Now Richest Girl in World

She was 21 then and came into control of a third of the Duke fortune. Her attorneys wouldn't estimate the amount, pointing out that daily market capers affected greatly such a stupendous investment.

However, approximately $10,000,000 passed into her hands at midnight.

Her entire legacy has been estimated at $30,000,000. She will get another third at 25, and the last third at 30.

Her father, the late James Buchanan Duke, built up a fortune in North Carolina and swelled it in the money marts of the world. Water power developments, tobacco interests, and investments in many other fields amassed the Duke fortune.

"I wish," she said once, "I could go into a store and shop for things just as any girl."

Miss Duke owns a town house on East 78th street here, a 5,000-acre estate at Somerville, N. J., a castle at Newport, an estate in North Carolina, and another estate at Antibes.

Tomorrow, the girl will be a trustee of Duke university at Durham, N. C., but she never attended college. She went to Briarley and a private school at Aiken, S. C.

Her New York town house is valued at $1,600,000. Her father's estate was valued at $101,000,000 when he died in 1925.

A Simple EASY way to banish FUSSY APPETITES

—and it costs only a few pennies! Although such a claim seems to be rather large, it is not too much to say that serving CREAMETTES to children who are otherwise fussy about their eating, frequently solves meal-time arguments. They like CREAMETTES and eat this delicious Macaroni product eagerly and willingly. Furthermore, CREAMETTES are healthful and nourishing. Sold at grocers.

Brilliant Audience of Social Leaders Sees Olivet Benefit

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

INTIMATE opera was given a grand premiere last night at the first of three benefits Mrs. Howard Linn has arranged for Olivet institute, and although this form of opera never may supplant or even approach in popularity the grand opera with which Chicago society is familiar, certainly no performance of grand opera here ever was witnessed by a more brilliant audience.

Every one whose name makes social news was there and all agreed that Mrs. Linn had achieved a notable success in staging such an unusual affair, one that had the flavor of the old world with all its charm and distinction.

The moment one stepped into the marble foyer that adjoins the grand ballroom of the Palmer house where the performance was given one felt as if she were in a foreign atmosphere—perhaps in Vienna in the time of Marie-Theres when operas intimes were given at the court regularly.

Those who dined in the foyer must have felt a little like animals in a zoo, however, when the early arrivals for the opera began coming for they had to walk along corridors that were separated from the foyer only by pillars and of course they peered between the pillars and the palms that partially hid the diners from view to see who was there. Their peering was well rewarded, too, for there they saw the creme de la creme of society.

Mrs. Linn, radiantly beautiful as always, was in black chiffon and lace, the skirt wired at the hips to give a bouffant effect and the décolletage and armholes softened with narrow and delicate ruffles of chiffon. Deep purple orchids were fastened to her right shoulder. In her party was Mr. Linn, the Arthur Meekers and their son, Arthur Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins, Miss Edith Cummings, Miss Francise Clow, and the Ambrose C. Cramers.

Louise Dewey with Fiance.

Dining at the only table for two we noticed were Miss Louise Dewey and her fiancé, Edward B. Smith. Miss Dewey's blonde beauty was intensified by the gown of sky blue velvet she wore. Embroidered ruffles of organdy the same color as the velvet outlined the armholes and formed butterfly sleeves.

A dinner party that came in for its full share of attention and interest was that of Mrs. Welch Dickinson, who was entertaining for Mme. Elizabeth de Gramont, the countess of Clermont-Tonnerre. The others in this party were Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, Robert Hall McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Taylor, Mrs. Jefferson Jackson, Mme. Gay, and William Darrow.

One of the most distinguished parties was that of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick, whose guests were Mr. and Mrs. John T. Pirie, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Farwell, Mrs. Moses Wentworth, and John V. Farwell.

Dining with Evan Evans, president of the board of Olivet, were Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Durbin, Mrs. Brentano Meyer, Albert S. Gardner, and the junior Joseph E. Otises. Mrs. Durbin was stunning in a tomato red satin gown, made very simply, with a sheaf of gardenias on one shoulder. Huge ruby and diamond earrings were her only jewels.

Smoking of Young Shocks Elders.

Some of the young girls who sold flowers before the performance must have thought that music hall manners were in order at intimate opera, for they shocked their elders by lighting cigarets and smoking throughout the first opera. They were sitting in the balcony where the boxes were, in full view of the entire ballroom, and their informal manners seemed decidedly out of place in such a formal assemblage.

Tiaras, not the diamond ones of former days, but just as effective rhinestone ones, were worn by at least half the women, and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy has revived the style of wearing a wide band of silver ribbon in her hair. Very becoming it was, too, to this lovely person, who was wearing a gown of soft mauve velvet last night with orchids at her breast.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne, always perfectly groomed and exquisite looking, was stunning last night in dull black trimmed with wide fringe. Her long gloves were black, too, and her only jewels were large lustrous pearls.

Mrs. Fowler McCormick also had chosen huge pearls as her only ornament and she, too, was in simple black. Mrs. Edward H. Bennett's black chiffon gown was set off to advantage by a black and white feather boa, and she was one of the many wearing a delicate tiara. Feathers trimmed many of the smartest gowns and a number of women, Mrs. J. Andrews King, for instance, wore a separate bertha of feathers. Hers was of white coque and topped a gown of white satin. Princess Galitzine had epaulets of white coque feathers, a dashing touch to a severely simple black gown.

Tall and slender Miss Helen Bell was a picture in an old fashioned looking frock of brown taffeta with rhinestone stars nestling in her soft brown hair. Busy greeting and being welcomed by her old friends during the intermission was the Countess Cenci, the former Felicite Oglesby, who was with the Thomas W. Hindes and their daughter, Miss Sarah Hinde.

Coffee was served during the entr'acte from a round buffet table in the foyer, which had been cleared of the dinner tables, another feature that made one feel as if she were in Vienna.

Some of the others who enjoyed the benefit were Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, the Graham Aldises, the Donald McPhersons, the William A. Nitzes (their daughter, Mrs. Walter Paepcke, who had designed the settings and costumes was back stage in a blue smock all during the evening), Mrs. De Koven Phelps, the junior Joseph T. Bowens, Rockefeller Prentice, the Melvin A. Traylors, the Lester Armours, the Philip D. Armours, the Charles F. Glores, the John J. Mitchells, the Robert A. Gardners, Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, the Leslie Wheelers, and the Ellsworth Latlins.

Miss Elizabeth Bolles Bride at Fort Sheridan

Miss Elizabeth Lanehart Bolles, daughter of Brig. Gen. Frank G. Bolles and Mrs. Bolles, became the bride of Lieut. Robert A. Hewitt II., last night in a military ceremony in the chapel at Fort Sheridan, where the bride's family is living and where young Lieut. and Mrs. Hewitt will be at home in about ten days.

The service was read at 8:30 o'clock by the Rev. James T. De Wolfe of Kansas City, where the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Robert B. Hewitt, resides. Chrysanthemums and leaves in gorgeous autumn colorings decorated the chapel and the Officers' club where a reception was held after the ceremony.

The bride was lovely in ivory satin with a long train and long sleeves, puffed at the shoulders. Her tulle veil was held in place with a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a white satin muff ornamented with white orchids and valley lilies.

The maid of honor, Miss Henrietta Bolles, wore rust color crêpe with butterfly sleeves and carried yellow "mums." The bridesmaids, Miss Ann Foster, Miss Dorothy Putnam and Miss Kathryne Robinson of Indiana were in gold crêpe with brown chiffon ruffles that resembled leis around their necks. They carried chrysanthemums of reddish gold.

Lieut. Frederick W. Ellery served as best man for Lieut. Hewitt, who is aid to Gen. Bolles, and ushering were Lieuts. Field H. Tapping, John G. Ondrick, Walter A. Downing, Dwight B. Johnson, John C. McCawley and Samuel E. Otto. The six ushers crossed swords to form an archway for the newly married couple to walk under when they left the altar, and the bridegroom's sword was used by the bride when she cut the wedding cake.

The bride was graduated from Ferry Hall in 1932 and last year she attended Lake Forest university. Lieut. Hewitt, who was graduated from West Point in 1932, and his bride will go east on their honeymoon and will attend the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia Saturday.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

There are times when one thinks that the ancients had a reasonably clever idea about how to present operas. These two little pieces were presented last night in the ancient manner. That is, in the days when opera houses did not exist, the aristocrats of Florence and elsewhere used to stage them in their own drawing rooms.

It brought them closely, intimately to the audiences. The scenery, as in last night's case, was simplified to the last degree. The music, the action, the singers were the important elements. Nothing else counted.

One comes to the conclusion that if the seventeenth century Florentines were able to assemble an organization like that of the twentieth century Chicagoans, they must have had a good time on opera night, for last night's performance was charming.

Responsibility for the name of the New York Music guild must rest upon Mr. Krueger, its director. Everything else, casts, stage director, orchestra, was Chicagoan. All of which aroused a rather vivid idea that Chicago singers could on demand band themselves together into a permanent opera company of high merit. The occasion of the performances was a Chicago benefit, going to the good of Olivet institute, with Mrs. Howard Linn at the head of the movement. But this was not only a worthy charity. It was a fine bit of musical art.

Something has been said heretofore in these columns about the musical value of these pieces, as gained from attendance at a rehearsal. The actual performance only heightened the opinion, and it more than heightened the opinion of the participants. Mr. Cordon was a star in the two, in the historically untrue but romantic tale of how Salieri grew jealous of Mozart and poisoned him to get him out of the way, also in the absurdly comic farce by Gluck showing how even the head of an oriental family may be led on to his own undoing.

Here was singing of the finest kind, not only by him but by the other members of the cast. Here was not only fine singing but the spirit that got beneath the notes and created an illusion. In other words, it was high art.

Over it all presided Mr. Krueger, with an orchestra of 25 from the Chicago Symphony at the left side of the stage, suave, masterful, projecting drama and melody, keeping everything vital and accurately paced, a dominant force and a musician of the first order.

Now Is Time to Select Gifts to Be Initialed

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Some otherwise sane people annually lose their minds around Christmas time when they realize just a few days too late that the monogramming deadlines for those very personal gifts has passed while they were busily buying something else.

So this is a trumpet call for action. Countless buyers prayerfully hope for the best, though why they think we will change miraculously this year is a mystery. But you are warned now and in plenty of time that monogramming and initialing takes time. If you would send exquisitely marked squares of linen to either appreciative male or female now is the time to leave your orders.

You can't find more complete assortments of handkerchiefs than now . . . all the gay printed things have been unpacked and what must be the prize winning collection of new eighteen inch hankies are now fluttering begullingly around the town. If you like these eighteen inch affairs you go in for them in a big and brightly designed way. They do grand things for dark street clothes and suits, somehow or other they manage to splash color better than you might think. Casually retrieved from the depths of a smart French handbag they flash excitingly whenever they are used.

Some stunning new printed initialed creations look suspiciously like the wig-wag flags used in the signal corps . . . eighteen square inches of white linen, with a three letter monogram streaking in color from hem edge to hem edge . . . these take ten days to two weeks on order. You can choose any of half a dozen colors for the letters and the price is amazingly reasonable. They are different and will make any handkerchief collector squirm with envy.

Romantic wisps of lace and linen have returned, sentimental things that remind you of ruffles, flutings, and swishing gowns and violet perfume . . . and after years of absence they are breath-taking. Just a foam of frilled lace, a square of almost transparent linen traced with bits of fine embroidery, but they are perfect extras for the glamorous fashions in frocks and dress parade clothes for winter.

SYNOPSIS.

Bruce Pomeroy, brought up in poverty, befriended a Russian, Boris Orleneff. In return Orleneff, before his death, left Pomeroy a simple invention, which is about to make Pomeroy a millionaire. Orleneff didn't want his brother's family, whom he considered parasites, to get a cent from the invention. While taking his morning walk through New York's Central park Pomeroy stops to aid a girl in apparent distress from a sprained ankle. He is seized by three men and overpowered.

INSTALLMENT III.

A COMFORTABLE PRISON.

Pomeroy's mind was busy with the information given him. He was a long way from New York and this was a lonely region. What were these fellows going to do with him?

The question was immediately answered. He was helped—almost lifted, indeed, from the automobile. Two men, one on each side of him, led him along a wooden pathway—a pier, he decided, from the sound of waves around and under it. It was a short pier—possibly a private one, certainly a narrow one. The men on either side of him moved with caution, one of them throwing the beams of an electric flashlight before him. Pomeroy heard below him the chugging of an engine. He was lowered into a boat and when he reached the deck was immediately pressed into a seat. The two men sat down, one on each side of him and so close that he was wedged firmly between them.

"He's been good," the first speaker said appreciatively.

"He'd better be," the agreeable voice replied. It was not so agreeable now. There was an unpleasant note in it. The girl was also in the boat. Pomeroy discovered her, sitting opposite him but not looking at him. The third man was at the wheel and was evidently having some trouble there. At his crisp suggestion one of the two men sitting beside Pomeroy rose and went below to make some investigation. He remained there. The boat finally started, with obvious reluctance. There had been a fourth man on shore, a shadowy figure who had taken the car and driven off in it.

Pomeroy's cap slanted toward one ear. He had again succeeded in partly freeing the vision of one eye. It did not help him much. The two men in sight were shapeless bulks, overcoated and muffliered out of recognition. The one by his side was a powerful specimen, probably the man who had sat beside him throughout the journey. The one at the wheel was slighter and not quite so tall. Pomeroy, who had a justifiable faith in his strength and the skill of his fists, looked gloomily down at his hands. If he started anything in his present condition he would not last a minute against those three. That being the case, he would not start anything. He would sit tight, hold his tongue, and bide his time. He was not sure he could speak if he tried. His jaws hurt abominably.

The motor boat was making a rough and uncertain passage straight out from shore through a high wind and a rising sea. The night was dark and bitterly cold, but Pomeroy welcomed the change of motion and the stinging freshness of the air.

"He'd better not. This isn't our night to answer questions."

The voice of the man at the wheel had a cutting quality in its richness, but its modulations and diction were those of an educated person. Pomeroy gave no sign that he had heard either speaker. With his uncovered eye he stared straight ahead of him into the blackness. He would have liked to push that cap further back and release the other eye from its bandage, but if he raised a hand to do it the gesture would certainly be misunderstood. The big man who now guarded him had an arm affectionately intertwined in his.

Suddenly Pomeroy realized that the boat was changing her course, and that in the maneuver it was taken on a dangerous wash. Water and mists of spoon-drift swept along the deck. The man at the wheel called out. The man beside Pomeroy uttered an ejaculation and darted below, followed by the girl. There was a period of great activity on the boat, together with considerable profanity furnished by the big man. The boat was laboring heavily, and was either leaking or otherwise taking in far more than its share of sea. The darkness before them seemed to deepen. At last a huge black obstruction lay in their path. The boat slowed down, rounded into what seemed a sheltered cove, and with much effort on the part of the two men who had reappeared from below, finally came to uneasy rest at the end of another pier. The boat was made fast and his captors again raised Pomeroy to his feet. The wheelman came forward to assist in these attentions.

Pomeroy pulled himself together, squared his broad shoulders, and walking between two men made the short journey along the pier to the shore. He was puzzled. He estimated that the little boat had come straight out to sea, and this place he had been brought to must be an island. He was off the pier now and on firm ground—icy ground—struggling upward toward a stretch of trees that faced the beach. The trees were well grown and thick. Lights appeared among them and then the outlines of a large house. Simultaneously the manner of his captors underwent a marked change. An air of caution, of tension, gave way to one of obvious relief.

"Step lively, big boy," the first speaker directed, quickening his own pace and propelling his charge forward. "Yer most home—an' they was a time," he added darkly, "when I wasn't sure that sieve would git us here."

The second man didn't speak but he, too, quickened his steps and his grasp of Pomeroy's right arm grew more urgent. The third man and the girl had evidently remained behind to put the boat in a boat house, whose outlines had been thrown up by the light the boat carried. Pomeroy was conscious of a mounting fury. Where were these devils taking him, and what did the whole infernal episode mean?

Urged by his escorts he mounted a short flight of steps leading to a broad veranda. The three stood side by side in front of heavy oak double doors, while the man at Pomeroy's right produced a key and thrust it into a lock. The next instant one of the doors swung back and they entered a central hall, admirably furnished, dimly lighted, and with a broad Colonial staircase leading upward at the left. The remains of a fire smoldering in a fireplace at the rear end of the hall, but the house was obviously not dependent on fireplaces for its heat. Its atmosphere was amazingly comfortable to men coming in from the sharp bite of the outer air.

Pomeroy's fury gave place to amazement. This was a home, and a beautiful home. The central hall they were in was like a living room, with other rooms opening at its right and left. Easy chairs, reading tables, books and magazines were scattered around it. A deep chair stood in front of the fireplace with the effect of having been recently vacated. A book lay open on its wide arm, and a reading lamp still burned beside it.

"Take him upstairs and put him to bed," the man on Pomeroy's right ordered. "He's dopey yet, but he will be up to a talk in the morning."

He swung on his heel, hurried down the hall and disappeared into a room at the right, where some one was evidently awaiting him. Pomeroy heard a woman's voice, hushed and eager, as the door opened and closed.

He himself was being led up the staircase.

They were in the upper hall. The guard led Pomeroy to the door of a central room at the right of the hall, opened it, and waved his companion across the threshold. He himself followed and briskly lit what seemed to be an old fashioned gas jet under a handsome shade.

"Here, George," he observed pleasantly, "is w'ere you git an agreeable surprise, and I ain't say'n y' don't deserve it. Y' aint's made no noosance of yerself yit."

B. Borland, Mrs. Emily Crane Chadbourne, Mrs. John Coleman, Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. Charles G. King, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Mrs. Harry H. Shearson, and Mrs. Barrett Wendell. The guild will hold its exhibit, which until this year has been a part of the annual meeting, in the spring and it will last for several days.

Mayflower Descendants Hold Annual Meeting.

About 100 members of the Society of Mayflower Descendants were present at the annual dinner last night at the Union League club. Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius spoke on "The Sea-Goers' Part in the Settlement and Development of the Country."

Henry A. Rumsey is governor of the society, and the other officers are: Mrs. Seymour Morris, secretary; Alden Swift, deputy governor; Waldo M. Allen, treasurer, and Mrs. William B. Greenlee, historian. Nathan Dixon McClure is deputy governor general.

Perfect comfort on the trip to and from the Notre Dame-Southern California football game is in store for the group of people who are joining Thomas Welch in the private car he has chartered to take himself and his friends to South Bend Saturday. A buffet luncheon will be served going down, and the guests will eat dinner on the way back to Chicago.

Among those going this delightful way are the William H. Mitchells, the Lester Armours, the Philip D. Armours, the Kimball Salisburys, the Edwin M. Stanleys, the Thomas Gowenlocks, the Robert A. Gardners, the Thomas Wheelocks, Mrs. D'Orsay Palmer, the John Westlands, the William J. Corboys, Mrs. Charlotte Sheridan, who will be a guest of Mr. Welch; the Warren Donnelleys, the Charles Renshaws, and the Ira L. Couches.

Triangle Club Show on Again.

If those young Princeton men knew all the trouble they were causing in Chicago by changing their minds so often about coming here during the Christmas holidays they would be as sorry as their Chicago alumni are about causing so much bother. First they were coming, then they weren't, and now they are. So the Triangle club will be here on Dec. 26 at the Auditorium and Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Gardner's dinner dance for their debutante daughter, Marie Louise, has been switched back to Christmas.

The Chicagoans who will have the task of selling the tickets for the show explained Monday that the reason for so much changing of plans was that until just a day or two ago the club did not have enough middle western cities on its itinerary to pay it to come as far as Chicago, but now it has a full schedule and so Chicago is assured one of its favorite holiday entertainments and the debutantes are certain of having a brilliant whirl at Miss Jean Wilhelm's debut ball with a hundred or more extra men in town.

Chauffeurs Hold Annual Ball Tonight.

It's walk or take a cab for most of society this evening, for the Chicago Private Chauffeurs' Benevolent association, which enrolls all of the Gold Coast's drivers in its membership, is holding its annual ball in the Gold room at the Congress.

With up to the minute revues interspersed between dances, the party will be a far cry from the coachmen's balls that were its predecessors, yet there will be those guests whose memories will hark back to those days. Tony J. Ruggio and Barney Graff will be the masters of ceremonies as president and chairman of entertainment, respectively. As in days gone by the proceeds will accrue to the benefit of the sick and disabled members of the organization.

American Opera Society to Meet.

Alice Mock is coming to the meeting of the American Opera society at 11 o'clock this morning at the Arts club to tell about the new "Opera in English" company that is to open Dec. 3 at the Garrick theater with "The Bartered Bride." The rest of the program will be composed of excerpts from the American opera, "The Marriage of Aude," by Bernhard Rogers [the book by Charles Rodda]. The artists will be Lucinda Monroe, soprano, and Willard Rhodes, pianist. A luncheon planned by Mrs. Americus F. Callahan is to follow.

There is no doubt, the members of the society believe, that patrons of music are becoming more "opera in English" conscious. Mrs. Archibald Freer founded Chicago's American Opera society and the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick was its honorary president. Miss Emily Larned is now the president, with Mrs John Coulter and Mrs. Ralph T. Winston vice presidents.

For the last fifty years the alumnae of the Kenwood Loring school have met for luncheon once every twelve months. This year is no exception. At noon today they will have their annual luncheon at the Cordon, with speeches and program pleasantly lacking. Miss Carine Taylor and Mrs. William F. Petersen will be the hostesses.

Miss Louise Dewey, first vice president of the Juniors of Alliance Française will be hostess to the Juniors at their first reunion of the winter this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the home of her parents, the Charles S. Deweys, at 1507 State parkway. Mme. Elizabeth de Gramont will talk on "Les Grands Couturiers de Paris" after which tea will be served. Miss Beatrice Kirk has been made the new program chairman, taking the place of Miss Barbara Wendell, who has gone to Washington.

Plans for a Woman's Symphony orchestra concert on Dec. 3 with Paul Kerby as the guest conductor are to be discussed over teacups this afternoon in the East Delaware place apartment of Mrs. Loyal Davis. Mrs. Davis is the president of the Woman's Faculty club of the Northwestern University Medical school, which is interested in sponsoring the symphony program.

Drama League Class to Meet.

Mrs. Helen Walton, who is just back from England, where she attended her sister's wedding, has resumed her duties as chairman of the drama study class of the Chicago Drama league. At 10:30 this morning Mrs. Walton will present Miss Juliet Barker in a review of Eugene O'Neill's play, "Ah Wilderness."

Members of the Italy America society and their friends will hear Bruno Roselli talk on "Italian Builders of Early America" tonight at the Lake Shore Drive hotel. Col. Francesco Vigo, Italian by birth, who did much to save the Mississippi valley to the Union, is the pioneer Dr. Roselli will talk about especially, no doubt, for the Italian scholar has written a biography of Vigo.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

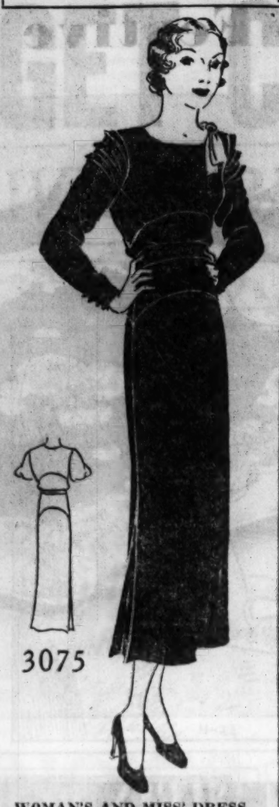
Dainty Epaulets and Fitted Waist Are Modish Notes



WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This delightfully pretty dress is just the design for one of the new ribbed silks or soft woolens. The sleeves fit fairly close and are finished with epaulets to widen the shoulder line. The seaming through the bodice and the hips is both slimming and attractive. A wild blackberry ribbed silk made the original dress and a matching shade of velvet made the shoulder bow.

The pattern, No. 3075, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years, and 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure.

BY MARY MEADE.

It probably isn't often that men read a cooking column. But when they do you can just about be sure they're mighty good cooks themselves. Opinion differs as to whether a masculine cook or a feminine cook is better when he or she is really good; to compromise we'll say that each is excellent.

Now take the case of Mr. H. I don't know whether Mr. H. follows the cooking column every day, but I do know this: Several weeks ago we gave suggestions for late evening lunches which could be easily stirred together with the assistance of a few canned goods from the pantry shelves. One of the recipes called for canned beans, canned tomatoes, and canned corn beef and was named chili con carne. Mr. H. disapproved so much of the use of corned beef in this dish that he has sent in his own pet recipe.

He further states that he has been making this as his pet dish for years for his family and for those who are "fortunate enough to be invited now and then," and they pronounce it the best ever. Mr. H. gives us this recipe, which you'll find fully as successful with the omission of the gun:

CHILI CON CARNE.

"Go to your butcher and at the point of a gun demand one and one-half pounds of top round steak ground coarse. When he has produced this ask him now for about one-fourth pound or slightly less of beef suet from the kidney. Now embark on your journey home, take out a large skillet, and melt the suet in this. Take out the crackels when the suet is melted, turn your flame down low, and proceed to cut up a good sized onion in dice. Add this to the melted suet and cook until slightly brown. Remove onion from the pan and turn up flame until melted suet is hot. Now add the chopped round steak and brown in the hot fat. Be sure to stir with a fork so as not to burn the meat.

"When it is nicely browned add the onion which has been kept aside, and then add a number 2½ can of whole tomatoes, stirring meanwhile. As soon as it boils turn down the heat and let it simmer. Now cut up a clove of garlic and add to the mixture. Then add a teaspoonful or two of chili powder and stir thoroughly. Open a can of red kidney beans and add to the above. Add salt and pepper and a bit of cayenne pepper to taste and stir again. If you happen to have a green pepper, add a small portion cut up fine. A little sharp red pepper will give it a further kick. Now cover tightly and let simmer for at least one hour. It is much improved if allowed to stand overnight. In the morning or the next evening it may have thickened. If so, just add some water to the amount you are going to use, heat, and serve hot." This, says Mr. H., is a dish fit to snatch away from a king.

Should you order a portion of chili con carne in Mexico you would find it even different yet. Frijoles [Mexican beans] are used in that country and the tomatoes are often omitted.

Decorated Basket.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Here is a design so simple to piece that even the amateur can approach it without fear of bungling; at the same time it is as attractive as many patterns much more complicated. Those who fancy a great deal of color can contrive clever color schemes for the flowers. More conservative quilters will make use of several shades of the same color.

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, the Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Eagerness for Thrills Natural to Adolescence

Some Pleasures Should Be Kept for That Period.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Give the youngster in his teens a car and what will he do with it? Speed. This is the time at which girls want to go on the stage and in the movies. Adventure—something new—something different—travel to strange and distant places—these are all longings of adolescence. And legitimate longings, too.

Here are your children feeling themselves stronger and freer, with a richer physical being and a growing imagination. Why shouldn't they want new experiences, wider vistas, and something on which to try these new found powers? They should—or at least it is quite normal for them if they do—want to try this and that, either in the world of their minds or their emotions, or in actual physical adventure.

This determination to have new experiences must have an outlet. Often it takes the form of a craving for thrills or excitement and may show itself in a number of ways—speeding, excessive movie-going, constant dancing and parties, drinking, petting and actual sex experiences. That some outlets are not desirable is not the point just now. It is their understandableness we are concerned with.

This particular series of articles is not attempting to deal with the management of adolescents, but only trying to paint a picture of the tendencies of those years. But it is impossible to resist making a suggestion right here—and that is, that parents would be wise if they would keep something up their sleeve. By that I mean if they would hold in reserve some of the pleasures of the world, so that when adolescence does come there will be something on which this desire for adventure, for new experiences can expend itself.

ENGAGEMENT

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Sydell Bloomfield, sister of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fish of East Delaware place, to Irving Geist of New York. Mr. Geist is active in charitable work in New York. The wedding will take place at the Temple Ansche Chesed in New York on Feb. 18 with a reception later at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

Third Woman Gets Rank as Film Director

Wanda Tuchock Promoted by Radio Studio.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Wanda Tuchock, scenario writer for King Vidor for many years, has been promoted to the rank of screen director at Radio studio, and her first assignment is "Just Off 5th Avenue." There will be a second director on the same picture, George Nichols. The story is one which Miss Tuchock, again a collaborator, wrote in partnership with Laird Doyle, and Betty Furness is the only person cast in it to date.

Only two other women are active as movie directors—Lois Weber, who just returned from Hawaii, where she directed "Cane Fire," and Dorothy Arzner, who just finished "Nana," which is Anna Sten's first American starring vehicle.

George White, who hasn't appeared in one of his own stage presentations for ten years, will take a rôle in the first picturization of the "Scandals" at Fox, in the cast headed by Rudy Vallee, Alice Faye, Lilian Harvey, Jack Haley, and the Loomis sisters. On the stage in the old days White was noted for his snowshoe dance

El Brendel says he is about to begin serious study of the Swedish language. So far, says the comedian, "all I know is the accent." Brendel is a Pennsylvania Dutchman, who found it convenient to be a Swedish comedian in vaudeville, instead of a German, about 1918.

Larry Fine, one of Ted Healy's stooges, drove to MGM studio today with the top of his automobile resting in the back seat. Fine gravely offered the auto top to Moe Howard, another of Healy's trio. Howard as gravely accepted. Fine explained he had bet the top of his automobile against two rear tires of Howard's car on last week's Oregon State-Fordham football game.

MINUTE MYSTERY
By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MURDER IN REALITY.

The clock in the club dining room softly chimed 8:30 as Prof. Fordney and Inspector Kelley arose from the table. An unhurried walk through the first snow of the year that had just begun to fall, brought them to the theater in time for the curtain of the latest mystery drama—"Murder in Earnest."

"Reminds me of that Walton affair," commented Kelley as they sauntered into the lobby after the play.

"A clever plot and splendidly done," was Fordney's verdict.

As they were about to emerge from the theater a detective approached, saluted them, and in a low undertone said, "Headquarters told me I'd find you here, Inspector; there's been a killing in an alley off 49th street. Shall I drive you over?"

They reached the scene simultaneously with the police surgeon, who hastened to examine Tony Cassava, gangster, whose wide open eyes stared up at them.

"Dead as a herring," he replied to the unspoken question, "and he's been that way for at least 6 hours." As he turned the body over the crimson stain in the snow told part of the story; Fordney's flashlight revealed the rest. Cassava had been shot in the back three times.

"Who found him?" Kelley demanded.

"Officer Grimes happened to come through the alley a few minutes ago and stumbled over him," replied the plain clothes man.

"There's your murder in earnest," growled the inspector. "A bit more realistic than the drama, eh, Joe?"

"Yes, but not nearly as cleverly done. Cassava was . . ."

Chanel Blends Pink Organdy, Darkest Velvet

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Chanel's Sunday night and dinner frocks that unite pale pink organdy with black velvet are getting around in Paris society.

Like the whole tribe of fashions in the realm of play, these dresses have sleeves, and are similar to a regular daytime frock, except for the length of skirt.

One of them is sketched. It is the prettiest of the group of velvet and organdy models in the Chanel collection. It has a peasantlike blouse of pale pink organdy, with wide, loose sleeves that are laced up on top with narrow black velvet ribbon that ties in bows on the elbows. The front of the bodice is also laced in the same way. V's of black velvet rise up the sides of the front and back bodice, and the instep length skirt has velvet V's at the front and back below the waistline, while the side gores that join these V's are cut slightly circular.

There is a soft velvet belt that makes a fat, shallow V in front and that is narrow in back. The dress is laced down the center back on the velvet, to a few inches below the waistline.

Good Morning!

Well, this piece has a couple of catchy tunes—"Paper Moon" and "Night Owl"—and that's all I can say for it.

It's another of those "back stage" musicals, adapted from the stage production of the same name—which I didn't see—and it's terribly, terribly dull.

See you tomorrow.

Actresses Drop Diet in Favor of Exercising

They've Become Regular Gymnast Fans.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

HOLLYWOOD.—[Special.]—It interests me no end the way the movie stars are taking to exercise as their means of keeping in trim shape! It isn't just chatter, either. They're exercising! And they're so much saner about dieting than they were a couple of years ago. Future records will have fewer tales like Barbara La Marr's untimely end through dieting. They may pull a vertebra out of place in their present exercise enthusiasm, but even that isn't likely.

Gloria Swanson, with whom I "tea-d" one recent afternoon in her charming Hollywood home, demonstrated for me that exercising was not simply a matter of tea chatter. She can bend and twist and gyrate and come up smiling and full breathed as one who does her gymnastic work regularly and consistently.

Miss Swanson tells me she has worked out her own exercise dozen. She takes the ones she herself has found best suited to her and works at them religiously. She has to keep supple. She has to keep that figure of hers, and so help her, so long as she has strength, she's going to get all the help she can from exercise. She gives me two that she recommends heartily for waist and hips and abdomen:

With hands stretched taut on the floor above head, simply roll on the hips over to one side, back, and over to the other side. But you must do this fifty times, at least. Another, not quite so simple of execution, is to lie on the floor with hands above head, come forward with head and upper part of body as you raise legs up slowly. The trick is to touch the toes with hands as legs are suspended half knee height. It's a grand stretching exercise.

The Stage

The Cort theater reopened this week with "Dangerous Corner," the drama by J. B. Priestley that formerly occupied the Illinois. The Chicago run of this ingenious treatment of a murder mystery is now in its ninth week. The Illinois theater, now dark, promises "Criminal at Large," with Alexandra Carlisle in the central rôle, for an opening some time between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Verne Buck, orchestra leader and master of ceremonies, will bring his band back to the State-Lake theater next Sunday to succeed Al Kvale, the present maestro. . . . Vaudeville activity of the current week on the cinema theater programs includes personal appearances of Liiyan Tashman, prominent good-looker of the photoplays. . . . Next Friday afternoon will bring Earl Carroll's "Vanities" revue, speeded up to an hour of playing time, for performances four times a day in the Palace theater.

Allan Jones and Marion Claire, stars of "Bitter Sweet" at the Grand Opera house, are being groomed as a permanent co-starring combination in operettas by the Messrs. Shubert, C. C.

"GIVE YOUR CHILDREN A LIQUID LAXATIVE"

NRA

Did you know a laxative that works just right for you, can work havoc with a child?

Read this, Mothers!

Doctors urge the use of a liquid laxative for children; preferably one with senna. A liquid laxative can be easily regulated to suit. The natural laxative action of senna does not weaken the bowels.

Druggists report increasing demand for liquid laxatives. Mothers are rapidly discovering the advantage of the liquid form. Thousands of cases of ill-health—and half-health—in boys and girls are being cleared-up by stopping all use of laxatives of adult strength.

This Treatment Safe!

The preparation widely favored for child use is California Syrup of Figs. It is a fruity syrup with the right amount of senna for gentle stimulation of a child's bowels. It gives the right kind of help.

If the bowels aren't moving regularly and thoroughly, don't give any medicine that drains the system dry. Give a liquid senna preparation like California Syrup of Figs. A little every day, and reduce the dose each day. At the end of one week—stop. You'll be surprised how long it will be before the bowels need any further help. It may be months.

Be sure you get the real California Syrup of Figs, with "California" on the label. If you get the right preparation, and use it the right way, you can absolutely end all worry over constant sluggish spells, bilious attacks, constipation.

Druggists all keep California Syrup of Figs, ready for use. It is highly recommended for regulating children, and to undo the mischief done by habit-forming laxatives.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins defeated the aggressive Blackhawks, 2 to 0, tonight in a National Hockey league game that brought the Chicagoans their second defeat of the season.

These burly rivals appeared to be conducting a feud, for they checked each other with terrific force and slashed recklessly from start to finish. It was not until the last minute of play, however, that the action reached the fistic stage. Then Joe Lamb and Lionel Conacher started a battle.

Conacher was forced against the sideboards when he stopped Lamb's rush and the Boston wing elbowed him. Conacher stripped off his gloves and landed a heavy left under Lamb's eye. They were mixing furiously when their mates pulled them apart.

Bruins Score Early.

Although the Hawks waged a determined attack, they did not get a real scoring shot in the 60 minutes of strenuous play. Vic Ripley scored for the Bruins early in the opening period, caging the rebound of a shot that was fired out of the scrimmage resulting from a faceoff.

Late in the final period another faceoff was converted into the second Boston goal. Conacher smothered the rebound on Bob Gracie's closeup shot, drawing a spot faceoff in front of the Chicago net. Nels Stewart lined up with Conacher, slashed back to Dit Clapper after beating the defense man to the puck and the Boston wing drove it into the net.

The Bruins put on a terrific opening blast and during the first five minutes two sets of Boston lines kept up a steady attack on the Chicago net. When the third trio came on they were even more aggressive. Harry Oliver gained the puck in center and feinted his way up to the Chicago defense before taking his shot. The rebound came out to Vic Ripley and he lashed it past Goalie Gardiner for the opening goal in 6:52.

Leswick, Trudell, and Kendall gave Goalie Thompson a heated session, but the Boston goalie flew out to make the stop. Thompson was spread on the ice to the left of his cage when Trudell played the rebound, but Barry guarded the Boston cage and smothered the shot. Thompson turned back 14 Chicago shots and Gardiner had 19 in the first period.

Stewart Shoots Wide.

Paul Thompson and Lolo Couture put together a nice play that forced the Boston goalie to make a sensational stop on the former's shot through Shore and Smith. After the puck had bounced off the sideboards into the center, Joe Lamb took it evaded Roger Jenkins and drove a hard shot at Gardiner. The puck hit the blade of the goalie's stick and took a high bounce.

Nels Stewart had a similar opening on the next Boston rush, but he shot wide. Paul Thompson and Lamb were sent off for a high stick exchange and the short handed teams were playing cautiously when Vic Ripley tried to lift a shot over Art Coulter's head. The puck hit the Blackhawk defenseman on the nose, and he was forced to retire for treatment.

Leswick led a Blackhawk rush and got a shot despite the efforts of the veter. n, Lionel Hitchman. Kendall took the rebound and skated in for a closeup shot, but the Boston goalie brushed it aside. Thompson had twelve stops to eight for Gardiner.

Bruins Press Attack.

Much aimless scuffling took up the first five minutes of the third period. The first decisive gesture came when Galbraith picked his way through the Chicago defense, slipped inside past Jenkins and passed back. Taffy Abel, however, covered Oliver and the play missed.

Conacher smothered Gracie's shot and forced a spot face-off in front of the Chicago net. Stewart beat Conacher to the puck, slashed it back to Clapper, who drove it through Goalie Gardiner for the second Boston tally. The time was 13:53.

During the remainder of the game the Bruins played cautiously and most of the Chicago rushes were halted at the blue line. Thompson saved eight and Gardiner six shots during the final period.

Jay Wyatt, Big Ten official, about whose anecdotes, cuisine, and whereabouts some concern was expressed in this department recently, staged a big barbecue Saturday night. . . . 34 TROJANS OFF FOR NOTRE DAME GAME SATURDAY

Irish Will Be Tough, Coach Warns Team.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 21.—The Notre Dame team that Southern California is going to meet in South Bend Saturday may not be one of the all-conquering Irish elevens of old, but it is plenty tough enough for his coast boys, in their 1933 form, Coach Howard Jones admitted as his 34 Trojans embarked tonight for the eighth game of the Notre Dame-Southern California annual intersectional series.

Jones, whose Southern California elevens have won three games and lost four since the series started, said he did not see why people were dissatisfied with the situation at Notre Dame and the speech was a long one for the usually reticent Los Angeles coach.

Irish Are Strong.

"Our scouting reports don't say anything about Notre Dame being weak," Jones said. "Of course, they have lost games this year, but the Notre Dame players are big, they're rugged, and they played a lot of characteristic Notre Dame football against Northwestern last Saturday."

So it appears to Jones as if Notre Dame has at last found itself.

"Frankly, this is the game that may determine the entire season for us," he said. "If Notre Dame beats us, which it has a strong chance of doing, it puts us on a spot for our future games with Georgia and Washington."

Of the 34 varsity men Jones is taking 33 are going with the expectation of playing football and the thirty-fourth, 212 pound Bob Erskine, tackle, is going chiefly for the ride. His right knee buckled under him for the third time this season in last Saturday's game against Oregon and he is definitely out, according to team physicians.

Twelve hundred Trojan rooters gathered at the railroad station to see the team off. The squad will break the journey with a limbering up drill at Tuscon, Ariz., tomorrow. A shadow scrimmage is scheduled for Thursday's stop at Hutchinson, Kas., and on Friday the team will practice on Stagg field, Chicago. It will stay overnight at a Chicago hotel and go to South Bend Saturday morning.

IRISH DRILL INDOORS.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Ray Brancheau, senior right half back, was named Notre Dame's captain for the week at today's practice. He will lead the team against Southern California Saturday.

An all day rain forced Notre Dame into the gymnasium today. Anderson spent most of today's drill showing the varsity the seven formations from which Southern California runs its plays. He had the freshmen and reserves, who were using Southern California plays, line up in each of the formations and walk through the plays, so that each defensive assignment might be checked thoroughly.

HE'S CUB SLUGGER NOW

Chuck Klein, National league batting champion, who yesterday was traded to the Cubs for three players and an unannounced sum of cash. Klein had a .368 batting average with the Phillies last season.

Scram, Coach, Captain Orders! It's Fantasy with a Precedent

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 21.—Unlike Babe Ruth, I sometimes make as many as two bites of a watermelon and, because I am fond of goofy notions, I am returning to the subject of the football captain who, according to a football legend at Princeton, ordered his coach off the field one day, insisting that, as captain of the team, he was superior to the coach and answerable only to the president of the university, who was Woodrow Wilson, himself.

Even if this happening did not occur exactly as the story would have it after many a telling since 1911, I like the idea for its outrageousness and hope it did come off that way. In the privacy of that which you might generously permit me to call my mind I have often toyed with such a situation since the talk began of giving the game back to the boys, but I never breathed such a thought to anyone lest people should begin to look at me a certain way.

Belongs to Players in Theory.

But having found, I hope, an actual precedent for one of the most fantastic thoughts that ever danced through my imagination, perhaps I needn't be so sheepish about similar fancies after this.

The game of intercollegiate football never will be given back to the boys, now, because its business responsibilities are such that business men and professional executives are required to keep it going. But theoretically, even at Temple university, where Pop Warner is working this year and the football team is being used to earn back an investment, the game belongs to the players, and the captain would have the right to thumb Old Pop right out of the park. There may be no captain at Temple these days, however, because it has been found convenient in many schools to abolish the office entirely or to pass it around as an empty and purely honorary position from week to week.

The football captain at present is allowed to enjoy his captaincy only until he begins to take it seriously, when he finds that he has no more authority than King George V. Not infrequently he is ordered off his own team, scolded and humiliated by a hired instructor, and made to stand in corners like a little boy. And the fact that he takes such treatment

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Detroit Red Wings whipped the Ottawa Senators, 3 to 2, tonight and moved past the Chicago Blackhawks into first place in the American section of the National Hockey league.

Detroit started at a fast clip as Herb Lewis and Johnny Sorrell, the league's leading scorer, beat Goalie Billy Beveridge for goals in the first ten minutes of play. Doug Young, defense man, scored what proved to be the winning goal in the second period on a solo dash.

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs, Stanley cup finalists last spring, played to a 1 to 1 tie tonight in a National Hockey league game before 13,000. The result dropped the Rangers to the bottom of the American division, but left the Leafs at the top of the Canadian section.

The game left room for plenty of arguments, chiefly because of a decision by Referee Eusebe Daigneault on a shot by Harvey Jackson late in the second period. It appeared to have gone into the net and bounced out, but the referee ruled otherwise and when Jackson protested he was given a ten minute misconduct penalty.

DARTMOUTH AT CHICAGO.

DARTMOUTH'S Big Green eleven will bring to Stagg field Saturday an example of the caliber of football played at the older and more conservative eastern colleges.

That seems a fair statement in view of Dartmouth's schedule this season, of which the Chicago contest is the sixth successive "hard" game. Previously the Hanoverians have beaten Norwich, Vermont, and Bates, 41-0, 39-0, and 14-0, respectively, before starting their real fall work.

Then Pennsylvania fell victim, 14-7; Harvard was tied, 7-7; Yale eked out a 14-13 point after touchdown victory; Princeton's unbeaten, unscored on Tigers were held to one touchdown, 7-0, and Cornell upset the apple cart at Dartmouth's homecoming last Saturday with an unexpected 7-0 victory.

It is not the greatest eleven which ever came forth from Hanover in the New Hampshire hills. Nor is it a weak team. It is fairly representative of Dartmouth gridiron prowess.

There is little basis of comparison with Chicago unless we try comparative scores. Michigan downed Cornell, 40 to 0. Michigan downed Chicago, 28 to 0, with Wolverine scoring confined to first and fourth periods and the Maroons holding their own pretty well in between. Any fancied advantage to the Maroons by such comparison perhaps is eliminated by the Dartmouth plea, no doubt correct, that the Green did not play its game against Cornell until after the letdown from Harvard, Yale, and Princeton.

Chicago's previous experience with Dartmouth, moreover, is not reassuring. Back in 1925 Dartmouth was here with the issue called even in advance. Dartmouth smothered the Maroons, 33 to 7, under an avalanche of the greatest consistent forward passing we ever have seen. Swede Oberlander was the principal projector in a back field consisting of himself, Lane, McPhail, and Horton, with two unusually efficient ends. Jess Hawley was coach at that time. Jack Cannell, present coach, was Hawley's assistant.

That Dartmouth team of 1925 was what alumni were pleased to call their "Phi Beta Kappa" eleven. Not all regulars were Phi Betes, but there were enough on the varsity, including reserves, to put a fully manned scholarship team on the gridiron if there had been any Phi Beta title for which to compete.

Dartmouth ventured into the west again in 1928—pretty well crippled up, 'tis true—and succumbed easily to a strong Northwestern eleven at Evanston, 27 to 6.

Dartmouth alumni, among the most active and enthusiastic as an organization in the Chicago district, are making this game the occasion for a reunion of their kind in the middle west. Social activities include a stag dinner at the Drake the night before, and a dinner dance at the same place the evening following. They are guests at several fraternity tea dances on the Midway following the game.

The Wake always has liked these Dartmouth alumni fellows. They tell you seriously and sincerely, but not with a "holier than thou" attitude, that football at Dartmouth is still a sport and not a "business." They mean that young men who go to Hanover are supposed to go there because they appreciate its advantages, then play football; not that they appreciate football and so go to Dartmouth—if you know what we mean. Not that these alumni frown on gridiron material—far from it. They encourage good prep athletes, but do not recruit in the sense that word is sometimes used.

Now about this 1933 eleven. There are 5 seniors, 3 juniors, and 3 sophomores in the probable starting lineup. Capt. Phil Glazer, senior, is from Memphis. Harry Deckert, full back, junior, is from St. Louis. All the others are from the east.

Among the leading reserves who will see action is Full Back Dave Hedges, senior, of Cedar Rapids, whose father, H. G. [Cap] Hedges, was a former Dartmouth player and is now a Big Ten gridiron official. He will attend Saturday's game. Jack Fogarty, a senior, son of C. C. Fogarty, local advertising man, is an Evanston boy, where he played end on the Evanston High school eleven. He probably will get into the game at some period.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Chuck Klein, batting king of the major leagues, whom the rumorsmiths have been peddling to the Cubs ever since the late William Wrigley made a modest bid of $250,000 for him three and a half years ago, yesterday became the Cubs' property in fact.

Klein's purchase was announced by William Walker, acting president of the Cubs. According to information given out about the deal, which is presumed to be the truth, the Philadelphia National league club, with whom Klein has spent his entire major league career, will receive $100,000 and three players, two of whom long have been past the zenith of their careers. The players are Mark Koenig, utility infielder; Gink Hendrick, utility infielder and outfielder, and Theodore Kleinhans, a rookie left handed pitcher from Atlanta.

Spring Deal Called Off.

Klein was scheduled to come to the Cubs on last May 15, the last day of the spring for intraleague deals, but just before the deadline the Phillies obtained much needed cash by selling Pinkey Whitney and Hal Lee to the Boston Braves. They then called off the pending deal for Klein until near the close of the season.

First definite information that the Cubs had purchased Klein came in mid-September, when Frankie Frisch, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, announced that a deal he had proposed to the Phillies, involving Klein and Catcher Jimmy Wilson, had been dropped when he was advised Klein had been sold to the Cubs.

A month ago, when Klein's purchase was given emphasis in published reports, all the Cub officials and all the Philly officials blandly denied the transaction had been completed.

Denials by baseball magnates being in the category of things that mean little, the speculation on the deal progressed to what the Cubs had given for Chuck. The sum of $65,000, published in some rumors of the deal, was found to be ridiculously low in view of earlier offers for the star.

It is within the realm of possibility that the intimated price of $100,000 also is low. The Cubs, long known as a soft touch by other magnates with something to sell, would have to go strong, especially since it is remembered that Sid Weil, former president of the Cincinnati Reds, last year dipped into the Cub chest for $75,000 and four players in exchange for Babe Herman, who can't do anything in baseball as well as Klein does everything.

The Cubs, however, gave out no information, either false or true, about the amount of cash sent to the depressed Phillies. The $100,000 rumor came from Philadelphia.

Flop Fails to Hasten Deal.

It was thought that the complete flop of the Cubs in the city series, in which the National leaguers rarely got past first base while taking it on the chin four straight at the hands of the White Sox, would hasten the announcement of Klein's purchase. The Cub officials, however, chose to stall, apparently hoping the fans would be in a happier mood with the ludicrous play in the city series a little farther in the past.

While at the minor league meetings Acting President Walker said the Cubs were in quest of other new faces in the hope that the fans who abandoned the Cubs last year after their four straight lickings at the hands of the Yankees in the 1932 world series might be reclaimed.

There have been reports that Kiki Cuyler has been traded to Cincinnati for Chick Hafey, a partial invalid and a sufferer from eye trouble. Rumors also are being circulated to the effect that Bill Herman is to go to Pittsburgh for First Baseman Gus Suhr. The latter would be a good trade, for Manager Grimm obviously is all washed up and many Cub observers say that the Cubs were stung again in their purchase of Adolfo Camilli.

Praised by Hornsby.

When Rogers Hornsby became manager of the Cubs late in the 1930 season, the yearning for Klein became intense. Hornsby had little difficulty in convincing the late Mr. Wrigley that Klein was just the kind of a player needed by the Cubs.

Hornsby once said of Klein: "In addition to being able to do most everything right, he would be a good example for some of the crybabies on this outfit. If you took Klein out on a public dump and told him that was where the game had to be played that day, he'd get ready to play it there without a beef.

West Side Boxers See Action Tonight.

The crowd of nearly five hundred who attended the south side quarter-finals of the Catholic Youth organization boxing tournament last night at the C. Y. O. center, 31 East Congress street, were somewhat divided on the outcome of the bout between Bob Crowley and Ed Mileske in the 147 pound class, but the three officials were unanimous in awarding it to Crowley.

Crowley, who competed with the Davenport, Ia., team in this year's Golden Gloves tournament, now represents the St. James C. Y. O. hotel. Relying on an effective right hand, he scored more cleanly in close than Mileske.

Order a Rematch.

Sixteen bouts were fought last night, eight in class A and eight in class B, but only fifteen were decided. The 112 pound battle in class A between Henry Fuscaldo of Saints Peter and Paul and Jack Sullivan of the St. James C. Y. O. hotel ended in the second round when Sullivan fell to the canvas and claimed a foul. Three physicians, including Dr. James V. Russell of the C. Y. O., who examined him, declared that he was unhurt, and a rematch between him and Fuscaldo, who was leading at the time, was ordered for tonight.

The quarter-finals will end at the C. Y. O. center tonight with the west side boxers in action. The north and Joliet sections have completed their quarter-finals.

Some Are Fine Characters.

It is bad for my side of the discussion to admit that some of the coaches are very fine characters whose influence is altogether noble, but even that concession does not affect my contention that if football is a sport for students and nothing else, the coach ought to be subordinate to the captain. I would not argue that a class captain or president should have authority to order an instructor out of a classroom.

That would be a much different case, because the subjects taught in the rooms are part of the required duty, whereas football in theory is a volunteer activity played for pleasure and honor. The motive of physical betterment was introduced later and doesn't amount to much, because many young football men who come through their varsity days bigger and stronger for having played the game also have trick knees and doorbells ringing in their ears.

Football teams, in the beginning, were volunteer organizations which played for sport and rivalry and were coached by some of their own members or recent alumni. They probably were not very good as compared to the best teams of the present time because the game itself was crude and the calamity of losing a game was much less awful than it has come to be in modern times.

Player Ceases to Be Free.

As the gate receipts increased and with them the importance of winning games the responsibility of the coach increased correspondingly and so did his pay and authority. Required to win ball games in order to keep the customers interested he obviously could not submit his professional judgment to the approval of a kid player who happened to be captain. In time, as the organization grew and its government became more binding, the football player, like the citizen, ceased to be a free individual, bound only by the ordinary rules of good conduct, and became a subject under absolute authority. And the coach, like the public officer, beginning as a servant, presently became the master.

I have no coach in mind whom I would wish to see ordered off the ball yard by a team captain. Just any coach and any captain would do to rediscover the original relation which never has been changed in writing but only by encroachment. It would be something like telling an internal revenue man to mind his own business and not come nosing around to inquire what a fellow did with the salary he earned by his own hard work in the fiscal year 1928.

BEARS RETURN IN GOOD HEALTH TO MEET SPARTANS

Coach George Halas yesterday sent the Chicago Bears through their first workout in preparation for the National Professional Football league game against the Portsmouth Spartans Sunday afternoon at Wrigley field. They began the drill several hours after they arrived in Chicago from their eastern tour.

Despite the three hard games in the east, the Bears are in better conditon than they have been for more than a month. Only one player, George Corbett, who twisted his knee against the Boston Redskins, is expected to be missing against the Spartans.

If Corbett remains on the sidelines Sunday his place will be taken by Keith Molesworth, the former Monmouth star, who has turned in excellent performances at half back against Philadelphia and the New York Giants.

"Although we lost to Boston and New York and played a tie with Philadelphia, the team played great football in the east. We outplayed our opponents in each game," said Coach Halas.

Victory for the Bears against the Spartans probably will clinch the western division championship of the league and the right to meet the eastern division titleholder for the championship.

Among the Portsmouth players who will be making their first Chicago appearance in Spartan uniforms are Johnny Schneller, former University of Wisconsin end, and Ernie Caddell, former back field man for Stanford university.

Veterans on the Spartan squad include Lumpkin, Cavosie, Randolph, Gutowsky, Wilson, Ebding, Alford, and Presnell. The squad is expected to arrive in Chicago Friday night. It will make its headquarters at the Allerton house.

Farmer's Plow Perils Future of Duck Hunting

BY BOB BECKER.

Another bombshell was dropped into the ranks of the waterfowl hunters this week when an eastern conservation organization issued a comprehensive report on duck breeding conditions in the northwest. This report, as contained in two illustrated booklets, is the story of a 3,400 mile trip through the heart of the greatest duck hatchery in North America, covering North Dakota, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and Montana.

It is the first report of its kind that we have ever seen. No duck hunter needs to be told about the tone of this investigation. It is a sad story of dried up lakes, vanished marshes, few birds where there should be thousands, and changed agricultural conditions, making it impossible for large flocks of birds to ever be hatched in areas which used to produce them.

This report, which ought to be read by every sportsman because it deals specifically with thousands of lakes, marshes, and sloughs, and offers you photographs, as well as text, as convincing proof of the seriousness of the duck situation, says that eventual elimination of wildfowl hunting as a field sport is not an impossibility unless everybody gets busy on a program to manage the breeding grounds and aid the birds.

First—That the prairie nesting region should be mapped for annual census and eventual improvement purposes.

Second—That it may be assumed a major portion of a number of species breed north of the agricultural region, and this also should be investigated.

Third—Because of the great possibility for improving production capacity of the agricultural area, it should be put under the management of residents.

Fourth—That the very grave situation requires immediate action to put a sound and adequate program for the restoration and increase of waterfowl into effect, and, in addition, every effort should be made to conserve breeding stocks.

"On the whole the duck breeding situation presented very gloomy aspects. [Observations were made in midsummer.] Of former small water areas more than 80 per cent have been claimed by agriculture. This entire area was rich in productive breeding grounds, but it has lost its importance to a greater degree than is realized. The change has been brought about mainly by the agricultural development of the area and by a decline in the amount of precipitation."

In general this report substantiates information given this department some weeks ago by an investigator who spent five months in the northwest prairie country checking up on the duck crops.

Buck Everett, Gary, Ind., heavyweight boxer, defeated Tony Cancela, Tampa, Fla., in the 15 round windup of Promoter Mique Molloy's first show at the Arcadia Gardens, 4444 Broadway, last night. More than 1,000 watched the bout, the second at that distance in Illinois since boxing was legalized. The receipts were estimated at $1,200.

An offer of $10,000 to Barney Ross, lightweight and junior welterweight champion, to defend his lightweight title against Eddie Cool or Frankie Klick at Philadelphia, Pa., Christmas afternoon was refused yesterday by Sam Pian and Art Winch, co-managers of Ross.

No matches will be accepted for Ross prior to his nontitle affair with Billy Petrolle at New York on Dec. 6, Winch said. It is understood, however, that the main reason for refusing the encounter is the possibility of the champion placing his junior welterweight crown at stake against Young Peter Jackson at Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 21 for $12,500.

BUTTERFINGERS TAKE AMATEUR HOCKEY LEAD

The Butterfingers took undisputed possession of first place among the Big Four of the Chicago Amateur Hockey association last night with a 1 to 0 victory over the Baby Ruths at the Coliseum. A crowd of more than 6,000, the association's largest to date, saw the game. The Nestor Johnsons and Blue Ribbons, losers in their opening games, will meet tomorrow night.

Goalie Roy Halvorsen and Defense Man Joe Ellenich starred for the victors. Halvorsen turned back a Baby Ruth offensive in the closing minutes while two of his mates were in the penalty box, and finished the game with 33 stops. Ellenich scored the winning goal in 8:10 of the first period on an assist from Zunich. He counted again a moment later, but the goal was disallowed for offside. He also starred on the defense.

Walter Neusel Knocks Out Poreda in Tenth

Poreda was banged against the ropes by a left hook to the jaw as the tenth round opened. He would have fallen had the ropes not been there. Neusel wound up with a right to the jaw and Poreda went down.

MOOSEHEART TO FACE POWERFUL ST. JOHN'S LINE

St. John's Military academy will depend on its strong, heavy line to stop Mooseheart when they meet at Wrigley field Saturday afternoon. St. John's, one of the leading prep elevens in the middle west, will be seeking its fourteenth consecutive victory. Only 16 points have been scored against St. John's this season.

The entire Cadet squad averages approximately 175 pounds, while only two players on the Mooseheart team weigh more than 160. Capt. John Conrad, rated as the best back field man to ever play for St. John's, weighs 192 pounds and is over 6 feet tall.

MICHIGAN GETS SET FOR PURPLE PASSING ATTACK

Hildebrand to Be Ready for Play.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Assuming that Northwestern will take to the air, just as the Michigan team is being groomed to do, Coach Harry Kipke worked his eleven on a defense against the Wildcat passes this afternoon. The entire workout took place in Yost fieldhouse because of the heavy rain outside.

Bill Renner and Russ Oliver threw the Northwestern passes, while Jack Heston worked in the back field of the team that was on defense. John Kowalik and Willard Hildebrand were back at the guard posts on the first eleven.

X-rays of Hildebrand's neck and shoulders today showed no fractures, indicating that the injury he suffered in the Minnesota game was confined to the muscles. Hildebrand and Kowalik definitely will start the Northwestern game.

The coaches are well pleased with the team's physical condition, saying it is much better than it was when the team went into the final contest in 1932.

N. U. IS CONFIDENT.

The prospect of facing Michigan's undefeated football eleven isn't causing undue concern in the Wildcat camp. The boys figure that the Wolverines can't be any tougher than the teams they have been up against the last few Saturdays.

As affairs have turned out this season, Northwestern will have met each of the first five teams in the Big Ten standing, in addition to a pair of strong nonconference opponents in Stanford and Notre Dame.

Whether the Wildcats can get an offense working that can score on Michigan is a question. The running game has been ineffective all year and the passing attack which had been something of a threat in earlier engagements folded up completely against Notre Dame.

Coach Dick Hanley is undecided about the starting back field. At practice the team was without the service of Cruice, Olson, and Leeper, all of whom are nursing injuries.

Al Lind, a brother of Freddy Lind, half back, probably will start at right guard in place of Al Kawal, whose shoulder injury will keep him out for the rest of the season. Lind is a sophomore who played center as a freshman and was shifted to guard this fall. He played a large portion of the game against Notre Dame.

FEHRING ON CRUTCHES.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Scrimmage was placed back on the Purdue drill menu this afternoon, as Coach Noble Kizer sought to improve blocking and tackling which showed signs of slipping against the Hawkeyes Saturday. With Indiana, always a tough foe for the Boilermakers, regardless of comparative standings, scheduled as Purdue's final game, coaches and players alike were working overtime on fundamentals in an effort to prevent another upset.

It was definitely announced tonight that Capt. Dutch Fehring, rated as one of the nation's outstanding tackles, will be unable to appear against Indiana due to the knee injury he received early in the Hawkeye battle. With Fehring on the side lines on crutches, Carl Heldt, a junior who has given a good account of himself, was moved into the left tackle berth.

Although still hopeful that Duane Purvis, the leading ground gainer in the Big Ten, will recover from his shoulder injury in time for the Indiana battle, Kizer was working with a back field tonight that had Leon Dailey, sophomore, in Purvis' accustomed right half back berth.

HOOSIERS POLISH OFFENSE.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Indiana university football players went through an intensive dummy scrimmage this afternoon and reviewed offensive formations they will use against Purdue Saturday. As darkness fell on the practice field, Coach E. C. Hayes moved the team inside the fieldhouse and continued the workout.

The loss of Jack Sprauer, center, and Wendell Walker, full back, from the lineup for the Purdue game appears certain, but the good work of Reed Kelso at the pivot post this afternoon and the improvement of Charles Burton and Bob Keck at full back was encouraging.

GOPHERS STRESS DEFENSE.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Informed by Assistant Coach Red Dawson that Wisconsin has a better offense this year than last, Coach Bernie Bierman turned to the defensive side of the game today as he started working his Gophers on methods to stop Wisconsin Saturday. He indicated that he will stand pretty much on his offense, except for the usual polishing of plays.

The Gophers probably will be at full strength for the Badgers. All of the boys who suffered several bruises in the Michigan game, will be in shape according to Trainer Dave Woodword.

The Gophers are not taking the game lightly. They well remember how they went to Wisconsin a favored team last year and how they came off the field with a disappointing defeat. They fully realize, too, that Coach Dr. Clarence Spears' reputation depends pretty much on this particular football game, with the doctor facing his most disastrous season, since he has not won a Big Ten game this year. Thus the Gophers are certain that the Badgers, who have shown constant improvement, will be at the top of their game Saturday and looking at the Minnesota contest as an opportunity to make up for an otherwise disappointing season.

BADGERS SEE GOPHER PLAYS.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The Wisconsin Badgers in scrimmage with freshmen today were given their first lesson in tactics necessary to stop the Minnesota back field.

Special attention was devoted to the halting of freshman backs who represented Minnesota's Francis [Pug] Lund and Julius Alphonse. The Badger seniors who saw Sheldon Beise play when he attended school at Wisconsin insist they can stop him.

ZIMMER, SAHLIN TO MAKE FINAL RUNS SATURDAY

Two University of Chicago seniors who have carried a football far and often for the Maroons, Capt. Pete Zimmer and Vinson Sahlin, will close their college careers when Dartmouth's team appears at Stagg field Saturday.

However, it will be Sophomore Jay Berwanger who must bear the chief burden of Chicago's hopes. Maroon followers dispute the claim that Pug Lund of Minnesota is the iron man of the season. The sturdy Dubuque boy in the Chicago back field has labored every minute of the five conference games that Maroons have played, and all but a few minutes of the two practice games.

Jay Averages Three Yards.

Against Big Ten teams he carried the ball from scrimmage 119 times for a total of 368 yards, an average of slightly more than three yards a play. Against Illinois last week he ran from scrimmage 37 times, exactly the number of times the entire Illini back field attempted, and gained 83 yards, compared with the Illini total of 63.

Berwanger also has made all but one or two of the Maroon punts, a 1 has averaged 35 yards in 63 tries. He has done a share of passing and has been a power backing up the line on defense.

Hopes Rest with Line.

The surprising improvement of the Maroon line against Illinois, on attack, which permitted the Chicago backs to gain more ground than the combined totals of Northwestern and Michigan against the Illini, is the real hope for Saturday, however. Dartmouth's defeat by Cornell last Saturday was one of those overconfidence affairs, the Midway hears, apt to sting the Green team to its best effort.

Coach Shaughnessy yesterday devoted much time to line play during a dummy scrimmage, then turned to backfield blocking. Ed Cullen probably will start at quarter back, but Vin Sahlin is sure to see lots of action. Bob Deem, sophomore tackle, was given another day of rest. John Rice played part of the Illini game as guard and may start in place of Pokela or Perretz.

FISHMAN DIRECTS GREEN.

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Sammy Fishman appeared at quarter back with the Dartmouth football team this afternoon as the big Green started its drive for Chicago.

George Stangle, who has been the team's quarter back through the Harvard, Yale, Princeton, and Cornell games, entered the last named with a wrenched back suffered at Princeton, and today did not report.

Fishman's reappearance in the rôle of varsity signal caller today brought memories of three years ago when he was touted as one of the great players to enter Dartmouth. He suffered a succession of injuries, and only last week it was thought he would play no more.

Norman Rand remains as varsity quarter back understudy. No other changes were made in the Dartmouth lineup by Coach Jack Cannell. Elbert Camp and Dick Carpenter remained at ends, Phil Galzer and Don Erion at tackles, Ray Hulsart and Bob Michelet at guards and Moe Frankel at center.

The team worked out in the frozen turf of Memorial field, running through old formations and later indoors against the Chicago offense as put on by the scrubs. The squad also saw the motion pictures of the Michigan-Chicago game with an accompanying lecture. Sid Hazelton, assistant coach, has twice made trips to Chicago to look over the team.

Why Worry About Football Ties? Customers Like Them

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Six tie games is the record to date in the Western conference season, and these lend themselves as a talking point for those who believe there should be more scoring in football if it is to remain interesting. These debaters quote the decline in average scores per team over the last decade and then offer the statement that the defense is about to engulf the offense with the prospect that in a few years most of the major games will be no decision.

Six tie games in 23 played in the Big Ten may be alarming judged solely as so many figures. But scores are not and probably never will be a criterion of interest. Consider the tie games.

Indiana scored on a recovered fumble [before the ball struck the ground] to tie Minnesota, 6 to 6. Minnesota had dominated the offense, making several marches, and, of course, Indiana's touchdown play was one of those thrilling runs the critics have been seeking. Purdue tied Minnesota, 7 to 7, marching 37 yards in a brilliant attack to tie the score. This march and subsequent point kick was the climax in a game replete with Minnesota's first half advances.

Chicago played tie games with Wisconsin and Indiana, and Minnesota had a scoreless tie with Northwestern. Certainly in all of these there was excellent football. Last week, in a championship game, Minnesota and Michigan failed to score.

No Score, but Plenty of Action.

We submit, however, that in none of these, and particularly in the Minnesota-Michigan scoreless tie contest, was there a lack of action. The primary requirement for a football game is that the teams be evenly matched. A run away, in which one team completely outclasses the other both on attack and on defense, will be less interesting than a tie.

Neither does a tie indicate lack of ability. We choose for example the Michigan-Minnesota game. The defense of each team was exceptional. Tackling was almost perfect, yet the viciousness of the tackling made the few times runners escaped the defense the more spectacular.

Pug Lund returned a Michigan punt for 30 yards [he ran farther at an angle across the field]; Fay raced 24 yards for the longest gain by Michigan; Lund broke through Michigan's line for a gain of 34 yards early in the third period. Each might have been a touchdown. None was, but the thrill still was there for the 65,000 spectators.

The kicking of Regeczi and Lund and the handling of kicks by Fay for Michigan and Lund for Minnesota could not have been surpassed. By actual figures kicking was 25 per cent of the game, yet the thrill of the receiver catching the kick, despite an enveloping line of tacklers, has not been matched in many games where many touchdowns were scored.

Here Are the Figures.

Following is a table which gives the number of plays from scrimmage by each team in each quarter and the number of punts. Repeated plays because of offsetting penalty [both teams offside] are not included.

Michigan	15	5	23	6	16	4	10	2
Minnesota	19	5	17	4	17	5	21	3

Michigan had 64 plays from scrimmage to Minnesota's 74. Almost 25 per cent of all offensive plays were punts. The fourth period was Minnesota's best and included a march of ten plays for three first downs and finished with an eleventh consecutive play, an attempt for a field goal.

This game also was interesting because it was not overofficiated. Several offside penalties were declined, and as a result Michigan did not lose a yard by penalty. Minnesota lost 35 yards, four for offside and one penalty of 15 yards for roughness. One major penalty must be something of a record for a game as hard fought as this.

The only regret from the spectators' viewpoint was the absence of forward passes. But the weather dictated the policy that no chances be taken with passes. That none was completed [in six attempts by both elevens] makes self-evident the wisdom of that decision.

Klein, who has held most of the National league batting records for "most" this and that, including those for runs batted in and homers, which Hack Wilson took away from him in 1930. He also set the record for doubles, which Paul Waner topped in 1932. He has a six year major league batting average of .359, the average being under his mark of last year, in which he led both leagues with .368. His record for 1933 includes the socking of no fewer than 223 hits.

In his first full season with the Phillies, in 1929, Chuck knocked 43 home runs for a new National league record. He hit .360 in 1928, .356 in 1929, .386 in 1930, .337 in 1931, and .348 in 1932.

Klein holds the National league record for most extra base hits in one season, 107, and he has scored 100 or more runs in each of the five seasons in which he has played a full schedule. In each of these seasons he has made 200 or more hits.

Zuppke Drills 167 Lb. Tackle for Ohio Game

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—"Don't despise little men" has always been Bob Zuppke's dictum and the coach has practiced what he preached. His Illinois football team, which will bid for third and possibly first place in the Big Ten against Ohio State Saturday, is the lightest in the Big Ten and probably in its class in the country.

But even its present weight may be diminished. Today Zuppke searched for a substitute right tackle to replace Bart Cummings, who was operated on for appendicitis last night. Harry Palmer, next in line to Cummings, is limping with an injured ankle sustained in physical education soccer. So Zuppke turned to Cliff Kuhn, lightweight sophomore guard. Kuhn's top weight this season was 167, but he is under that mark at present.

OHIO TACKLES LIMP.

Columbus, O., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—James Scott of Toledo, O., 190 pound tackle, will get his chance Saturday when Ohio State closes the season with Illinois.

Scott, who has seen some service as relief man, will probably start because Ted Rosequist will hardly be able to play at all and because Lud Yards, the first string replacement, likewise, is in bad shape.

FENWICK, LOYOLA PLAY SUNDAY AT SOLDIERS' FIELD

Fenwick of Oak Park will meet Loyola academy in the finals for the Chicago Catholic High School league football championship at Soldiers' field Sunday afternoon. The site of the contest, which will start at 2 o'clock, was chosen yesterday by officials of both teams. More than 25,000 are expected to watch the game.

The game brings together two of the strongest elevens in the history of the league. Fenwick captured the west division title and qualified for the finals after a nip and tuck battle with St. Ignatius. Fenwick finished its sectional schedule with a record of six consecutive victories, piling up 168 points to its opponents' 14.

Loyola Is Undefeated.

Loyola makes its first title appearance since 1929 when it won the league championship. Loyola also is undefeated in league competition, winning four games and playing tie games with Mount Carmel and Leo. Loyola scored 76 points in its six east division games while its opponents made 30.

Tony Lawless, former Loyola university athlete, who has coached the Fenwick squad for the last three years, sent the players through a long drill yesterday. Loyola, under the direction of Coach Len Sachs, also practiced. Long drills are planned for today and the remainder of the week.

Morgan Park Drills.

Long sessions also were held in the camps of Harrison Tech and Morgan Park, the finalists for the Chicago Public High School league championship, who meet at Soldiers' field Saturday afternoon. Two of Morgan Park's regulars, members of last year's championship squad, remained absent and according to Coach Bob Antonides probably will be unable to play against Harrison.

The players, Eddie Karge, guard, and Tommy Tompkins, quarter back, were injured in the semi-final game against Lindblom last Saturday. Karge incurred a torn cartilage in his ribs, while Tompkins pulled a muscle in his left leg. Several other players received minor injuries against Lindblom, Coach Antonides said.

Harrison at Full Strength.

Barring injuries in practice, Harrison will be at full strength against Morgan Park. The squad drilled for more than two hours yesterday. Coach Bob Dougherty of Harrison, plans to start his regular lineup. In the back field will be Capt. Pupils, full back; Rimicci, quarter back; Zintek, left half, and Koreck, right half.

The schedule of events will include a military show.

Some of the best players of the Chicago area will make up the teams. Maj. Hamlet C. Ridgway, general chairman of the committee which is picking the teams, will announce the selection of players today.

Londos Meets McMillen on Mat Tonight

The wrestling program at the Chicago Stadium tonight marks the return of James Londos, the most potent drawing card of the game in these parts, in a windup match with Jim McMillen, former University of Illinois football star. A crowd of nearly 10,000 is expected to witness the local comeback of Londos, who has spent the last four months abroad, most of them in his birthplace of Argos, Greece.

The Londos-McMillen bout will be the fourth meeting between the two, each an originator of a hold which has become popular among other practitioners of the grappling art. Londos is regarded as the author of the airplane spin, with its subsequent finishing body slam, while McMillen is said to have been responsible for the flying tackle, although Gus Sonnenberg is generally credited with inventing it.

Shikat Placed on Card.

McMillen probably is not the opponent Londos himself would have chosen for a homecoming appearance, having met the former Illini star three times previously, and although he received the decision in each instance, spent considerable time in the hospital after two of their matches. They met twice in Madison Square Garden and once at Soldiers' field. In the latter bout they went two hours, with Londos winning the referee's decision and collecting with it a torn ligament in his back, which put him out of commission for three months. McMillen crossed up the Londos forces recently by defeating Joe Stecher in a match to determine Londos' first Chicago opponent.

In the semi-windup the unorthodox George Zaharias will trade jabs, punches, and kicks with Dick Shikat, one time German sailor and the champion from whom Londos won his original claim to the title. Shikat has been a member of the group opposed to the Londos party, but was ordered placed on the card by the Illinois state athletic commission.

Steele to Meet Hefner.

In the other bouts Ray Steele of California will meet one Dutch Hefner of Texas, reported to be as adept as Zaharias in the business of enraging his opponent, not to mention the customers. Everett Marshall, Colorado veteran, will be matched against Frank Speers, former Georgia Tech football player, and Tommy Marvin, Oklahoma Indian, who turned from boxing to wrestling, will meet Dr. Karl Sarpolis, one time Maroon athlete.

AVERY BRUNDAGE TO HEAD A. A. U. FOR SIXTH TIME

Germans Deny Banning Jews in Olympics.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The 45th annual convention of the Amateur Athletic union, leading sports governing body of the United States, today completed a memorable three day session by electing Avery Brundage of Chicago its president for the sixth successive year and giving final and unanimous approval to the use of the metric system in championship track and field events.

An answer from the German olympic committee to the resolution it passed yesterday condemning alleged discrimination in Germany against athletes of Jewish faith was accepted without comment at the closing session, and the task of wading through remaining business continued almost without interruption.

No Fight on Metric System.

Counted as a major contentious question before the convention met, the use of the metric system was approved without a dissenting vote when it came up in the report of the legislative committee. The Metropolitan and New England associations had petitioned for its abandonment but neither made an active fight on the convention floor.

Amateur boxing came in for the major wallops, L. Di Benedette, veteran association leader from New Orleans suggesting at one point that the A. A. U. withdraw from all control over it on the ground that it was so near the borderline of professionalism as now conducted that the union lost prestige by taking responsibility for the sport.

The argument started over a proposal by Martin A. Klein, president of the Metropolitan association, to amend the rules so that "merchandise" might be given as prizes in amateur boxing bouts. The rule finally was allowed to stand as it is. Managers for amateur boxers were ruled out and a suspension of six months provided for any violation.

Increase Size of Gloves.

An effort to change the present rule on amateur bouts to conform to the Olympic standard of five two minute rounds instead of the present three minute rounds was defeated as applied to national championship events but sectional associations were left to decide the matter for themselves. The weight of the gloves was increased to eight ounces from six for senior events and from eight to ten for junior.

After being in session almost continuously since 9 a. m., the convention finally adjourned four hours late, at 9 p. m., to allow delegates to the American Olympic committee to catch a night train for Washington to attend the meeting there tomorrow.

Those officers reëlected for another term with Brundage are Ferris as secretary-treasurer, J. Lyman Bingham, Chicago, assistant to the president, and the four following vice presidents: Martin A. Klein, New York; Al Sandell, San Francisco; John J. Magee, Brunswick, Me., and Jack Rafferty, Texas.

FIND CHEMICAL RELIEF TO HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Another That Retards Growth of Cancers.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A complicated new chemical which may offer relief to high blood pressure and another chemical which has stopped the growth of natural cancers in mice were reported to the National Academy of Sciences today.

A vitamin which retards the onset of senility also was described. In the field of agriculture evidence was reported that aged seeds produce more rare forms of plant than young seeds.

The blood pressure chemical is adenosine triphosphate, obtained directly from blood of animals. It disintegrates so rapidly that thus far it has been extracted only by drawing it from the blood directly into an ice-cold solution.

Dr. Cyrus H. Fiske, of Harvard medical school, who reported it, said it might be possible that lack of this chemical caused high blood pressure, but that it has not been tested on humans. In animals it appears to be a depressor of pressure.

Seen in Skin Flush.

He said that also a modification of this chemical, taking place naturally in blood corpuscles, might be partly the cause of dilation which produced the skin flush of fever, inflammation and overheating.

The cancer discoveries were reported by Dr. James B. Murphy of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. A substance protecting large numbers of mice from cancer troubles which Dr. Murphy said closely parallel human experience was extracted from rapidly growing body tissues.

It was taken from tissues of both mice and rabbits, and either extract worked about equally well. Its future is not known, except that it is associated with but different from the chemical substance which causes growth.

Tried on Mice.

This inhibitor substance was tried on mice with carcinoma, one of the two main types of cancer. Some of the mice were operated on the same as men, and the chemical in about 90 per cent of the cases prevents the recurrence which alike afflicts both mice and men.

Other mice had cancer grafted upon them, and the chemical inhibitor prevented between 75 and 80 per cent of these grafts from "taking." Without protection of the inhibitor such grafts grow into cancers nearly 100 per cent.

But Dr. Murphy pointed out there was yet no idea of how this knowledge might be applied to human beings. Too many complications have arisen. These growth tissues extracts which stop carcinoma have no effect on sarcoma, the other main type of cancer. Yet Dr. Murphy found other inhibitor chemicals, extracted directly from animal cancers, which retarded sarcoma, but had no effect on carcinoma.

The vitamin which delays senility is G, reported by Dr. H. C. Sherman of Columbia university. Dr. Sherman said it is found principally in milk, eggs, and in brewer's yeast rather than baker's yeast.

SHOOTS HIMSELF AS KIN HUNT HIM TO PREVENT ACT

Abraham Brinn, 62 years old, of the Rogers Park hotel, 6805 Sheridan road, shot and wounded himself yesterday in a room at the Sheridan Plaza hotel. Although he apparently had intended to kill himself, the bullet merely grazed his scalp, inflicting a slight wound.

Several hours before the attempt was made relatives of Brinn asked the Rogers Park police to search for him. They said he had left home after threatening to take his own life.

Brinn engaged his room in the Sheridan Plaza hotel at about 10 a. m., telling a clerk that he wanted to rest a short time.

SIXTY CATHOLIC LEADERS ATTEND MISSIONS PARLEY

Mundelein Presides at Sessions.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Sixty bishops and archbishops comprising the American board of Catholic missions met in annual session yesterday afternoon at the office of the Catholic Extension society, 360 North Michigan avenue. The session was devoted to the discussion of present problems in their missionary sees.

During the morning the prelates attended the 28th annual meeting of the Extension society, which was held to allocate funds for the support of Catholic missions throughout the country. Cardinal Mundelein presided at the sessions. At noon the prelates were guests at a luncheon given by the Extension society in the Drake hotel.

Apostolic Delegate Present.

Among the more distinguished members of the hierarchy of the church to attend the sessions was the Most Rev. Amleto Cicognani, apostolic delegate from the Vatican to the United States.

Cardinal Mundelein said that the income of the missions board for the last year had fallen off far less than he had expected. Receipts reported for the year totaled $237,677, with disbursements in excess of $210,000.

Cardinal Mundelein praised the efforts of President Roosevelt toward lifting the economic depression. Under the President's program, the cardinal said, business is expanding, unemployment decreasing, and normal conditions are slowly but surely returning.

Back to Land Movement.

Bishop Edwin V. O'Hara of Great Falls, Mont., told the bishops that the depression had brought about a back to the land movement. He said that during the last three years the rural population of America has increased by nearly 3,000,000.

He explained the drift back to the land as resulting from young people's return from the cities to their parents, together with the stopping of the drift toward cities. Bishop O'Hara said the increased rural population offered the church the opportunity to introduce its principles for reconstruction of the social order.

NEW 'BOUL MICH' TRAFFIC CONTROL LIGHTS ORDERED

Alfred D. Plamondon, president of the Lincoln park board, predicted yesterday that work on the progressive lighting system from Oak street to 12th street in Michigan avenue would be started soon after the first of the year. The city and Lincoln and south park boards, which share the expense, have agreed upon the improvement.

"We have ordered the equipment, costing about $15,000, from the General Electric company, but it will take a month or two to manufacture it," said Mr. Plamondon.

Lincoln park's share in the project is from Oak street to the Michigan avenue bridge. The city will put in equipment from the bridge to Randolph street and the south park board from this point to 12th street.

Traffic experts have estimated that the new lights would save approximately 75,000 motorists an average of two minutes each a day.

A MOVIE OFFER DELAYS LEHMANN DIVORCE PLANS

Mrs. Virginia Peine Lehmann will not press her divorce action against E. J. Lehmann Jr. for several weeks, it was announced last night by her attorney, William B. Gemmill. Mrs. Lehmann, who has been offered a motion picture contract, is leaving for Hollywood tomorrow, the attorney said, and is not certain when she will return.

FORCES GATHER FOR BIG BATTLE ON INFLATION

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Open revolt by the federal reserve banks is only one development in this aligning of forces. For weeks the reserve banks have been quietly resisting the treasury's efforts to get them to load up with more government bonds. This resistance has been particularly strong in the Chicago reserve bank.

The reserve banks are under the supervision of the federal reserve board in Washington, and hence the treasury, but the reserve banks are owned by the member banks and their directors are leading bankers and industrialists.

Seek to Avoid Loss.

Foreseeing inflation, the directors of the reserve banks have taken the stand that the treasury should not be allowed to use the reserve banks as the means of bringing inflation about. They also point out that inflation would cause a slump in government bond prices, and that they have no right to continue to invest in such bonds and suffer losses on them.

Acting Secretary Morgenthau counters with the information that he will bolster the prices of government bonds by using the funds of the postal savings system and even the treasury's own funds to peg the prices of government bonds.

This procedure is known in financial circles as "running a pool." It was what Samuel Insull did when the prices of securities of his various enterprises began to decline. The funds of one company were used to buy the securities of another in a vain attempt to keep prices up above the natural market.

Must Take All Comers.

The chief difficulty with running a pool is that its operator must be prepared to buy all the securities that are shot at him. Unless he does this his efforts are ineffectual.

The treasury has a balance of about a billion and a quarter dollars in its general fund with which to work, but this money is not lying in treasury building vaults in Washington. It is deposited in banks throughout the country and makes up part of their gross deposits. About one-third of it is deposited in banks in New York City.

If the treasury is to use this money which it got by selling government bonds to buy them back on a large scale then it will have to be withdrawn from the banks in which it is deposited. That would cause bank deposits to shrink accordingly. And when bank deposits shrink, banks must call loans or sell investments to offset the shrinkage in deposits.

Runs in Vicious Circle.

The first thing the banks would sell would be government bonds. New York banks sold $43,000,000 of such bonds two weeks ago when their deposits shrank. The sale of government bonds by the banks would, in turn, further demoralize the market for them and force the treasury to buy more government bonds to support the market. Thus the vicious circle would be complete.

The key to inflation, the financial community believes, lies in government credit. If the government were not continually in the market with new bond offerings the dollar cheapening program might work. The government, however, will be offering more bonds because the budget is not balanced and the only way to get money for the big lending and spending program is by the sale of more government bonds.

There has been the same sequence of events in other recent experiments in inflation—in Germany and France, particularly. First, the national budget gets out of balance. Then there is recourse by the treasury to the central banks for support. There follows a period of "credit expansion" and then outright currency inflation.

Throws Scare Into Business.

It is the realization of these things that has thrown a scare into business and financial leaders and has caused the spirited uprising against the brain trust's inflation plans.

The committee for the nation, the group of industrialists who have favored inflation, has begun to share the stage with the committee on monetary policy, a group of business leaders who oppose inflation.

Sound money protagonists have been making trips to Washington to get a word in. Anti-inflationists among the high official in Washington have been talking more openly against the nation's present monetary policy.

In the financial community the belief is prevalent that the sound money men are foredoomed to defeat, but that more strenuous opposition may bring the issue to a head more rapidly. The revolt of the federal reserve banks is regarded as a move which will force the current monetary experiments to be called by its right name.

Dollar Drops Nearly Cent as Sprague Quits

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 21.—The dollar lost further ground today first as a result of another ten cent increase in the price of gold by the RFC, announced in the morning, and more later due to resignation of O. M. W. Sprague as special financial adviser to the United States treasury. This information reached the exchange dealers shortly before the close of business.

The dollar was especially affected by Sprague's letter, warning that the present monetary policy would lead to inflation and expressing his opposition to the dollar depreciation movement.

Dollar Off 9-10 of Cent.

In terms of the French franc the dollar declined from .90 of a cent to 60.36 cents against a close of 61.26 yesterday. In terms of gold the decline was .18 of a cent to 61.40 cents. At its low point today the dollar was within two cents of its record low of 58.34 cents, established on Nov. 16.

Today's RFC price for gold was $33.76 per fine ounce, a new high mark, comparing with $31.36 on Oct. 25, the first day upon which the government organization entered the gold market. Prior to that time, the treasury had been quoting prices of newly mined gold for export, ranging from $29.10 on Sept. 11 to $31.46 on Sept. 30. On Oct. 24 the price was $29.80.

London Cuts Gold Price.

London reduced the price of gold there 7 pence to 127 shillings, but, owing to the higher price of the pound in the exchange markets, its equivalent in dollars was raised 33 cents to 34.04.

The British pound sterling gained nearly 7 cents in early dealings, lost about half of this later, but rallied in the late afternoon to close at $5.42, up 11½ cents net. French francs also had a morning spurt, dropped back and then pushed forward vigorously for a closing advance of .09½ of a cent at 6.49 cents.

Dutch guilders were up .90 of a cent at 66.85 cents. Belgian belgas gained .35 of a cent at 23.05 cents, and Swiss francs firmed .50 of a cent at 32.15 cents.

GUARD FREEDOM OF PRESS, TRADE GROUP URGES

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The southeastern division of the chamber of commerce of the United States by resolution today called upon congress "to safeguard the freedom of speech and of the press."

A modification of the securities act at the "earliest possible date" also was urged on the grounds that act as constituted has interfered with the flow of private capital into various enterprises.

It urged the national recovery administration to establish a supplemental basic code fixing minimum wages in the south at not more than seventy per cent of those in the north and east.

A rift developed in the convention over monetary policy. The resolutions committee, headed by S. F. Claybaugh of Birmingham, Ala., suggested that the division endorse the national chamber proposal that President Roosevelt cease monetary experimentation and provide for an early return to a gold basis.

Led by L. H. Timmons of Charlottesville, Va., a group of oppositionists proposed a substitute expressing confidence in the President's monetary policies and that he would fix a proper value for the dollar "when the wisdom of the administration dictates."

The substitute was finally voted down and the original resolution passed 24 to 13.

Bankers Find Buying Silver is Good 'Loan'

Counteracting to a small extent the shortage of good short term loans, many Wall street banks are actively engaged in arbitrage dealings in silver, according to firms executing orders in the silver market. What the banks do is to buy spot silver and sell futures against it, delivering the white metal when the options mature. The spread between futures and the spot price has been so wide that the difference much more than covered the cost of carrying the silver and has left a substantial profit.

For instance, at one time recently the March option was selling at 46.50 cents an ounce, while spot silver was 45 cents, leaving a difference of 1½ cents to cover the cost of carrying silver from this time until March, when the delivery of silver is made on March contracts.

In such a deal the banker cannot lose. The charge for carrying silver in bank vaults is 2 cents a day per bar, which usually weighs 1,000 ounces or thereabouts. Twenty-five such bars, or 25,000 ounces, constitute the unit contract in the silver futures market. Banks with spare storage space on hand need not charge the 2 cents a day against the transaction but take into consideration only the investment in silver and incidental costs of handling. Not only American but Mexican and Chinese banks have been trading heavily on that basis.

Measured by the weekly car loadings reports, business is following the usual seasonal pattern. From the week ending Nov. 4 to that ending Nov. 11 the decline was 4.9 per cent, compared with an average drop of 5 per cent at this time for the five years 1928-1932, inclusive. Last week's traffic was 7.5 per cent better than a year ago, compared with a gain of 3.2 per cent over 1932 in the previous week. This reflects the sharp downward trend last year rather than an abnormal improvement this year.

La Salle street's cup of uncertainty is fast filling to the brim. Principal ingredients now consist of conflicting rumors that the President may make an announcement on monetary policy, press reports that high British and French banking authorities will resist vigorously the President's monetary program, and what promises to be the renewed clamor of the farm inflation wing headed by Senators Thomas and Smith.

On the other hand, those who have not yet lost hope of a return to the hard money track point out that recent conversations between the President and Wall street men known to be conservative may have more significance than mere social chats. Meanwhile the warning of the French finance minister to the chamber of deputies finance commission that the budget must be promptly balanced brought forward the possibility of an added variable in the form of uncertainty over the future of the franc. The view is expressed in Wall street that if to the present stew is added weakness in the franc owing to French internal difficulties the financial mentality will be taxed more than is healthy.

Northern Trust, City Nat'l Avoid Pfd. Stock Action

Members of the boards of directors of the Northern Trust company and the City National Bank and Trust company at their regular monthly meeting yesterday took no action looking toward increasing their capital structures. The Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company recently took action to increase their capital structure through R. F. C. purchase of preferred stock and the directors of the First National bank endorsed a plan to increase their capital through preferred stock sale, although not necessarily to the R. F. C. The Harris Trust and Savings bank is expanding its capital structure through funds derived from the liquidation of its investment affiliates.

Short Term Bankers' Acceptance Rate Up 1/8%

The upward trend in bankers' acceptances was indicated again yesterday, when all dealers advanced rates on the short term paper by ⅛ of 1 per cent. Rates on the longer term paper were not affected. Last week rates on all maturities were increased by ⅛ of 1 per cent. There has been a tendency to increase the return on acceptances with the decline in the prices of government securities and their consequent greater yield. The new rates for 60 and 90 day paper are ⅝ of 1 per cent bid and ½ of 1 per cent asked.

PRESIDENT NAMES COAL CODE OFFICIALS; CHICAGOANS ON LIST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—President Roosevelt tonight completed organization of the bituminous coal industry under a national recovery code with the announcement of his appointees to the several governing boards created under the provisions of the soft coal code.

To the national board, principal governing body for the industry, President Roosevelt named National Recovery Administrator Johnson; Fred G. Tryon, coal economist of the federal bureau of mines, and Federal Judge George W. Anderson of Boston.

The President appointed Joseph Harrington of Chicago as his representative on the code authority for the second division, consisting of Illinois, Iowa, and Indiana. To the subdivisional authority for the division he named Frank C. Woodward of Terre Haute, Ind. The divisional and subdivisional code authorities are charged with administration and enforcement of the code in their respective territories.

John A. Lapp of Chicago was named as his representative on the coal code labor board for the second division. Mr. Lapp was chosen as the "impartial" presidential nominee to the board. Ora E. Gassaway of Brazil, Ind., was appointed "employé" representative and J. H. Cartwright of Terre Haute, Ind., "employer" representative.

LEHIGH VALLEY INTEREST SOLD BY N. Y. CENTRAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 21.—The New York Central Railroad company, which through its affiliate, the Securities corporation of the New York Central railroad, owned 50,000 shares of Lehigh Valley railroad stock, has disposed of its investment in the open market and applied $1,000,000 to the retirement of bank loans, it was learned today.

The move may have some significance in connection with merger plans for the eastern roads in that the Lehigh Valley is allocated to the Chesapeake and Ohio-Nickel Plate system, while the proposed New York Central system includes Lackawanna, which competes directly with the Lehigh between New York and Buffalo.

To have received $1,000,000 from the sale of its Lehigh holdings it would have been necessary for the New York Central to have obtained an average of $20 a share for the stock. The common closed yesterday at 14⅛, while the high for this year was 27¾ and the low 8⅝.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 21.—The United Cigar Stores company today announced a reduction of about 10 per cent in the retail prices of medium and high priced cigars in the metropolitan areas.

The price cuts reduced three for 50 cent cigars to 15 cents straight or seven for $1, while 15 cent cigars were cut to 13 cents or two for 25 cents. The cut was explained as being prompted by the action of a competitive chain store company yesterday.

In the meantime many independent dealers have started a price war in cheaper priced cigars and cigarets which have run into the anti-price cutting provisions of the general retailers' NRA code and a temporary truce was agreed upon.

Railroad Built by Peeved City Now Profiting

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The city's 339 mile railroad, believed the only large municipally owned line in the United States, scoffed at depression today and maintained its record of being a veritable gold mine.

Directors of the Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific Railway company [Queen and Crescent] that leases the city's railroad announced their company's operating revenues had more than doubled in the first nine months of 1933 over the similar period of 1932.

Dividend Doubled.

They declared a cash dividend of $3 on common stock, against $4 paid in 1932, and Fairfax Harrison, president of the concern, said indications are that earnings for 1933 as a whole, applicable to common stock, will approximate 20 per cent.

The city line—between Cincinnati and Chattanooga—was built in 1880 by a city peeved at being "slighted" in the laying out of routes in the great period of American railroad development. It cost approximately $30,000,000. Already rentals coming to the city from leasing companies have returned almost $60,000,000. The rental now is $1,200,000 a year.

Income Up to 143 Per Cent.

Last year was the low point of its financial history. But the business recovery in the last six months, plus operating economies, made possible operating income for the nine months ending Sept. 30, 1933, of $2,730,542, or approximately 143 per cent over the figure of the similar period of 1932.

Officially, the line is the Cincinnati Southern railway. It is leased to the Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific, which in turn is controlled by Southern railway, through the Southwestern Construction company, which is jointly owned by Southern, Alabama Great Southern, a Southern subsidiary, and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

NATIONALIZED BANKS OPPOSED FOR GERMANY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—A bank committee appointed by the Hitler government to prepare new banking legislation today rejected all plans calling for "total nationalization of banks." Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, though he endorsed most of the reports of the leading investigating bankers, insisted that the national bank policy must remain in close connection with the national government's policy.

The bankers rejected nationalization of banks to "safeguard private initiative and the spirit of enterprise." Partial coöperation with and stronger control of banks by the state will be discussed at the next meeting.

The Nazi government is determined to enforce stronger state control than it holds at present, although by advancing vast sums to the banks, the preceding and present governments have acquired great influence over most of the banks in Germany.

The charge for loading mess pork is placed at 7 cents a barrel; prime lard, per tierce, 15 cents, and dry salted short ribs and dry salted clear bellies, per thousand pounds, 25 cents, effective Jan. 1, 1934.

Storage rates on prime steam lard per tierce and mess pork per barrel is 1 cent each per day. Dry salted short ribs and clear bellies for 30,000 pounds are charged $1.20 per day.

HOW FOX GOT MILLIONS TOLD IN SENATE QUIZ

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—A graphic story of the manner in which General Theaters Equipment, Inc., gained control of the Fox Film company from William Fox in April, 1930, by paying him $15,000,000, plus "other considerations," was related to senate stock market investigators today by Murray W. Dodge, former vice president of the Chase Securities corporation.

One of these "other considerations" was an agreement by General Theaters Equipment, Inc., to procure for Mr. Fox an employment contract with Fox Film for five years at $500,000 a year to be paid even if Mr. Fox died; another that General Theaters Equipment, Inc., would continue to pay the premiums on $3,500,000 of life insurance policies carried by Fox Film on the life of Fox, and still another that General Theaters Equipment, Inc., would pay Fox $3,000,000 for assignment of his claim for salary from Fox Film.

Could Not Meet Obligations.

Mr. Dodge asserted that while the Fox Film company had operated as a profitable concern, it faced serious embarrassment early in 1930 because of capital obligations that could not be met.

"Those capital obligations of Fox Film and the Fox Theaters," he continued, "amounted at that time to something around $90,000,000."

The Chase National bank financed the purchase of stock control of Fox Film from Mr. Fox by a loan of $15,000,000 to General Theaters Equipment, Inc., on April 7, 1930. This loan was secured by Fox Film and Fox Theaters shares. This loan was repaid April 18, 1930, by a new Chase bank loan of $27,000,000. At the same time General Theaters Equipment, Inc., agreed to buy from Fox Theaters 1,600,000 shares of Fox Film class A common stock for $30 a share, or $48,000,000, and the General Theaters Equipment, Inc., then authorized the sale of $30,000,000 of debentures and 617,000 shares of common stock.

Made Four Other Loans.

In addition to these loans, the testimony of Mr. Dodge revealed that the Chase National made four other loans to General Theaters Equipment, Inc., syndicates managed by Pynchon & Co. amounting to $11,500,000, and a separate loan of 9 million dollars to Pynchon & Co. On these loans $6,500,000 had been repaid.

"In December, 1929, after the panic," Mr. Dodge testified, "Harley Clarke told me as a director of General Theaters that he understood that William Fox and his companies, the Fox Film company and the Fox Theaters, were very much extended through the purchase of the control of a large amount of the stock of Loew's corporation and an interest in the Beaumont Pictures company of Great Britain; that these purchases had been made on short time credits which were coming due, and that unless Mr. Fox was able to finance these obligations the Fox company would get into very serious trouble.

Two Issues Nearly Due.

"Halsey Stuart & Co. had issued to the public $12,000,000 of notes which matured in the early part of 1930, the proceeds of which were used as part payment for the block of Loews, Inc., stock purchased from the Loews family. An additional $15,000,000 had been advanced by the Electrical Research corporation, and those notes would come due shortly.

"But Fox had also, in addition to the original family holdings of the Loews stock, bought in the open market over 200,000 shares of Loews stock, which he was carrying through brokers, who were worried."

Mr. Dodge said he was told by Mr. Clarke that the latter was "worried about the situation, because if Fox Film failed it would probably affect adversely the whole film industry, and of course would then affect the General Theaters Equipment, which was selling equipment to the film industry."

Requests Assistance.

"He told me," Mr. Dodge continued, "that he thought the General Theaters should have a very sympathetic view of the whole situation, and, as a matter of fact, asked me if I would discuss the matter with Mr. Stuart of Halsey, Stuart & Co., who was very much worried about the $12,000,000 that was being carried.

"At that time there was suggested a plan to solve some of the problems of Mr. Fox. I think the General Theaters was figuring on putting some $18,000,000 into it and through senior securities there was to be raised an additional $20,000,000 which, together with the agreements reached with some of the creditors, would have probably put the Fox Film company in a more sound condition."

Chesapeake Corp., Others Lift Dividends

The Chesapeake corporation, a holding company for the Van Sweringen brothers, today increased the dividend on the capital stock to 63 cents a share. The dividend is payable Jan. 1 to stock of record Dec. 8.

The company had paid dividends of 50 cents quarterly since July, 1932, when the disbursement was reduced from a $3 annual basis.

Increase in the dividend rate is believed to have been prompted by a rise in the corporation's income from its large holdings of Chesapeake and Ohio common stock, following an increase in the latter's dividend rate last month to 70 cents quarterly from 62½ cents.

Columbus and Xenia, a Pennsylvania railroad subsidiary, declared an extra dividend of 5 cents a share on the common stock.

Ludlum Clears Up Arrears.

Stockholders of the Ludlum Steel company approved a plan for cancellation of accrued dividends on the company's $6.55 cumulative convertible preferred stock from Oct. 1, 1930, to Oct. 1, 1933, in return for which preferred stockholders will receive payment of $1 a share and a new conversion privilege entitling them to convert each preferred share into five shares of common. The former conversion privilege was share for share.

General Printing Ink corporation declared a special dividend of 15 cents on the common stock and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the preferred. This is the first dividend since April 1, 1932, on the common stock, when 25 cents was paid.

Standard Utilities, Inc., declared a dividend of three-quarters of a cent a share, marking resumption of payments on the issue for the first time since March, 1931, when 2 cents a share was paid.

Lord & Taylor Pays $5 Extra.

Directors of Lord and Taylor, New York department store, today declared the $5 extra December dividend which has been voted annually for several years on the common stock, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $2.50. The extra is payable Dec. 15 to stock of record Dec. 1, the regular Jan. 2 to holdings of record Dec. 16.

Directors of Chicago Rivet and Machine company have declared a dividend of 25c on the no par common stock, payable Dec. 10 to stockholders of record Dec. 1.

A. P. Giannini, chairman of the board of Transamerica corporation, announced today that consideration will be given to the payment of dividends on the corporation's stock in the near future.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 21.—When Mayor Elect F. H. La Guardia arrives in Washington tomorrow to discuss the financing of public projects necessary for New York City he will learn that Mayor O'Brien has already laid a program before the federal emergency public works officials asking that more than $43,000,000 be loaned to the city for ten projects. This does not complete the program that the mayor has formulated, it was announced in a statement issued on his behalf at the city hall today. The total amount Mayor O'Brien seeks is put at more than $95,000,000 for public works.

Five of the projects on the O'Brien program totaling $35,000,000 have already been forwarded to Washington. They are listed as follows:

For the completion of new city subways for the account of the board of transportation, $25,500,000; for a new pavilion at Bellevue hospital to complete the building program at that institution, $4,000,000; for construction of a water supply tunnel to be known as tunnel No. 2, $1,000,000; the Bayside High school, $2,500,000, and for docks and pier sheds at pier 32, North river, $2,020,000.

Five other projects calling for a total of $8,092,000 will be sent to Washington tomorrow.

NEARBY TRIALS MAY END INSULL $21,000 PENSION

Action Seen as Aid to Ex-Associates.

Samuel Insull, whose salaries as head of a far flung utility system at one time ran close to $500,000 a year, is in danger of losing the $21,000 pension which was voted him on his retirement. Directors of the four companies from which the former utility leader is now receiving annuities are expected to decide the question in the near future.

SAMUEL INSULL.

Officials of the companies declined to comment yesterday on reports that Insull's pensions will be eliminated.

Continuation of the pensions will hurt the defense of his former associates who are scheduled to come to trial next month in federal court on charges of using the mails to defraud, the attorneys for the defendants believe.

Regarded as Defense Move.

Several of the defendants are still connected with the companies formerly headed by Insull and it is in the interest of their defense primarily that the directors are considering the elimination of the pensions, it is reported.

The pensions were under fire from stockholders of the companies last spring, but the management was steadfast in its refusal to discontinue the payments. Insull is receiving the maximum allowable under the pension systems of the Commonwealth Edison company, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. In addition to the $6,000 a year from each of these companies he is receiving $3,000 annually from the Peoples Gas Subsidiary corporation.

May Withdraw Pension.

Under the annuity system of the Edison company the directors upon proper cause may withdraw the pension paid a former employé except in cases where the money has been set aside in a trust fund. In the latter case the moneys must be paid out in accordance with the rules of the pension plan. The plan under which Insull's pension is being paid has never been disclosed.

Failure of the federal government to win Insull's extradition from Greece is regarded by lawyers as a blow to the defense of his fellow defendants. Insull is the only person familiar with details and reasons for many of the transactions carried on by Corporation Securities company, other officials declare.

See Injury to Case.

They will be helpless when placed on the stand, they admit. If it can be shown that some of them voted to grant Insull a pension it will injure their case further, it is asserted.

All the defendants were officers and directors of Corporation Securities, one of the twin investment companies through which Insull controlled his properties.

Edward J. Doyle, president of the Commonwealth Edison company, and John H. Gulick, vice president, are among the eighteen indicted by the federal government. Others, in addition to the three Insulls, include Harold L. Stuart, president of Halsey, Stuart & Co., and Stanley Field, capitalist.

Ruling in Trustees' System Reorganization Delayed

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson has continued indefinitely a motion by the receiver of the Trustees' System Service corporation for instructions whether or not to join in the effort to reorganize the company. The action was taken in order to permit Garfield Charles, referee in bankruptcy, to conclude the hearing before him. If the referee decides that the company is bankrupt the reorganization would have to go through the bankruptcy court.

New York, Nov. 21.—Declines in United States government bond prices on the stock exchange today contrasted with moderate gains in domestic corporation issues and in leading foreign loans. The government bond market was nervous during most of the day, but closed slightly above the day's lows.

Total transactions in the listed bond market today reached $12,715,100 against $11,904,000 on the previous day, and dealings in government issues were $3,253,100 against $2,824,000.

Losses 4 to 16-32ds Point.

The setbacks received by the treasury and Liberty loan issues ranged from 4-32ds to 16-32ds point. After the close of the stock exchange when news of the resignation of Professor Sprague from the treasury department became known, the usual trading in government issues in the over-the-counter market was greatly curtailed.

The gold bloc issues showed about the best gains in the foreign list. Dutch East Indies loans gained 2 to 2¾ points, French government and municipal loans, ½ to 2, and Swiss government 5½s a point. German and Scandinavian loans pointed higher in quiet dealings. Improvements in Uruguayan issues was a feature of the Latin-American group.

Other Domestics High.

In the domestic corporation list most of the issues which were at all active closed moderately higher on the day.

Speculative rail issues were actively traded. In the utilities, American Telephone and Telegraph debentures were active and showed fractional price variations. New York Rapid Transit issues closed fractionally higher.

Domestic and foreign bonds were irregularly higher on the curb exchange where trading was slightly more active than on Monday.

Owens-Illinois Glass.

Investors' Guide: Please give me information on Owens Glass Manufacturing company. I am not sure that I have it correct, but it is in Illinois.—O. D.

Owens-Illinois Glass company is the largest bottle manufacturer in this country, turning out about twice as many units as its closest competitor. A minor source of revenue is leasing of bottle making machinery.

Output is classified into five main divisions: bottles used in the drug and toilet article trade, food containers, beverage bottles, milk bottles and miscellaneous bottles.

The advent of beer this year furnished a powerful impetus to earnings. Last July, for instance, not only were all plants operating at full capacity but the company was forced to sublet contracts. A measure of stability in this phase has been reached, since these bottles are used for refill purposes, but replacement demand still provides a substantial source of business.

Repeal of the 18th amendment furnishes a still more important source of business, since bottled liquor of higher alcohol content achieves a higher percentage of sales than bottled beer and the bottles are used only once.

Net profit for the 12 months to Sept. 30, 1933, equaled $3.14 per common share on 1,200,000 shares, against $1.46 per common share on 922,172 common shares for the preceding 12 months.

The $25 par stock pays regular dividend of 50 cents a quarter. Extras of 25 cents a share were paid on Aug. 15, and on Nov. 15, 1933.

Peerless Corporation Rights.

Investors' Guide: I own 100 shares of Peerless corporation stock. I now find out I am entitled to 100 rights and then I can buy, by exercising my rights, 20 shares of stock at $5 per share. Why should I pay $5 per share when the stock is now listed on the exchange for less than that? Please explain where I will derive any benefits by exercising my rights at your earliest convenience.—T. T. B.

Answer: The answer to your request is that there is no advantage to purchasing the stock through exercise of your rights at $5 a share when it can be bought on the open market at less than that. Rights have nothing but a speculative value until and unless the price of the stock rises above the option price.

The time limit on the exercising of Peerless rights expired on Nov. 14.

BREAK IN GOLD SHARES UPSETS GENERAL LIST

Price Trends Are Highly Irregular.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 21.—Price trends were highly irregular on the stock exchange today. Flurries of strength in railroad shares and a few specialties were offset as market factors by persistent weakness in gold mining and whisky shares and the list as a whole was never able to muster much momentum in either direction.

Trading volume was about on a par with that of yesterday, falling considerably under 2,000,000 shares.

The advance developed in yesterday's dealings flattened out soon after the opening when bull operators were unable to extend an initial rise marked up on an assortment of prominent issues in all sections of the list.

Gold Issues Weak Influence.

The gold metal issues had a dampening effect on constructive operations from the outset when leaders of the group sagged steadily in the face of the new rise in the price of gold. Speculators were a bit puzzled over the action of the group and about the only tenable explanation forthcoming was that some large holders had set about reducing their lines due to growing uncertainty on the administration's monetary policy, the reports of dollar stabilization and the like.

Alaska Juneau, McIntyre, and others gave up 1 to 2 points or more on selling, which at times grew fairly heavy. Other metal issues were also carried down, notably those of silver producing companies like United States Smelting and American Smelting. The former took a tumble of nearly 5 points.

Pennsylvania Tax Considered.

Troubles of the whisky department were attributed chiefly to nervousness over the probable costs to the distilling companies of the Pennsylvania floor tax of $2 a gallon on liquor stored in that state. Unofficial estimates placed the tax at the equivalent of $3 a share on National Distillers and something like $3 on Schenley. U. S. Industrial Alcohol, and in fact virtually the whole group, went down with the leaders.

American Can again gave a brilliant performance in the industrial section, touching 100 for the first time since 1931 and closing within a fraction of par. Eastman Kodak, International Business Machine, and Owens Illinois were among the strong specialties.

Traffic Figures Aid Rails.

The rails got their help mainly from the improvement in carloadings of early reporting lines compared with the preceding week. New York Central, Delaware and Hudson, and Illinois Central were among the outstanding issues of the division.

Interest in the motor shares growing out of the announcements of new spring models helped these issues to achieve new highs for the movement, but the group ran into offerings which cut down about half the gains of the leaders. Chrysler and General Motors were prominent.

The food shares lacked life and the utilities were weak.

FREIGHT GAINS CONTINUED IN LATER REPORTS

Additional reports on freight carloadings for the week ended Nov. 18, indicate that earlier increases will be continued. The Rock Island handled 20,739 cars compared with 19,667 in the preceding week and with 19,786 in the like week of 1932.

The Illinois Central handled 27,226 cars compared with 26,560 in the preceding week and with 27,700 a year ago.

ARGENTINE CROP DAMAGE REPORTS AID TRADE HERE

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Rust reports from Argentine wheat fields, while declared to be somewhat exaggerated in private cables, had more or less effect on the American markets yesterday and were instrumental in causing fair local buying at times. However, the lack of a broad speculative interest was pronounced, and prices backed and filled erratically within a range of around 2 cents for the day, with the close unchanged to ¼ cent higher.

December wheat finished at 88⅞ to 89 cents, May at 92⅜ to 92½ cents, and July at 91½ to 91⅝ cents. The continued relative strength in the latter delivery month is attracting some attention as recently it was around 3 cents under the May.

Corn Futures Ease.

A leading industry was reported to have withdrawn as a liberal buyer of cash corn and this had some effect on futures, which closed ½ to ⅝ cent lower, with May at 54 to 54⅛ cents. Oats were unchanged for the day, with May at 38⅜ to 38⅝ cents. Profit taking developed in rye, with the nearby futures off ½ to ⅝ cent for the day, May being 69 cents, while the July was ½ cent higher at 70 cents. Barley closed ¼ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower, the May future being 51c at the last.

The main drawback as far as the effect of striped rust in the southern areas in the Argentine wheat belt as the trade sees it, was the failure of the Buenos Aires market to become excited. The latter closed only ⅛ to ¼ cent per bushel higher yesterday, although Broomhall's agent confirmed reports of deterioration in the alleged infected area.

Effect of Gold Gain.

The advance in the price of gold and in sterling exchange had some effect on sentiment during the day, and in the main the latter leans strongly to the buying side on the dips. The resignation of O. M. W. Sprague, special assistant to the treasury and his attack on the monetary policy of the administration, was not received until after the grain markets closed, but is expected to have considerable influence today owing to reviving fears of outright inflation of the currency.

Milling demand for cash wheat was fairly active yesterday, local handlers selling 122,000 bushels for shipment, and charters were made for 245,000 bushels to Buffalo. However, a cargo of 225,000 bushels was reported on its way from Duluth to the local market. Winnipeg closed ¼ to ½ cent higher in Canadian funds, while Liverpool was 2 to 2¼ cents higher.

Sell Wheat to Ireland.

Around 300,000 bushels of domestic white wheat were reported as having been sold for export from the north Pacific coast, largely to Ireland, and this raises the total amount of grain being disposed of abroad through the aid of a government subsidy to above 3,000,000 bushels.

Trade in corn futures was mainly of a local character. Despite strength abroad nothing was heard of a general foreign demand for corn. Rotterdam November was 3¾ cents higher at 64⅛ cents, a figure that would indicate direct export business from the United States. Broomhall reported increased consumption in the United Kingdom as the result of the government efforts being made to increase hog production. The quality of the Argentine corn arriving at Liverpool of late was said to be unsatisfactory.

EXPORTS OF GRAIN FROM U. S. SHOW SHARP DECLINE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Grain exports from the United States last week amounted to 463,000 bushels as compared with 709,000 bushels the preceding week and 1,275,000 bushels in the corresponding week last year.

Commerce department figures today gave the following comparisons between last week's exports and those of the week before: Wheat, 78,000 bushels against 12,000; corn, 355,000 against 273,000; barley, 22,000 against 422,000; oats, 8,000 against 2,000.

Canadian grain exported last week from United States ports amounted to 126,000 bushels against 294,000 the week before.

BUTTER FUTURES FALL; DECEMBER DECLINES TO NEW RECORD LOW

Butter futures weakened on heavy liquidation on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, December making a new all time low and January a new low for the year. Closing prices were ⅜ cent lower.

Butter opened slightly firmer, but quickly weakened under free selling, which continued until the close. Nothing appeared to encourage new buying. Offerings of fresh butter on the cash boards totaled nearly 1,000,000 pounds, of which the government took nearly 700,000 pounds. Much of the extras sold went at 22¼ cents, or ⅛ cent under the recent market.

Eggs were nervous, opening easy, only to rally, but near the close liquidation started and erased the slight gains. Weekly storage reports showed a much heavier movement of eggs out of storage than last year, total withdrawals in 26 cities proving one of the heaviest on record. Daily figures, however, were not as favorable as expected.

As manager of an important branch of this great world-wide business, I have employed a good many men and helped them get into money-making. We have a good number of men making in the multiple thousands yearly. Our pay roll, without any difference in product or other material changes, has increased remarkably during the past year. Our business as a branch in October was 45% ahead of Sept. this year. Our Nov. increase over Oct. for the first half of the month was about 35%, or about 70% above the first half of Sept. This business was done with about the same number of men. Reducing this to man-power-earnings, we have men here who are making from $200.00 to $750.00 a month—while many men newly come into this business during the past few months are earning remarkably well compared with the average in most fields even in good times. Now and then a new man, inside of three months, comes very close to the incomes of some of the older men.

We have men here who have been in this one branch for two to over five years—and in the business up to as high as eight years—because it paid them better, in boom times, than any other work—and it pays them better now. These men, on a basis of former occupations, represent almost the entire field: clerks, salesmen, bookkeepers, business managers, mechanics, teachers, shopkeepers, architects, engineers from most lines (civil, construction, etc.), etc. I have had the particular type of experience, but every man who has made good had character. And character means more than honesty. It demands that and also includes determination, diligence, industry, unwillingness to offer alibis in place of achievement.

There is a job to do here, and you are trained for it, without cost, and do not deposit a penny, invest or buy anything. When we invite you to come here for interview, we wish to make it clear that we want only full-time men, with family connections, neither too old nor too young—and in good health. This is not a side-over or a haven for the down-and-out. You have to meet people, and if you are suited to our work we will teach you how to meet them on the right basis. In asking men who believe that they qualify, to come for an interview, we are not asking them to decide if we have a good business. We can prove this. We are not requesting them to determine if our business merits the financing of one of the foremost corporations in the United States have determined that—as have millions throughout the world. But we do invite you on their behalf to help you decide your own adaptability to our work.

To make you the money-earner that you indicate you should be, costs this company money. We spend that money gladly on you, provided you can handle the job. We find out before this is permanent work, not affected by seasons, and proved during the past four years as depression-proof. Our men were paid nationally in currency during the national bank moratorium last March. This company is powerful—is always prepared—and has shown continued world-wide growth. This is by far its largest and best year in the world!

You realize that the purpose of this announcement is to attract you in numbers. We could get crowds with a few lines, but we do not wish crowds. We desire men who can develop into big money-makers. Last month our national record was broken. One young man made over $2,600.00 for himself that month. In a business in which a top record like this is possible, there certainly is plenty of room for the men who have less earning power than that, but enough to pay their way, get the things they and their families desire, and lay away a surplus.

I shall be glad to see you and talk with you if you will call at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 22—coming to Room 215 at 1046 Wilson-av. We have openings for men not only on the north side, but in Des Plaines, Park Ridge, Arlington, Wilmette, Kenilworth, Winnetka, Glencoe, Highland Park, Ravinia, North Chicago, Waukegan, Lake Forest, etc. Be sure to come promptly or just a few minutes before two o'clock.
